Burglars Strike Twice

NEW MADRID -- New Madrid county authorities investigated two breakins, one at the Harmmock grocery in Canalou, and the other at the VFW Hut, at the north edge of Parma. Both were entered last night.

At the Hammock grocery, the building was entered by taking strips from a padlocked front door.

After gaining entrance the thief or thieves ransacked the store by taking boots, shoes, underwear, watches and groceries, and about $15 in change from the cash register. There were no estimate available in the value of the stolen merchandise.

The merchandise was loaded into a vehicle parked at the rear.

The store is owned and operated by Donald and Douglas Hammock, twin brothers.

At the VFW Hut, owned by Mrs. Helen Jaynes, two vending machines were broekn into and an undetermined amount of cash taken.

Eagleton Favors Bombing Halt

POPLAR BLUFF Mo. (AP)— Lt. Gov Thomas F. Eagleton said today a halt in the bombing of North Vietnam would open the door to peace talks.

He said cessation of the bombing would be "coldly realistic" and a "prelude to peace."

In a speech prepared for a ladies luncheon at a Truman Day rally Eagleton said world leaders have made it clear continuation of the bombing precludes a negotiated settlement.

"To an impressive and growing number of concerned minds," he said, "the strategy of the bombing constitues the most clear and present danger to the peace of the world today."

Two Stowaways Aboard on Queen Mary's Final Cruise

ABOARD THE QUEEN MARY (AP) — Two stowaways, a man and a woman, were discovered on the Queen Mary today as she steamed across the Atlantic toward England and retirement.

The woman, who identified herself as Angelina Romero, 25, of San Diego, Calif., presented herself to the purser at about midnight. By that time the ship was several hundred miles from New York and she could not be returned.

The other stowaway, an unidentified American man in his 20s or 30s, was found on deck this morning by a crewman who became suspicious. He was placed under lock and key by the master at arms.

Both Miss Romero and the man came aboard Friday during the gala sendoff for the Queen Mary, symbol of a bygone era of transatlantic splendor. Thousands of wellwishers mingled with the 2,500 passengers before the sailing.

The final voyage on her regular run to England was turned into a retirement party that will be long remembered.

"There won't ever be another ship like this one and there won't ever be another crossing like this one," said Bob Searles, a bar steward who had sailed on the Queen Mary's maiden voyage in 1936. "It's a once-in-a-lifetime thing. We're going to give her a real party."

The Queen Mary had been a festive ship for most of her 31 years and the mood was unchanged when she sailed from New York Friday on her 1,000th and last transatlantic crossing. Corks began popping hours before the Queen left her dock and champagne bottles soon littered companionways.

"We haven't planned anything special for this trip," a spokesman for the British Cunard Line said. "The passengers look great. We'll let them improvise. They'll give the old girl the kind of farewell she deserves." A symbol of a vanishing era, the Queen Mary carried more than two million persons in war and peace — more of them Americans than any other nationality. But she lost money — $2 million a year — after the transatlantic jet planes arrived.

Next month she will sail around Cape Horn to Long Beach, Calif., for use as a floating hotel and museum.

Viet Gunners Pounded Hard

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. B52 Stratofortresses and Marine artillery maintained a round-the-clock hammering of North Vietnamese positions along the demilitarized zone today in an unrelenting effort to silence Communist guns inflicting mounting casualties on American ground toops.

Two waves of B52s flew overhead as Leatherneck guns around the U.S. encampment at Con Thien thundered almost constantly.

One wave of the eight-engine planes dropped 150,000 pounds of bombs on suspected enemy artillery and antiaircraft positions and supply routes just over the line inside North Vietnam, 12 miles north of Con Thien. Another wave hit supply, storage and staging areas.

Enemy fire over the past 11 days has killed 41 Marines and wounded 541.

Gas War Erupts

The gas war, which reached a cease fire in August, broke out again Friday afternoon.

Most major brand dealers are now selling regular for 24.9 cents per gallon and premium for 28.9 cents per gallon.

The general pattern for independents is now 22.9 cents per gallon for regular and 25.9 cents per gallon for premium.

An independent dealer said the prices are likely to be even lower by Monday.

The price drop apparently resulted from the actions of one independent dealer, who is now described by other dealers as a maverick. He lowered his price Sept. 15, to about 24.9 for regular if the customer bought eight gallons.

Independents then lowered prices from the 26.9 regular and 29.9 for premium, to 24.9 for regular and 27.0 for premium early this week.

The prices had remained fairly stable since Aug. 5, when independents agreed on the price of 26.9 for regular and 29.9 for ethyl.

Majors, also remained at 28.9 for regular and 32.9 for higher test since Aug. 5.

The price war began in late June. Prior to that, major brand prices had been selling at 33.9 for regular and 37.9 for premium. Independents had been selling regular for 29.9 and premium for 33.9.

ABM Price Tag Set

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon says America's first antimissile system will cost about $1 million for each missile.

But officials decline to reveal how many missiles will be poised for launching at the 15 to 20 antimissile complexes in the United States.

The Pentagon said Friday a breakdown on the numbers and the sites of the installations will be released after construction begins. Initial contracts in the $5 billion program will be awarded in about five months.

Russia to Boost Aid to Hanoi

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union promised North Vietnam today weapons and other supplies in a 1968 aid program that was hinted to be larger than the current estimated billion-dollar-a-year program.

The weapons will include defensive arms, such as antiaircraft guns and missiles for use against U.S. planes, and small arms and artillery that could be used offensively in South Vietnam.

An official announcement of aid agreements signed here today lacked details on the volume of aid. The Soviet Union never has announced how much it is sending to Hanoi.

But the announcement spoke of support for North Vietnam "in conditions of growing U.S. aggression in Vietnam" and the Kremlin has promised in the past to match any increase of the American war effort with more aid.

Viet Army Declared Improved

SAIGON (AP) -- Gen. William U.S. troops in Vietnam, says the South Vietnamese army is "not fully effective, the way I want it to be, but they're better than they were a year ago."

Criticism of the South Vietnamese army has mounted in recent weeks in view of the deepening American commitment of troops.

Westmoreland gave his views in an exclusive interview with an Associated Press newsman who spent a day with him this week touring U. S. military installations.

Westmoreland said that among the major problems facing the South Vietnamese army are "corruption, their fear of night fighting and leadership weakness."

Heavy casualties suffered by its officer corps have contributed to the leadership weakness in the South Vietnamese army, he asserted.

South Vietnamese headquarters does not give out specific military battle casualties for each individual battle as the U. S. Command does for American casualties. Instead, the South Vietnamese headquarters characterizes them as light, moderate or heavy. When specific casualty numbers are obtainable from field reports or other sources they are generally carried by the press. Each week, South Vietnamese Headquarters issues a summary giving the total number of dead, wounded and missing for the preceding seven-day period. These weekly summaries are carried along with the American weekly total casualty figures.

"Leadership is a big problem," Westmoreland went ont.

Asked to what extent U. S. officers could be used to bridge this gap, Westmoreland replied: "As much as the traffic will bear. It will not bear more than it did a year ago."

It used to be, the general continued, that American officers working in leadership capacities with South Vietnamese units were resented by the government troops and officer corps.

"Now that I've got enough troops here to do the job, we're much closer with the ARVN (Army of the Republic of Vietnam) than ever before. They're gaining increasing self confidence.

Westmoreland said that while not all South Vietnamese units "have achieved success, my opinion of them is based on positive and negative impressions. And over-all, the outcome is positive."

Much recent criticism of South Vietnamese forces is "outdated," he added. "Perhaps a year ago it might have been true, but not so today."

During a briefing at Ham Tam, the remote capital of ruran Binh Tuy Province, the province chief reported to Westmoreland several incidents of South Vietnamese victories and initiatives taken recently throughout the province. Nodding his head, Westmoreland commented: "This would have been unheard of six months ago."

As to the progress of the conflict: "This is a complicated war. It's part of a complicated situation."

The thinking that is leading to increasing antiwar sentiment in the United States and other countries in "anachronistic," he said. "Because you can make a case for not getting involved here in 1954, the thinking follows that we should pull out now. But I cannot conceive in my wildest imagination of abandoning these people." The general attributed much antiwar thinking to "intellectuals." He complained that "most of their background is so one-sided."

The North Vietnamese are encouraged by lack of U. S. support from home, Westmoreland said.

Farmer Dies of Gun Blow on His Head

POPLAR BLUFF -- Raymond Connyers, 60, route one, Pollard Ark., died after being struck over the head with the butt of a shot gun after an argument at his farm home last night at 7 p.m. west of Fagus, 17 miles southeast of here near the Arkansas line.

Deputy Sheriffs Bob Arnold and Auston Urich and State Trooper Robert Trotter were called to the scene. Arnold said that five men were involved in the agrument he charged that some were intoxicated and gave conflecting stories.

Involved in the argument were Connyers and two sons, R. L. Connyers Jonesboro, Ark., and Louis Connyers, 31, of Michigan, and Ralph Reed and his son, Carl Reed. both of McDougal, Ark. and Jeff Parrish, also of McDougal.

The highway patrol charged that Reed and his son and Jeff Parrish, stopped at the Connyers home and threatened the two Connyers boys and they reported that the father attempted to stop a fight.

One of the Connyers sons claimed he saw his father struck over the head with the gun.

Reed and his son were apprehended near Corning, Ark. and lodged in the Clay county jail. Parrish is still at large.

The body of Connyers is at the Croy-Fitch Funeral Home.

Rusk Outlines Tighter Quarantine on Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP) -- Secretary of State Dean Rusk proposed today a four-point program for tightening the Western hemispheric quarantine of Communist Cuba, including an appeal to non-Communist countries to curb trade with Havana.

"The Organization of American States must maintain measures that isolate Cuba from the society of free men" until Premier Fidel Castro quits promoting "subversion and terrorism in the other countries of the hemisphere" and cuts his military ties with Moscow, Rusk said.

Rusk presented the U. S. proposals as the foreign ministers of the 21-nation OAS went into the second day of a three-day special conference on stemming the Castro threat.

Guerrilla-plagued Venezuela called the meeting, accusing Cuba of aggression for its exports of insurgency to other Latin American lands. Other hemisphere minsters have joined in denouncing the Red infiltrations.

It remained to be seen what specific steps the Latin American leaders could agree on beyond the containment programs already voted by the OAS in past years. None is advocating force against Cuba.

Rusk advocated "reasonable steps tailored to the dimensions of the immediate threat" which he said should be neither exaggerated nor ignored. He proposed:

-OAS "condemnation and denunciation" of the Castro regime's actions "as flagrant violations of international treaties, of the principles of international law and the standards of conduct among nations."

-Serving notice on the Soviets, who are giving Castron an estimated $1 million-a-day aid, that this will impair Moscow's efforts for increased relations elswhere in Latin America.

"If they are interested in our friendship, we may ask why they finance a government publicly committed to our destruction," Rusk said.

-Further individual and collective measures by OAS members for "viligence along our coasts and frontiers" to prevent incursions of men, munitions, money and propaganda from Cuba.

-"Seek greater cooperation from our free world friends in denying to Cuba resources which help it to carry on its subversive activities."

Cuba's trade with non-Communist nations slumped from $1.6 billion in 1958, the last year before Castro's takeover, to about $350 million annually the last two years. The OAS adopted a no-trade policy toward Cuba in 1964 and then asked friendly countries abroad to follow suit.

But some West European countries, particularly England, France and Spain, have continued to do business with Castro.

With U. S. backing, Venezuela wants a fresh appeal to Western countries to curb their trade with Havana, notice to Moscow against continuing its heavy aid to Castro and more cooperative police measures against Cuban landings of men, munitions, money and propaganda across Latin American frontiers.

Laborites Rally to Long

KANSAS CITY AP -- Missouri labor leaders rallied behind Sen. Edward V. Long, D-Mo., Friday and promised all-out support in his bid for re-election next year.

Plans for the campaign were made in a closed meeting, attended by Long.

"This was the most dramatic kind of demonstration of union labor support that Long enjoys," said Harold Gibbons of St. Louis, a leader in the Teamsters union.

Norman Lenamenn, business manager of Electrical Workers Local No. 1 in St. Louis, said Long had not asked for a labor endorsement.

Among lthe leaders present were John Lawler of the Steamfitters Union; James Davis, an official of the Missouri office of the AFL-CIO; Roy William of St. Lous, an associate of James Hoffa, Teamsters leader now in prison; and Karl Rogers of Teamsters Council 56 in Kansas City.

Long, whose financial affairs are being investigated by the Senate ethics committee, denied that there was any connection between fees he received from Hoffa's lawyer and the Teamsters.

The senator was asked what he thought of the endorsement by a group including Teamster Union officials in view of a magazine article about the payments from Hoffa's chief counsel.

Long said that since the magazine accusations were not true he was happy for the support of anyone.

Long said he would defeat Lt. Gov. Thomas Eagleton in the Democratic primary. Eagleton announced he would seek the nomination for Long's seat. The senator made no other comment.

Hearnes Accused of Not Practicing What He Preaches

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Although the governor preaches economy, Dorman L. Steelman says Gov. Warren E. Hearnes has become the biggest spender in the state's history.

Steelman, the Republican state chairman from Salem, made the accusation at a GOP rally Friday night. He said Hearnes should admit taxes will have to be raised no matter who is elected governor next year.

Steelman charged Hearnes has been politically motivated throughout his administration, getting a constitutional amendment adopted allowing him to run for a second term, gaining the support of the St. Louis Steamfitters' union, putting summer highway jobs under patronage control and holding $25 and $1,000 a plate testimonial dinners in his own behalf.

Flood Empties Two Cities

RIO GRANDE CITY, Tex. (AP) — The Cameron County Sheriff's Department said today that all residents of Matamoros and Roynosa, Mexico, were being evacuated into the United States ahead of floods triggered by Hurricane Beulah.

The floods are expected on the Rio Grande, normally a turgid stream dividing Texas and Mexico but now more than a mile wide here.

Mamamoros is a city of 100,000 and Roynosa has 75,000 residents.

The greatest mass of floodwaters in more than three decades thundered down the Rio Grande, but cities on the U.S. side have considerable protection from levees.

The Nueces River, roughly paralleling the Rio Grande to the east and emptying into Corpus Christi Bay, is expected to reach the highest flood stage in history.

Matamoros is across from Brownsville at the mouth of the Rio Grande.

Roynosa is across from McAllen, about 50 miles upstream from Brownsville. It is an industrial center with a large oil refinery and rail yards. It is a popular entry into Mexico.

Torrential rains - up to a staggering 30 inches-also sent crests rolling down scores of other South Texas rivers and streams as Hurrican Beulah, the cause of it all, finally blew herself out against the mountains of northern Mexico.

Some one million persons remained isolated by high water in a 40,000 square-mile area in the wedge of South Texas. The death toll from the 14-day-old hurricane stood at 36-while damage estimates were put at $1 billion. Nine died in Texas.

A deputy sheriff at Rio Grande City said Saturday, "Is's going to go" when asked about the International Bridge there. He said the river's floodwaters covered about a fourth of the town shortly after midnight.

"It looks like the river's coming into the downtown area," he added.

Numerous streams in the disaster area continued to spill from their banks today and heavy rains persisted, although they were tapering off.

Beulah slammed into the Texas coast at Brownsville early Wednesday.

The Rio Grande was 20 feet above flood stage and a mile wide, here, 110 miles from the Gulf of Mexico.

W. E. Walker, principal engineer for the International Boundary and Water Commission, said Rio Grande floodwaters had eaten away the abutments of the bridge linking Rio Grande City and Camargo, Mexico.

"We expect it (the main part of the bridge) to go anytime." he said late Friday.

"This is the highest discharge since 1938," he said. "It's a very large flood; It's very serious."

South Texas was a world gone made with water. Attempts at cleaning up the soggy mess were started at the few points where waters receded.

A hand-lettered sign on the wall of the Raymondville hospital told this story:

"Our syringes and medicines are clean. Our smiles are real. Only our floor is wet and a few guys with guts are keeping us going."

A volunteer team of men and boys - some from the high school football team-kept floodwaters to a low level in the hospital with pumps, buckets and sandbags.

Chief Physician Dr. Charles Spence said the volunteers "pitched in and kept some women from having to have their babies out in that mud and filth." White-clad nurses were barefoot. Doctors wore high boots.

The latest death was that of Jean Blackwell of Kingsville, who apparently drowned when a pickup truck was swamped near Alice. Two other persons died early Friday when a car plunged into a flooded creek in San Antonio.

Virtually all roads south of San Antonio remained blocked today although a few became passable by heavy high-wheeled vehicles.

Thousands of refugees who fled inland to escape the winds and tides of Beulah found themselves faced with greater danger Thursday and Friday from the raging Floodwaters, from massive rains and from 95 tornadoes that spun off the monstrous storm. Many had to be re-evacuated.

Five Years Added to Hoffa's Term

CHICAGO (AP) — Teamsters' Union President James R. Hoffa's prison term has been lengthened from eight to 13 years.

Hoffa was sentenced for a second time Friday to a five-year prison term and a $10,000 fine on charges of taking part in a multimillion-dollar conspiracy to defraud a teamsters' pension fund.

Judge Richard B. Austin, in sentencing the Teamsters president Friday, declared that the five-year term will be consecutive to an eight-year sentence Hoffa is now serving for jury tampering in Chattanooga, Tenn. Hoffa is imprisoned in Lewisburg, Pa.

Hoffa was sentenced once before on the pension-fund charge, but the five-year-plus-$10,000 sentence was vacated by the Supreme Court. The high court ordered a hearing to determine whether admitted government wiretapping helped in obtaining the evidence that led to Hoffa's conviction in 1964 in Chicago.

Judge Austin conducted the hearing in U.S. District Court and ruled Aug. 22 that Hoffa did not merit a new trial. The same ruling applied to the five codefendants convicted with Hoffa.

The codefendants and their sentences:

Burris of New York City, 18 months and $5,000.

Abe Weinbaltt, 70, of Miami, one hour in custody and $5,000.

Zacharty Strate Jr., 47, of New Orleans, three years and $5,000.

Calvin Kovens, 44, Miami, three years and $5,000.

Benjamin Dranow, 60, formerly of Minnespolis, five years and $10,000. Dranow was serving a sentence on another charge when he was convicted in 1964.

Critics Take Exception to President's Position That Fight Against Communism Worth Price in Vietnam

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Johnson's assertion that the fight to save South Vietnam from communism is worth the price despite "passionate voices" of protest is challenged by policy critics.

Johnson told the heads of about 300 fraternal organizations Friday that the big question is whether the war is worth the price. "I say it is," he declared.

"In every war we have fought there have been passionate voices crying that the engagement was unwise, that what we might accomplish was not worth the price we would have to pay," he said.

This was true, he said, when the Axis powers nibbled at Europe in the 1930s, when communism threatened Greece and Turkey in 1947, when the Reds blockaded Berlin in 1948, when South Korea was invaded in 1950 and in the Cuban missile crisis in 1962.

"These voices are heard now," he said," as Communist power threatens the life of South Vietnam."

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, one of the dissenters against whom Johnson's shafts appeared aimed, said he wishes the South Vietnames "shared the President's estimate of the importance of the war in their country."

"Then we wouldn't have to do the fighting for them, while they stay behind the lines and engage in pacification efforts agong their own people," Church said.

Sen. Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., a Foreign Relations Committee member who has called for more vigorous efforts to negotiate a peace, said in a separate interview Johnson failed to state the issue between him and his critics.

"We are in the war and the question is, what are the options open to us?" Case asked.

He said the President's remarks were not the answer to the question of what steps the United States can take to resolve the conflict.

A sharp Vietnam debate, with two Republicans criticizing the administration on the ground it has not brought about greater efforts by the South Vietnamese government in the war, developed in the Senate shortly after the President commented.

Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., said the United States should refuse to "send one more soldier or one more Marine to fight and to die in South Vietnam until that government begins to stand up to its responsibilities."

And Case renewed his stand that the administration should get the South Vietnamese government to make improvements to rally the all-out support of its army and its people.

Case again proposed telling the South Vietnamese government the United States will withdraw if South Vietnam does not demonstrate it can movilize for an effective war effort.

Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W.Va. acting Democratic leader at the time, said he was sure the President would press upon the South Vietnamese government that it had to meet its responsibilities.

Brooke, who recently reaffirmed with some reservations his support of Johnson's course, said: "If the President is correct when he says our reason for being there is to prevent the spread of communism by force and violence, this is certainly worth it. "It better be worth it with all the lives we've lost. It's hardly a time for second guessing as to whether it is worth it. This question now is a bit academic."

Johnson took direct issue with critics who have contended the Asian conflict is a civil war in which the United States has no vital interests.

The President said the price of "risking a third world war by our failure to stand in Vietnam now is a far heavier price to pay" than even the loss of American lives.

"Their sacrifice-I deeply believe-will make a greater war, and a far heavier price less likely in the years to come," he said.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

This is National Constitution week. It is an excellent time to read this document.

Few look for it but it is easy to find for those who do.

The constitution is available in many dictionaries, almanacs and encyclopedias.

If more Americans read it they would be less willing to permit Washington bureaucrats to tamper with it.

A careful reading discloses just how far the country has strayed from the faith of our founding fathers.

Hand wringing about the past does no good but awareness can be a good safeguard for the future.

Framers of the constitution knew their business.

They understood the meaning of recorded history. Many had experienced tyranny.

Almost without exception governments that preceded this republic were authoritarian.

The patriots, who wrote the constitution, were determined that it wouldn't happen here.

Limitations were placed on the power of the federal government. A system of checks and balances among its three branches was instituted.

Areas were set aside upon which no branch of government could intrude.

Centralization of power in the federal government in this century has been accompanied by loose interpretation of the constitution, the socialization of society and the master planning by government to guide and rule the lives of citizens from womb to tomb. The careful planning to avoid authoritarian rule has been blunted in the rush to increase the role of government in every citizen's life.

Private enterprise and all those elements on which this nation rose to greatness have been hedged by law and the theory that the bureaucrats know best.

Courts have fallen into the habit of declaring constitutional anything which is politically expedient.

Politicians use the constitution as an alibi for not doing something rather than as the constructive vital and forward looking force for which it was designed.

The hour is late but the trend can be arrested if enough citizens become informed and interested.

The Constituion is still the nation's best road map for the future.

A. L. STORY

Charleston has lost one of its leading citizens in the untimely death of Albert L. Story.

Southeast Missouri has lost one of its more enthusiastic boosters.

Missouri and agriculture has lost one of its most untiring promoters.

The nation lost one of its ablest cooperators for the advant and consumption of cotton.

Our sincere sympathy is extended to the family.

Something is terribly wrong in family affairs. The father, who knows men, and appreciates how little they can be trusted, is never consulted in regard to the young men who call on his daughters. The mother, who doesn't know any more about men that a good husband has taught her, is in control of such matters and usually gives her daughters all the rope they want. It is obvious that the fathers should assert themselves, but they have all tried and failed.

OUR EVERGREEN TRADITION

Somehow the second of the two documents which gave our nation its start has never commanded the reverence of the first, the Declaration of Independence. The Fourth of July is a national holiday, going back to that auspicious date in 1776 when old political bonds were broken. But Sept. 17, 1787 -- a date more than 11 years later -- culminated a revolution and set this nation on its course.

It was then that the Constitution of the United States was signed by 39 delegates of the Constitutional Convention in Philadelphia, later to be submitted for ratification to the legislatures of the first states.

Today, the 180th anniversary of that event, is modestly lighted by Congress and the President as Citizenship Day and the first day of Constitution Week. LYNDON JOHNSON has officially expressed the hope that appropriate ceremonies will give Americans "a better understanding of the Constitution and of the rights and responsibilities of United States citizenship."

It is regrettable that this wish could not be underlined or circled in a hearty hand and a bright color.

Rights are something we hear about frequently these days. But the subject under discussion, where the Constitution is concerned, is compound. Responsibility goes hand in hand with rights.

Materialism has designated Constitutional rights into demands for an equality of possession rather than an equality of opportunity. It negates the original American concept of justice, privilege and accomplishment, and imitates the socialistic concept of a homogenized and therefore bland and mediocre society. It ignores God, whose commandments speak to the individual and his love for a neighbor and his God.

The dream, which still glimmers through modern materialism, was beautifully expressed in 1869 by JAMES RUSSELL LOWELL: "To Americans America is something more than a promise and an expectation. It has a past and traditions of its own. A descent from men who sacrificed everything and came hither, not to better their fortunes, but to plant their idea in virgin soil, should be a good pedigree. There was never a colony save this that went forth, not to seek gold, but God."

Interpreters of the Constitution, sitting on the high benches of our courts, have sometimes turned on tradition and therefore have trampled on the dreams of those who planted this nation in new soil. But there is hope. We have seen the land covered with the bricks of gold and the mortar of man, and when the bricks crumble we have seen the grass grow again.

SOME GOLD COMES IN

It's news, good news, when the United States experiences an inflow of gold, and the news is especially cheering when the gold isn't destined to be buried out of sight in the caverns of Fort Knox.

This particular gold shipment will benefit the general public because the gold is in the form of art and artifcats from Colombia, representing a golden age of craftsmanship before the Spanish conquistadores set foot on the New World. Called the "Treasures of El Dorado," the collection consists of 208 rare objects, and it is said to be one of the largest accumulations of gold outside of Fort Knox. The treasures may be seen at the striking Colombian Center of the Republic of Colombia, 140 E. 57 St., New York City, until the end of January when they will be returned to the Banco de la Republica of Bogota, owner of the collection.

Those who stop in at the Colombian Center will find a variety of body and face ornaments, anthromorphic and zoomorphic figures, face masks and vessels, representing highly sophisticated craftsmanship. The objects are worked in thin gold sheet, thin gold wire, decorative gold thread filigree, and gold leaf. It is interesting to consider that similar art, brought to the courts of Europe in the 16th Century by early explorers, did much to arouse interest in the New World and open it to settlement.

Following the showing of the "Treasures of El Dorado," there will be a succession of other exhibits and entertainments at the Center. Visitors to the striking "show window" building, which is a study in bronze, will be entertained with concerts, recitals, films, lectures, folk-singing, folk-dancing, etc., and, as a neighborly gesture, coffee will be served to visitors -- made from superb Colombian beans, of course.

It seems to us that all this represents internationalism as it should be. Here is a nation that sends us many products that we want and need, not the least of which is a flood of fine, rich coffee. But there's more to the relationship than trade, as Colombia shares with us her great cultural riches.

When a factory proposes to leave a small town, there is consternation. Organizations are formed to encourage local industries and to bring in new industries.

But one never hears of any community holding a special meeting of its chamber of commerce in an effort to prevent a superior young man from leaving. Bright men and women move out quietly, unmourned and unrecognized.

They are drawn to the large centers, where opportunities are open for brains, initiative and originality.

The point I want to make is this: Suppose the chamber of commerce of some town really undertook the job of identifying and holding its brightest young men and women. Suppose it opened up jobs for them on completion of their high school and college courses, even though the doing of this caused some inconvenience and expense. Suppose the bankers of the town gave these young men the encouragement of a little extra backing. Might it not turn out in the course of twenty or thirty years that this town would show a remarkable growth?

NO "MELLOWING" IN EVIDENCE

Only those persons who have deceived themselves or have been deceived by others into believing that Soviet Russia was "mellowing" in its attitude toward the free world could have been surprised that nothing was accomplished during the much publicized conversations between President Johnson and Premier Kosygin. The subsequent turning over of the United Nations as a forum to Kosygin can only be regarded as disgraceful.

The communists are the same as ever. Their traditional goal is conquest of the entire world. They have not shifted their sights one iota. Kosygin sang the same old song about "American aggression" in his news conference at the UN shortly after the talks between him and President Johnson had been concluded. Russia's peace terms for the world still include surrender by the free nations.

Additional proof of that was hardly needed in view of the continued communist drive in Vietnam, the backing up of Fidel Castro by Russia, and the communist plans to bring guerrilla warfare to Latin American countries. All this is accompanied by an increasing boldness of the Communist Party, USA, encouraged by a decision of the Supreme Court that American communists do not have to register with the federal government.

Lenin long ago set the pattern of communist strategy when he advised party members: "Resort to all kinds of cunning, schemes and startagems, employ illegal nethods, evade and conceal the truth..." Communists have been following the counsel faithfully. Their aim is simply to liquidate freedom wherever it exists in the world and to impose their own slave ideology on once-free men. HLH

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- Amazing evidence of Communist Cuban penetration into the heart of Latin America has just been captured from Cuban guerillas in Bolivia. This writer, as a result of his visit to Bolivia last spring, has obtained copies of fake passports of high Cuban leaders, pictures of Che Guevara, Castro's former War Minister, and the secret personal diary of Che Guevara written in the Bolivian Mountains.

This information comes to light just as the Pan-American Foreign Ministers are meeting in Washington to consider, among other things, what should be done about Castro's attempts to spread revolution in Latin America.

It also comes to light just as one of the most influential Pan-American statesmen, ex-President Galo Plaza of Ecuador, has been persuaded to become a candidate for Secretary-General of the Organization of American states, where he could play a powerful role in settling Pan American disputes and unifying the hemisphere.

The amazing documentation of Castro's attempts to penetrate part of the continent -- Bolivia -- came about through the capture of certain Cuban guerillas and the discovery of caves in which the guerrillas had hidden their papers.

When they went into battle they left their documents behind, fearing capture. But Bolivian authorities have now discovered two caves containing forged passports of Panama, Uruguay and Ecuador, together with snapshots which the guerrillas had taken of each other while going about their camp chores.

--FIGHTERS RELAX--

These photos show Che Guevara when he first arrived clean-shaven and slightly bald. Guevara has been missing for some years and is reported to have been on a mysterious revolutionary mission. The photos bear this out. Subsequent photos show him with a heavy beard. Most of the photos also show him smoking a pipe.

There are various photos of guerrillas chopping wood, cooking, reclining in hammocks.

Captured were two Uruguayan passports, no. 130748 and no. 130220, in the name of Adolfo Mena, the assumed name of Che Guevara. Guevara also was able to forge a special letter of introduction on the stationery of the Bolivian "National Office of Information of the President of the Republic."

This document, allegedly signed by the Director of Press and Information, stated:

"The Director of Press and Information of the President of the Republic present Adolfo Mena, special assistant of the Office of American states, who is effecting a study and acquiring information regarding the social and economic conditions among Bolivian peasants.

"The Director orders national authorities and requires all civilians and institutions to give all information to Adolfo Mena that he may wish to acquire and to facilitate his investigation.

"Signed in La Paz, November 3, 1866 by Lopez Munox, Director of Press and Information."

Director Lopez Munoz had never seen or signed such a document, but the Castro network was so efficient that it was able to secure his stationery and forge his name.

Also captured was a Panamanian passport of the Cuban Minister of Sugar, Gustavo Ricardo Machin, who fought under the nickname of "Alejandro."

One Cuban guerrilla killed was Juan Acuna, a leading Castroite who fought under the nickname "Joaquin." His Panamanian passport no. 65736 was dated Dec. 1, 1965.

Among the informal snapshots taken by the guerrillas around their camp were one or two of Tanya, the Cuban girl killed in mountain skirmishes who had been broadcasting to Bolivian peasants as a Latin American "Tokyo Rose." The photographs show her to be about 30 years of age, with bobbed hair. Her broadcasts indicated that she had a cultivated Castilian accent.

Captured in Bolivia last week was another girl guerrillas nicknamed "Loyola."

All the guerrillas, of which it is estimated there are about 50 left, operate under nicknames, such as "China," "Benigno," "Marcos."

Marcos is the nickname of Roberto Bustos, an Argentinian newspaperman so far not captured. The other newspaperman fighting with the guerrillas, Jules Regis Debray, the French Marxist, has been captured, however, and is now held in a Bolivian prison.

Debray's book has been captured, significantly with notes on the margin by Che Guevara. The book is "Revolution in the Revolution," a manual on how to overthrow Latin American governments.

While fighting in the Bolivian Mountains, Che Guevara himself kept a diary, now captured. It has been carefully compared with his own handwriting, and there is no mistaking its authenticity. Snapshopts of Che Guevara have been blown up and compared with photographs taken during his earlier days with Castro in Havana. They show an identical facial details.

So far the Cuban guerrillas have been almost totally unsuccessful in their attempt to win support from Bolivian peasants, most of them Indians. Only two Bolivians are known to have gone over to the guerrillas, Coco Peredo and another whose nickname is "Inti." Intelligence information picked up from captured Cubans indicates that the two Bolivians have been used chiefly to carry supplies, not as fighters.

Also captured was a small flag with Fidel Castro's picture at the top and the Cuban and Bolivian flags linked together. The flag bears the motto "Country Or Death."

An Editor's Outlook

By Jenkin Lloyd Jones

ON TORTURED IMAGES

by Jenkin Lloyd Jones

TIME was when, as far as the American stage and screen were concerned, there were no Negroes who were not comics or boobs.

It is true that in minstrel show days some of the blackfaced end men exhibited homespun sagacity in their broad and bucolic jokes, but it was sagacity of a low order.

In the Keystone Kop era the Negro was the man who rolled his eyes wildly and dived out the window after he mistook the character who had fallen in the mortar tub for a ghost.

D. W. Griffith's "Birth of a Nation" was heavily larded with Griffith's Confederate prejudices, and irresponsible Negroes were put down only by the timely arrival of the heroic Ku Klux Klan.

Altogether, it was a sad period, and the cause of justice in drama had heavy going in the face of smug white supremacy.

BUT things have changed recently. They have changed radically.

Today on television and in the movies there appear to be no Negroes who (1) do not talk like Harvard professors or (2) are not obvious victims of white - imposed deprivations. In the rare instances where they are depicted as transgressing laws they do so only in agony. The war movie is now common where the Negro GI decides that in spite of what his white buddies have done to him he will save them all, anyway.

From the unbelievably stupid Negro we have proceeded to the unbelievably admirable Negro. This question now should be asked: will the perpetuation of unbelievable images aid, in the long run, real interracial understanding?

THERE is also a question whether some injustice is not now being visited upon white citizens. Last year I wandered into a criminal court of Los Angeles County. Of 31 men being arraigned 21 were Negroes and five were Latin Americans. This was not far off the average. Last year Negroes committed 6.3% of Los Angeles felonies.

Yet on the Jack Webb Dragnett program, presumably written around the Los Angeles Police Department, when has there been a Negro criminal? All the killing, raping and rascality is laid to discernible native - born whites.

IT may be argued that in an overwhelmingly white country a white villain is not looked on as a white man, but merely as a villain. Whereas, if a Negro showed up as a villain the majority of viewers would subconsciously tell themselves "Negro - plus-villain."

This is a pretty good argument. But Negro organizations are not content to let white men serve as symbols of all men in honest or heroic roles. They demand the placement of specific Negro heroes.

And what should happen to drama concerning a city like Washington, D. C., where whites are now in the minority? Should the Negro then become the generic symbol for "man" and take over all the villainious chores?

SAMMY DAVIS JR. has said there will never be true equality until there is a Negro heavy.

The Beverly Hills - Hollywood branch of the NAACP last month had an award banquet for those studios which had cast Negroes as heroic or executive types. But there was no move to take over a share of the villainy.

Any effort to cure old prejudices by inventing a new form of folklore may defeat itself. Unbelievability creates rage and frustration among the suspicious and excitable and gives rise to the feeling that a form of brainwashing is being tried.

It is a question how long Hollywood and television can portray the average Southern sheriff as a flabby, perspiring mass of hateful prejudices while they can find nothing in life resembling Stokely Carmichael or H. Rap Brown. It is going to be hard to blame Alabamians for all future Detroits and Newarks. The credibility gap can widen to the point where the bridge to racial understanding will fall into it.

Maybe we'd better desegregate the villain business.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

LABOR GOES TO LUNCH

In Unreported White House Gathering, LBJ Asserts He Can Beat Republicans Now or in 1968 Despite Polls

Washington, D. C.: -- Others may doubt. But not Lyndon Johnson. He believes he could defeat George Romney, or any other Republican, if the election were run today. But until 1968 he's not worrying about reelection--and "maybe not even then."

With intense conviction he believes the U.S is winning militarily in Vietnam. Whimsically, he says that if the "peace" critics would just keep still for one month -- and thus convince Hanoi there is no massive rebellion against the Presidential policies -- the peace-now bloc would get exactly what it's seeking. Namely, negotiations.

All this and more, the President imparted, in simple passion, like a man torn asunder, during a remarkably intimate unreported White House Luncheon Friday, Sept. 15

It was held in the upstairs private family dining room, which seems natural since the men who gathered about him that day truly are his closest allies and friends -- the executive leaders of American labor.

Crowded around the four tables which filled the "small" room were the men on whom he will have to count for powerful support next year on the industrial as well as the political fronts. They were "family" all right. Mrs. Johnson, who drifted in from time to time, knew many of them by first name. At Table Three where sat President Johnson, George Meany, and AFL-CIO vice presidents Joe Bierne, Max Greenberg and Dave Sullivan, the talk was family talk. Some of the labor leaders pointed out they were well up on the president. Meany has 14 grandchildren; Joe Bierne has 13 and the president merely one but lots of hopes.

When the shrimp, wine and dessert were gone, the President said he was there to listen, not talk. There were no takers or talkers. Then the President opened up. He was misunderstood at home and abroad, averred he as he talked brother to brother -- even to such a recent opponent as the Machinists' Roy Siemiller, the daringly militant leader of the railroad and airline machinists who sat over at Hubert Humphrey's Table One. Friendly "enemies," other and said nothing about the rail strike emergency law which had divided the two of them.

At one point the President reached into his jacket pocket and pulled out clips of the popularity poll stories. They say I'm slipping, said he. So is George Romney. I could defeat him now. It's good to have these polls, he added. They keep a man in this seat from getting to think he's perfect. They show what the people think. But no man should appease. He should lead. Each president who had a shooting war on his hands had the same problem. There was Woodrow Wilson, Franklin Roosevelt and Harry Truman. Dissent is fine, continued the President. But he knows what the Communist Chinese are telling Hanoi, he added. Peking is saying that the Americans are divided; that the people are opposed to the President and that if Ho Chi Minh will just hold out, the U. S. will yield and go away.

We are winning militarily. There is no feud between Defense Secretary McNamara and General Wheeler. They're still a good working team. It was "I who ordered the bombings of North Vietnamese harbors," said he. And not just recently, but long ago. And "I set the conditions." If the peace crowd would only go silent for a month, the war would be over, he asserted once more

Then he referred to the polls again. The say I'm slipping, he said. Okay. So is Romney. Look at the record, he advised. The government is spending more "dollars" on education than it was when he assumed the presidency -- which means when he took over from John Kennedy.

He's being blamed wrongly for the riots, he continued. But he's doing something about that. He's trying to get at crime in the streets and push through anti-gun legislation. But there's a "hardness developing" in Congress. It is now difficult to get little things through. Then he disgressed on Sen. Wayne Morse.

"You guys have Morse figured wrong," said the President. "He is the best fellow I have up there. He's helped on aid to education, civil rights. We don't agree on foreign policy. But I can't blame him for that. The guy is entitled to a night off."

As for Sen. Fulbright, every wartime president had his difficulties with the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

For almost two hours he poured his heart out to his friends. They left at four o'clock, with the feeling that the President firmly believed the administration was "way ahead" and the people were with him though again and again he had said he was being misunderstood abroad and at home.

They had come to talk about labor matters, Southern textile firms bucking the NLRB, taxes and urban crises.

But they had stayed to listen to the travail of a brother. He talked their language. They will talk his wherever they go.

Carolyn Diana Heimann Says Vows With James A. Gwaltney

COOL VALEY -- Miss Carolyn Diana Heimann and James Alan Gwaltney were married in a double ring ceremony Aug. 26 at 7 p.m. at the Christ Memorial Baptist church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Heimann of Florissant and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gwaltney, route two, Sikeston.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Bill Little, formerly of Gideon. The organist, Miss Donna Lane of St. Louis, accompanied Glenn Newman, also of St. Louis, as he sang "Because" and "Whither Thou Goest."

The altar was decorated with palms and floral arrangements of white chrysanthemums and gladioli.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of gardenia white Chantilly lace. It was designed with a fitted bodice, a portrait neckline, and long tapered sleeves. The sheath skirt was re-embroidered with seed pearls, and had a softly flowing train. The bouffant veil of imported silk illusion was attached to a cluster of lace petals, trimmed with pearls and crystals. She carried a cascading bouquet of white cocktail orchids, stephanotis, and variegated ivy.

Miss Catherine Hildebrandt of Florissant was maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Mrs. Laura Searcy of Florissant, and Miss Cheryl Vaucher of Ferguson. They were attired in pale yellow, princess styled, floor-length gowns, and carried large cascading bouquets of white daisy pompons with yellow centers. Their headdresses were yellow bows attached to short veils.

The groom chose as his best man, his brother, Thomas Gwaltney, Jr. of Ypsilanti, Mich. Groomsmen were the bride's brother, J. D. Heimann of Florissant and Thomas Haire of Sikeston. The men wore tuxedos with white carnation boutonnieres.

Presiding at the guest book was Mrs. Thomas Gwaltney, Jr. She wore a blue and white dress with matching accessories and a white carnation corsage.

The bride's mother wore a sheath dress of olive green lace with matching accessories. Mrs. Gwaltney chose a two piece dress of beige lace with matching accessories. Both mothers wore corsages of white orchids.

A reception was held following the wedding at the Airport Hall where refreshments were catered, and a band furnished music. A three tiered wedding cake carried out the bride's color scheme.

After a short honeymoon, the couple is living at Belton, near Richards-Gebaur air force base where Gwaltney is serving in the air force.

Among out of town guests at the wedding were Mrs. Jean Hogan and son, Kevin of Cape Girardeau, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Barrow of Peoria, Ill.; and Misses Anne and Karen Gwaltney, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gwaltney, Jr. of Ypsilanti, Mich.

BULLDOGS ENJOY BLUEJAY MEAT

By Ron Jaynes

CHARLESTON -- It was a sad night in the old town last night as the arch football rival, the Sikeston Bulldogs, scurried away with a devastating 27-0 northern conference footbal victory before a capacity crowd and kept it's undefeated record intact.

Signs were carried around the field before the game and at half to encourage Bluejay victory but Sikeston's Bulldogs were determined to add another triumph to their long list over the Jays last night and seem well on their way to another 17-year reign.

Charleston surprised the Bulldogs the last time a Bill Sapp crew visited the Jays home nest, 6-0, and ended a 17-year winning reign.

The victory was sparked by Fullback Eddie Felker's two touchdown runs and the punting of Mike Garner, who kept the Jays deep in their own territory with a 46-yard average per punt.

Sikeston's defense shut down the aerial circus of Charleston's Charlie Babb and the team moved into a lead after both teams displayed stingy defense in the first quarter.

Charleston's first period threat, if there was one, was checked by 40 yards in penalties.

Coach Herbert Marshall's flock was undefeated and unscored before going into last night's battle and was the surprise to many are gridiron enthusiasts before crumbling at the hands of Sikeston.

The Jays held Sikeston in its first real threat on their five-yard line for three plays and then nailed Bulldog signal caller Bruce Farris for an 18-yard loss on the fourth down.

Sikeston's next attempt didn't fail as the Dogs drove 36 yards after a short Charleston punt in nine plays, highlighted by a 14-yard pass play from Farris to Garner. Felker plunged over left tackle from one yard out for a touchdown and Webb Edwards converted for a 7-0 lead.

Charleston's only threat came in the closing seconds of the first half. The Jays Mark Carlisle intercepted a Farris pass and returned it to the five-yard line, where the clock ended the action.

The first half was dominated by both squads' defense, 60 yards in penalties on Charleston and 40 on Sikeston.

After an intermission huddle with Mentor Bill Sapp, Sikeston struck with two third period touchdowns and tightened its defensive hold for a 21-0 lead going into the final stanza.

Sikeston's Turner Marshall, who turned in an oustanding job on defense, picked up a fumble on the 41-yard line after the opening kickoff, enabling the Dogs to drive in for a touchdown in nine plays as Farris connected on a 20-yard pass play to Bob McCord. Edwards converted for a 14-0 lead.

Another Charleston fumble, three plays later, after the kickoff was picked up by Mike Thrower. It enabled the Dogs to surge in on four plays on Felker's second TD of the game, this time from seven yards out. Edwards converted to end the third period scoring.

Riley Gross turned in an outstanding performance on defense for the Dogs and checked possible Charleston TD stroll late in the third period.

Art Jackson scored the final TD of the game midway in the fourth period as the Dogs drove 28 yards on six plays with Jackson going in from 10 yards out. Edwards' extra point attempt was wide.

The Bulldogs speedster, left halfback Dennis Snelling had two TDs called back on penalties.

Farris connected with the speedster on a 26-yard TD play and a 15 yarder.

Coach Sapp was pleased with the performance and commented "It was a better overall team effort than in our two previous outings."

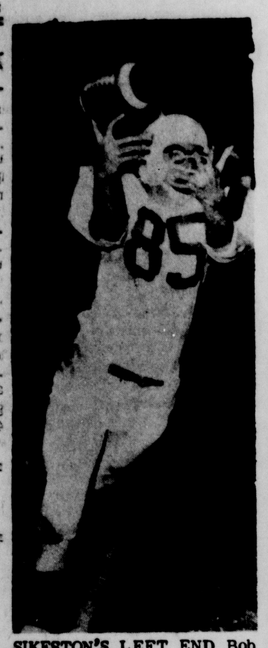

Sikeston posted a 28-0 conference victory over the Jays at public school stadium last year.

Charleston was held to 135 yards on passing and 84 rushing while the Dogs rushed for 232 and passed for 107.

The statistics:

Sikeston		Charleston
14	First Downs	7
120	Penalties	90
9	Pass completed	9
9	Pass incomplete	10
323	Rushing	84
31	Lost rushing	13
107	Passing yardage	135

Central's Tigers Strike Seventh Ranked Mayfield

SIKESTON'S LEFT END Bob McCord lunges for a sideline pass thrown by Quarterback Bruce Farris in Friday night's football game. Sikeston defeated Charlestn, 27-0.

MAYFIELD, Ky. -- Cape Girardeau Central high school Tigers of Missouri used points after touchdown to check Kentucky's seventh ranked football team last night, 14-12.

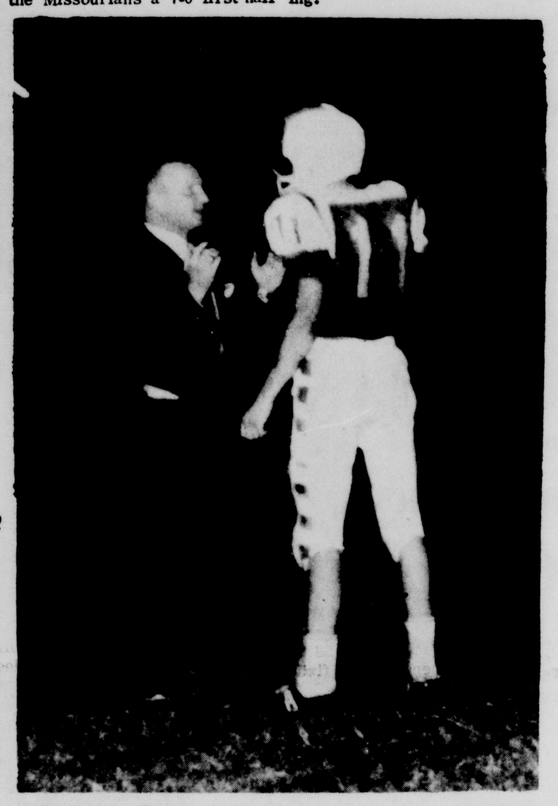

Cape surged ahead after both teams fought through a scoreless first period. Jim Powell plunged in from the three for Mayfield as Mark Stuart hauled in a two-yard Pat Godwin pass in the closing seconds of the first half.

Cape moved 66 yards in 41 seconds for the paydirt. Stuart also converted the extra point to give the Missourians a 7-6 first half lead.

Cape's Kim Godwin ran in from the 10-yard line in the third and Stuart converted the extra point for a 14-6 lead.

Mayfield moved across in the fourth on Powell's six yard run. A Cape misplay set up the score as a bad snap from center on a punt attempt forced the punter to run. He was nailed at the 10.

Cape held Mayfield on the five-yard line after the Kentuckians used an onside kick to get control of the ball. Cape's defense eld and the offense took control of the ball with 21 seconds remaining.

QUARTERBACK CHARLIE BABB of the Charleston Bluejays talks things over with coach Herb Marshall during a time out in the football game last night. Sikeston won 27-0.

Portageville Buffs Chaffee

-- CHAFFEE -- The Portageville Bulldogs put themselves back on the winning football road last night after losing to Dexter the week before.

The Bulldogs took a resounding triumph from the Chaffee Red Devils, 27-7.

Pat Scherer opened the scoring for the Dogs on a four-yard run. Dennis Fisher missed connections on the extra point attempt.

Both squads tallied in the second period. Kirk Stuart completed the first-half scoring for the Bulldogs on a nine-yard run. The point after touchdown was good by Fisher.

Chaffee's touchdown came in the second quarter. Tom Little plunged one-yard for the touchdown. Tom Steimle kicked the extra point leaving the margin of six points at the half.

Two touchdowns were chalked up for Portageville in the third period. David Studia hauled in an 18-yard pass from Kirk Stuart for six more points. Mike Musick raced 42 yards and was brought down on the one-yard line. He tallied on the next play climaxing the Bulldog scoring. Fisher booted the final point of the game.

Portageville dominated the statistics. The Dogs completed five of 11 passes for 77 yards while Chaffee managed only one completion out of 10 tries, good for nine yards.

Rushing yardage amounted to 219 for the Bulldogs while the Red Devils drove for only 103 yards.

Mules Still Kicking

PERRYVILLE -- Poplar Bluff maintained its lead in footabll points scored in the northern division last night, beating the Pirates of Perryville, 27-7. The Mules racked up points in every quarter.

Quarter back Ben Wyatt threw a 42-yard touchdown pass to John Piper to initate the Mules' scoring. Wyatt kicked the extra point.

In the second period Leroy Moss scampered 48 yards for a touchdown. Quarterback Wyatt connected again on the point after touchdown.

Fullback John Brown scored in the third and fourth quarters on 10 and one-yard drives. Brown tallied his last touchdown from one-yard out after carrying the ball for 15 yards and being stopped on the one.

Jim Taylor led Perryville's scoring with a six-yard plunge. Mike Gotto split the uprights for the extra point.

Statisticswise, Perryville looked better. The Pirates had 23 first downs to 20 for the Mules. The Mules punted only once as the Pirates had to boot the ball three times.

The Mules capitalized on the ground as their rushers gained 284 yards. The Pirates only managed half as much. Perryville lost one fumble but Bluff had 190 yards in penalties called against them.

RIGHT END MIKE GARNER is met by Charleston Safety Charlie Babb after gaining yardage. Sikeston football won the contest, 27-0.

Dexter Takes Sole Possession In South

DEXTER -- In an exciting football game that could have gone either way, the Dexter Bearcats came up on the winning end as they defeated Caruthersville, 20-16.

Both teams had numerous chances to score but failed to find paydirt when the opportunity presented itself in the final quarter. The Bearcats remained undefeated and moved into sole possession of the southern conference lead.

Dexter took an early first quarter lead as Jeff Cox connected on a 22-yard pass play to Jerry Darby. Ron Atherton kicked the extra point.

In the second period Cox threw to Gale Miller covering three yards. The point after touchdown attempt failed.

Caruthersville broke into the scoring column in the second quarter. Second string Fullback Steve McKaskle ran for 20 yards and six points. Mike Fisher booted the extra point.

The Bearcats ended their scoring in the final period when Gail Miller took an intercepted pass for 23 yards and the touchdown. Atherton made good the PAT.

The Tigers claimed seven of their nine points in the fourth quarter on a 17-yard run by Don Smith. Extra point was made by Mike Fisher.

The Bearcat team used a bit of cleverness in giving two points to the Tigers. In the closing minutes of the game Caruthersville punted the ball dead on the Bearcat three-yard line. Dexter decided to take a safety rather than risk a fumble or intercepted pass. This maneuvering enabled the cats to put Caruthersville back in their own territory with the kick forced upon them by the safety.

PERTH, Australia (AP) – A broad American accent floated over the tourist coach loudspeaker in North-West Australia.

"Don't forget to holler if you want to take any pictures. You probably won't see scenery like this again," said coach driver Bob Ranney.

Ranney left Pheonix, Arizona with his blonde wife Candy in 1966, and arrived in Western Australia last April.

They have teamed up as coachdriver and hostess to show Australian tourists 1,000 miles of rugged North-West.

His wife, who travels through the red landscapes dotted with male colonies – but with very few women – is referred to by tourists as the "Princess of the North."

"It's just marvellous. I love every minute on tour," she told a reporter.

"We saw a newspaper advertisement a man and wife wanted."

The Ranneys did one trial run as passengers, and then the tough seven-day safari was all theirs.

Overnight they stop at sheep and cattle stations. Ranney is first out of the bus, helps his passengers unload bedding, and starts the shearing shed kitchen fire.

White Sparks Indian Victory At East Prairie

EAST PRAIRIE -- The Hayti North Indians swept past the East Prairie Eagles last night, 12-2. Hayti tallied all of its scores in the second period while the Eagles managed their only points in the fourth quarter.

Both of rhe Indian touchdowns were made within three minutes of the half. Jerry White scored both times, on 10 and six - yard plunges.

With nine minutes to go in the game Jerry Barker blocked a Hayti punt in the end zone for two points.

HILLSBORO, Ill. AP -- A 16-year-old Nashville, Ill., football player died in a Hillsboro hospital Friday night after he was benched with a head injury in a high school football game at Nokomis, Ill.

Dead was Tom Luczaj, a junior fullback for Nashville which beat Nokomis 18-6.

NIXES WITCHES' BRITCHES

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (AP) – A New Zealand women's hockey team selector has declared war on mini-skirts and witches' britches on the playing fields.

She says girls NOT having proper length uniforms – no more than six inches from the ground when kneeling, – will be sent to the sideline.

Witches' britches, (usually in gay colors, are made of stretch material, with legs which come part way down the thighs) she says, makes a girl self-conscious at a time when she should be concentrating on her play.

"A girl racing after the ball," she says, "should NOT have to steady down while she hitches up her britches."

LEBANON, Ky. (AP) – One of George Trotter's friends telephoned the hospital and announced "I'm bringing my wife in. She's going to have a baby."

"Is this her first baby?" asked the nurse.

"Of course not," the distraught father shouted. "This is her husband."

Jackson Claims Battle of Indians

KENNETT -- Because two tribes of Indians met on the Kennett football field last night was no indication that both celebrated a pow - wow.

The Jackson squad edged the Kennett tribe, 25 - 20, in a tough northern conference battle.

Kennett accumulated points in the first and last quarters while Jackson scored in every period but the third.

Tom Reed cashed in a 36 - yard pass for six points from Ed McKinney. The extra - point attempt failed. Steve Walsh scored in the first period on a 39 - yard dash. Greg Buys connected on the point after touchdown.

Late in the first period Billie Lewis ran for one - yard and six points.

In the second quarter Bill Lewis hauled in a Ron Ashman pass for a touchdown. Ashman also scored on a 73 - yard run. Don Sanders ran for the extra point, leaving the score at the half 19-13.

Both teams held each other in the third quarter. No one hit pay dirt.

Early in the final period Greg Buys plunged from the one-yard line for a TD. He booted the kick. This tally gave the Kennett squad a slim one - point lead in the final quarter.

Jackson didn't score again until Ashman dived for a one-yard touchdown with less than two minutes remaining.

Waves Wash Bulldogs

MALDEN -- The Green Waves ran away with a 45-6 football victory over Gideon.

They maintained a 33 - point advantage at the half.

The Gideon team was unable to hit pay dirt until the final quarter, when Ron Lowery passed to Eddie Smart for a touchdown.

In the scoring column for the Green Waves were Carl Barker, three touchdowns, Jim Hoehn with two TDs and Clarence Walker and Randy Pace with six. Mark Norrid kicked three extra points.

ST. LOUIA AP -- Arthur Godfrey, a man more noted for his radio and television style than for his ice skating, will headlin the St. Louis hockey Blues' opening night pre-game show.

Sidney Salomon Jr., president of the Blues announced Friday that Godfrey, Guy Lombardo and his Royal Canadians, and singer Anna Maria Alberghetti will headline the show. The Blues open their season Oct. 11 in St. Louis against the Minnesota North Stars.

Want a romantic look in your bedroom all the year? One that conjurs up thoughts of gardens, summer houses and the like? Adopt a trellis theme with potted plants or trees, flowered carpet and even a garden bench.

If you've always wanted a four poster, consider turning your old bed into one with a trellis canopy. A foot-high frame supported by tall poles (circular) at four corners of the bed, and presto, you'll be dreaming in a summer house this winter. The poles can be hidden by draperies at the corners.

A do-it-yourselfer may rebel at the trellis idea as being too involved. But if he's willing to make a frame of plywood, you're in. Just cover it with trellis paper, and the effect will be just as much fun. The trellis theme, real or paper, can be continued on a wall panel or wall in the room, and it'll be perfect background for your favorite climbing plant. (If there is a man in the house, play it in easy stages.)

Many people frown on carpet in the living area, but in the bedroom it can be lush, besides providing floor warmth on cold winter nights.

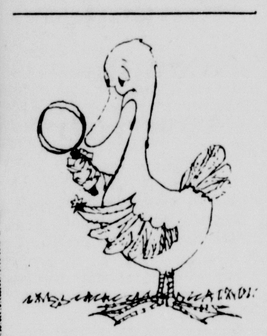

It's an ideal time to buy bedroom carpet – the American Carpet Institute is launching a "carpet your bedroom month" because research has shown that so few people (about 38 per cent) have carpet or rug in the master bedroom. So there's every sort of pattern and color to entice you.

In an old house, carpet offers a great answer to the question, "What shall we do about these old floors?" There are old floors and old floors. And all old floors aren't the kind you want to preserve and keep waxed for 150-year-old throw rugs. Unattractive floors with large cracks harbor dust and dirt, which rises constantly to coat moldings, walls and corners.

People talk of taking up old floors and renewing them, but a cheaper and simpler solution is laying carpet. A heavy pad can be put over floors that have been made as level as possible where they sag before putting the carpet. Besides hiding an ugly floor, carpet will make the room cleaner.

IT'S SPRING AND SUMMER all year in this cheerful bedroom with trellis canopy, gold floral rug by Mohawk and leaf green, yellow and rust accents against white walls.

The smallest known flowering plant is the duckweed, which is about 1/50th of an inch long and 1/63rd of an inch wide.

Q—What is the female of the peacock called?
A—The peahen.

HUEYCOBRA: Destination Vietnam

FORT RUCKER, Ala. (ANF)—A sleek and speedy new helicopter called the AH-1G HUEYCOBRA is now taking its final examinations at the U.S. Army Aviation Test Board, Fort Rucker, Ala.

The HUEYCOBRA has greater range, speed, and firepower than previous Army helicopters. Since it has been developed from other models of the HUEY series, incorporating the same transmission, engine and rotor system as the UH-1B, no special training will be necessary for pilots when the HUEYCOBRA is deployed.

Following "graduation" the HUEYCOBRA will be deployed to Vietnam. This should be by the latter part of this year or in early 1968.

In the meantime, it is the job of the test pilots and engineers at the Test Board to evaluate all systems of the new helicopter under all possible conditions.

The object of the testing program is to submit the new AH-1G to even more rigorous schedules than other helicopters are now flying in Vietnam. For example, at Yuma, Ariz., where the Test Board will soon examine the HUEYCOBRA's weapons systems, the HUEYCOBRA is scheduled to fire 2 million rounds of 7.62 mm ammunition and 15,000 2.75 mm rockets.

When the time comes for the HUEYCOBRA to go into combat the Test Board wants to be sure the helicopter is absolutely ready.

The HUEYCOBRA is built by the Bell Helicopter Company of Fort Worth, Texas.

Town Refurbished, but ...

TOURIST SEASON SLOW IN FLORENCE

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

FLORENCE (AP)—When American interior designers arrived here on the third lap of their recent cultural tour, they were surprised to find this town had been dried out, polished and back to normal after November's disastrous floods.

Artisans, hoping to recoup losses suffered in November's flood were stocked with leather, fabrics and other handicrafts for which they are noted. High-water marks along buildings were about the only indication of floods, but the tourist season was getting a late start.

Some Florentine residents speculated that too much publicity had been given to a few anti-American demonstrations but as Consul General Joseph Wheeler pointed out in an interview, "There have been a few, but the same type of Viet Nam demonstration has occurred in other areas of the world."

There was certainly no trace of the feeling that prompted the tossing of an egg at Vice President Hubert Humphrey and splattered Wheeler's suit, "and was unfortunately overpublicized," Wheeler said.

"It was thrown by someone from another town. The Vice President had a wonderful time here and had nice receptions by many people."

Wheeler was hopeful that Florence would enjoy a good tourist season as "they have done a magnificent job of restoring the city, museums, shops and priceless works of art with American and international help. What Florence needs now is business," he said, pointing out that they have accepted loans and replaced inventories in anticipation of it.

Mayor Pietro Bargellini, 69, well-known art historian and author, said in an interview that Florence was suffering a slight recession, due to the Middle East situation in his opinion, but it will come back slowly.

"There is a tremendous tourist industry here. It is our main industry and without it Florence wouldn't exist.

"Americans have done much for us in the way of charity; but, we need them to come and buy goods. All our hotels are operating and we have two new ones."

In 1966, there were 271,944 guests from the United States visiting Florence, one-third of all foreign visitors.

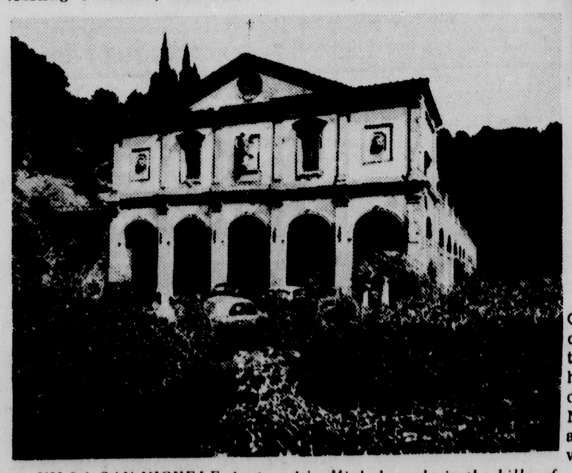

"From a tourist standpoint everything is back to normal, except the unattractive Santa Croce area where I live myself; but it is not a tourist attraction anyway," said the mayor.

There have been too many rumors about after-flood conditions in the opinion of Baron Max De Reutern, half-brother of Prince Serge Obolensky of New York. He helps operate the famed Villa San Michele, designed by Michelangelo, 600 feet high in the hills of Florence. The former monastery was taken by Napoleon in 1820 and is classed among Italian National trust monuments. It is furnished in 15th and 16th century Tuscan furniture and was converted for tourists by the owners, French banker Lucien Tessiers and his wife, Maura Boylan of Dublin.

Many hotels have had cancellations of reservations that had been made since the flood, indicating, as one hotel source pointed out, that "something besides flood, weather and war is responsible."

A NIGHT IN FLORENCE ... Fashion creators Emilio Pucci, Battista Giorgini and Franco Scalamandre of silk fame join Mrs. Frederick Reinhardt, wife of the U.S. Ambassador to Italy, at a dinner given for the National Society of Interior Designers.

VILLA SAN MICHELE designed by Michelangelo in the hills of Florence waits for tourists.

Olive Oil, Leather Prices Up

FLORENCE, Italy (AP) – Olive oil is going up in price because Italians are abandoning their little farm houses in the hills of Tuscany, Umbria and other areas, says architect Niccolo Rucellai of Florence, and "no machine has been invented that can pick olives."

Leather handbags are high in price because calves are on a special diet to make them grow faster, says Paul Gucci, who manufactures some of the world's finest leather shoes and handbags.

It seems that growing fast makes their veins bigger, and when the leather is used in a fine article, much of it must be discarded.

Eagleton Enters Race Officially

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Lt. Gov. Thomas F. Eagleton today formally entered the Democratic primary for U. S. senator, against Missouri's junior senator Edward V. Long of Bowling Green.

Eagleton said he would conduct an active and vigorous campaign but would confine it to the problems of Missouri and the nation— not to the troubles besetting Long.

Long has been under fire for having accepted what he called referral fees from Morris Shenker of St. Louis, attorney for convicted Teamster Union boss James R. Hoffa.

Long filed earlier for renomination. Eagleton announced some time ago but delayed his actual filing until today, his mother's birthday.

Also in the race is Dorsey Bass, a Columbia businessman.

The Prayer

From The Upper Room

No one can say "Jesus is Lord" except by the Holy Spirit.

(I Corinthians 12:3, RSV)

PRAYER: Jesus Christ, our Lord, we believe in Thee, and that means we need Thee. In our daily life reveal Thyself as Master and Lord of all. Help us to be obedient servants, whose desire is always to do Thy will. In Thy name and for Thy sake. Amen.

Paducah Man Store Manager

Ann Landers

Adults Can't Be Tied to Parents

Dear Ann Landers: My husband has been offered an excellent promotion but it means we must leave this city where we both have family. Both sets of grandparents adore our children. When my parents heard of the promotion they were happy for him and offered their congratulations.

My husband's parents, however, have been trying desperately to get him to pass up the opportunity because "money isn't everything." They have pointed out that they will not live forever (an astute observation), and that we would be unspeakably selfish to move from this city and deprive them of the joy of seeing their grandchildren grow up.

I am certain others must have written to you about this problem. What did you tell them? -- BEWILDERED

Dear B.: I told them money isn't everything. There are other things that should be considered -- independence, personal integrity, making sacrifices (such as leaving one's parents) in order to advance professionally or in business.

Children owe their parents respect, consideration and kindness. But they do not owe them their physical presence after they have reached adulthood. Call the van, and good luck to you.

Dear Ann Landers: Last Fall we sent our pretty 18-year-old daughter off to college. We are not well - fixed financially and it was a sacrifice to send her with the proper wardrobe.

By December we learned that she was doing everything besides studying, and I do mean everything. When she came home for Christmas vacation she told me she thought she was pregnant. Fortunately, she was not, but it was a horrible two weeks for both of us.

Because she did not flunk out she felt she should be allowed to return to college. So, after much haranguing, her father and I agreed. How can I be sure she has learned her lesson and will conduct herself in a respectable manner? I am awake nights worrying. -- MOTHER

Dear Mother: You might as well get some sleep, because staying up nights will not help you OR her. By the time a girl goes of the college her pattern of behavior is set. You can do nothing now except hope to heaven the scare taught her something.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 19-year-old guy with an unusual problem. Two years ago I started to grow to love a wonderful girl. We are hoping, God willing, to be married in two or three years. The problem is that she is always sending me small gifts.

I am putting myself through college and I can't afford to buy her anything. It makes me feel like less of a man to be on the receiving end most of the time.

When, out of need, I buy myself a new shirt I feel guilty. I think perhaps I should have spent the money on her. I have tried to explain, but she says she gets pleasure out of buying me things and I should not deprive her of it.

How can I get her to see that all I need is her love? -- THE RECEIVER

Dear Receiver: The girl is obviously a generous sort, and since her gifts are gifts of love and not designed to obligate you, accept them graciously. In return, write her a poem or a warm letter of thanks. Or send her a trinket which costs a dime but has special significance. An imaginative gift can be far more impressive than an expensive one.

Give in or lose him . . . when a guy gives you this line, look out! For tips on how to handle the super sex salesman, check Ann Landers. 35 Per Cent Corn Borer Loss Forecast

COLUMBIA -- A potential corn loss of from 35 to 40 per cent from the southwestern corn borer was forecast today for some Missouri areas by University of Missouri extension entomologists.

Another insect pest to check for is the European corn borer, although it is believed it will not cause excessive field losses.

Also, according to entomologists, the probability of field infestations of the Angoumois grain moth is high. This insect damages stored grain.

The southwestern corn borer has developed into a major problem in those southeastern counties south of Cape Girardeau and to a lesser extent through the southern two tiers of counties, entomologists reported.

A survey of 18 fields in New Madrid County showed 17 were infested with southwestern corn borers. The percentage of stalks infested ranged from about 10 to 71 and averaged about 36 percent. This data should apply to other southeastern counties, entomologists said.

The southwestern corn borer girdles the stalk from inside. Stalks break off near the ground level when they become dry. Wind increases breakage.

Ten to 12 per cent of this stalk breakage has already occurred. On the average, this leaves some 20 to 30 per cent of infested stalks to break off.

Corn on fallen stalks is lost unless used by livestock or hand picked.

Entomologists suggest a course of action to hold down losses in infested areas.

Check for percentage of stalks which are girdled and not yet broken off. Do this by examining a total of 100 plants in three to four locations over the field.

Walk into the field 20 to 25 steps and check either 25 or 33 consecutive plants for girdling. Push on the stalk in the vicinity of the ear zone. If the plant has been girdled it will usually break off.

The number of plants which break represents the percentage of stalk loss yet to come.

If this percentage is 10 or above, it should be profitable to harvest the crop and take the moisture discount rather than waiting for moisture levels to drop.

European corn borers feed and tunnel in stalks and ear shanks. As stalks dry, the weakened ear shanks break and ears fall to the ground. Winds will increase the loss.

Entomologists said that if it is known that European corn borers are heavy in fields, farmers should check 50 to 100 ear shanks for evidence of infestation. If 10 per cent or more of the shanks are infested, then early harvesting is advised.

Field infestation of the Angoumois grain moth may occur across the state, according to entomologists.

Field infestations are more likely to occur on varieties whose ear tips are exposed beyond the shucks. Ear tip damage by birds and other insects also provides easy access for infestation by the moth.

Field infestations of Angoumois usually increase as the moisture percentage decreases.

Entomologists stated that with these points in mind, it is urged that new crop corn be treated with a protectant or inspected monthly and fumigated at the first sign of infestation in storage.

First Bale of Cotton Ginned

HAYTI -- The first bale of 1967 crop cotton in Missouri was ginned Sept. 13 at the Smith Gin in Steele.

The grower picked the 484 pound bale on five and one-half acres of Rex variety planted on April 15.

Cotton continued to mature at a slower than normal rate because of cool temperatures. Bollworms caused damage in some locations.

Some farmers are making plans to defoliate their cotton to prevent bollrot and hasten maturity.

Cool Weather to Persist in Bootheel

By Leonard F. Hand
Meteorologist, Delta Center

PORTAGEVILLE -- Temperatures will continue to average below normal through the middle of October. Rain is expected to total near the seasonal normal and will run above normal in some sections.

Mayor high pressure systems affecting Bootheel weather will move inland from the Pacific ocean and advance across the northern states. Canadian air will not often be a strong influence. During periods of sunny weather, temperatures are likely to be mild rather than chilly.

Low pressure disturbances are expected to develop in the central plains and follow a path across Missouri to the Great Lakes region. Moisture from the Gulf of Mexico will be available to provide rain more regularly than during the first half of September. Rains may not be heavy individually, but will occur in sufficient numbers to add up to near normal or high totals. Cloudy, rainy conditions will contribute to lower temperatures averages.

One factor of unknown dimensions that will weigh heavily upon rainfall accumulations during this period is Hurricane Beulah. Even though hurricanes weaken after moving inland their path and remaining strength draw moisture over the lower Mississippi Valley. Beulah developments will determine the effects on Bootheel weather. The 30-day outlook cannot take into account the effects of other tropical disturbances which might form and eventually move into the picture.

Normal rainfall for the period from mid - September through mid - October over the Bootheel as a whole is 3.27 inches. Normals for individual cities are:

Cape Girardeau 3.40 inches, Caruthersville 3.08 inches, Dexter 3.50 inches, Doniphan 3.51 inches, Sikeston 3.40 inches, Morehouse 3.29 inches, New Madrid 3.25 inches, Parma 3.07 inches and Poplar Bluff 3.36 inches.

Short term averages for other cities are Advance 2.82 inches, Bernie 2.65 inches, Bloomfield 2.91 inches, Charleston 2.69 inches, Clearwater Dam 2.72 inches, Deering 2.20 inches, Kennett 2.75 inches, Malden 2.55 inches, Portageville 2.68 inches, Puxico 2.83 inches, Quin 2.61 inches and Wappapello Dam 2.53 inches.

Most rain during the first half of September was accumulated during the two-day period of rain on Sept. 7 and 8. Precipitation totals for Bootheel cities through Sept. 15 were: Kennett 0.93 inches, Poplar Bluff 1.44 inches, Charleston 1.43 inches, Portageville 1.44 inches, Malden 1.47 inches, Sikeston 0.62 inches, Caruthersville 0.47 inches and University of Missouri Experimental field 0.49 inches.

Neither the temperature nor rain pattern indicated through mid-October is the most beneficial for the cotton crop. Delayed maturity increases possible yield loss to frost. Climatological records show a 50-50 chance for light freeze by Oct. 15 across the northern Bootheel counties and Nov. 20 in the south. Circulation patterns projected through the middle of October indicate little prospect for frost that early.

Cooler than normal temperatures, combined with an outlook for at least normal rainfall, will delay harvesting and provide conditions favorable for bollrot. Much of the late cotton won't be ready for picking until late October. After the first week in October, probabilities of temperatures below 60 degrees rise steadily from 75 per cent to more than 90 per cent by the middle of the month. Timing of defoliant application should be fitted to coincide with warmer periods indicated by the five-day weather outlook. Most efficient leaf drop can be expected when chemicals are applied when nighttime temperatures remain above 60 degrees. Avoid cool, cloudy weather.

Some fields are still heavily populated with insects. If controls are contemplated, farmers should give themselves several hours before rains and watch the wind forecast to avoid drift.

Rains are likely to complicate harvest of remaining corn. Land preparation and planting of wheat and barley can be fitted in between rain periods on many farms. Rainfall still usually exceeds evaporation by about an inch during this period. Many fields can take in that amount into soil storage without causing long delays. There are wet spots, however, which will need maximum advantage from any dry periods.

With cotton harvest expected so late in the season most farmers will have little time to consider the quality advantage of delaying picking until lint moisture is at optimum levels. This is particularly true is periodic rains threaten to interrupt harvest. For that reason, the cotton harvest bulletin issued by the weather bureau agricultural service office in Portageville in most seasons will not be prepared on a daily basis this year. Reference will be made in special releases over the ESSA Weather Wire to Bootheel radio stations, but that will be for informational purposes only.

Girl Struck by Car in Dexter

CHARLESTON -- Debbie Graham, 8, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. "Toots" Graham, was struck by a car and slightly injured Tuesday at 8:25 a.m. while crossing Marshall Street on her way to school.

The child was rushed to St. Mary's Hospital in Cairo in McMikle Ambulance, where she was treated for cuts and bruises on the face and released later in the day. She also suffered loosened teeth and a possible broken nose.

The driver of the vehicle was Elvin Ray Mansfield, 19, an employe of the Leible Service Station on Marshall Street. The car was owned by Jack Carson.

Mansfield told police he was driving 25 miles per hour when "This kid just rang out in front of me and I put on my brakes."

No charges were filed against the driver.

Cafe Owner Not Liable For Parking Lot Crash

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Barney parked his car in a lot behind a diner operated by Ptomaine Pete and pocketed the keys. While he was wary for the safety of his stomach in such a greasy spoon establishment, his real concern should have been for the safety of his car. For after devouring one of Pete's charcoal burned steaks, Barney returned to his car and found it in first crash condition. From its battered appearance, it looked like it had been rammed by a tank.

Weeping over his once - proud car, Barney sued Pete for the sudden demise of his automobile.

"Since I parked it in his lot," Barney told the judge, "it was Pete's duty to take care of it."

"No, it wasn't," answered Pete. "I'm in the restaurant and not the car parking business. I had nothing to do with the lot. It was there merely for the convenience of any customers who wanted to use it."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you let Pete off the griddle?

This is how the judge ruled; Barney didn't recover. The judge held that when a car is parked in a lot provided by a restaurant and the owner retains control of his vehicle, the restaurant proprietor has no duty to protect it. He has merely given his customer a license to park there.

Sticky Problem Delays New I-55 Bridge Opening

ST. LOUIS (AP)— The stuff is sticky, but not that sticky, highway officials explained Thursday as they announced a new Interstate 55 bridge at St. Louis will not be opened Oct. 4.

Officials explained that an epoxy material which is designed to coat the steel deck of the four-lane bridge is not sticking properly. Robert Kronst, East St. Louis district engineer for the Illinois division of highways, declined to estimate when the problem might be licked.

About 180 invitations to ribbon cutting ceremonies at the bridge were mailed Wednesday. A similar number of cancellations will be mailed today.

When the bridge opens it will be the only free bridge across the Mississippi River at St. Louis. The Oct. 4 opening date was scheduled to ease traffic problems in downtown St. Louis during the World Series which is scheduled for Oct. 7, 8 and 9.

Soybean Growers Urged To Line Up Storage

HUDSON, Iowa -- The American Soybean Association urges soybean growers to line up storage space for their crop in advance of combining this year to avoid a market glut and depressed prices during harvest.

Chef Randolph, ASA executive vice president, says in the Midwest with more early hybrids and corn there will be a heavy simultaneous movement of corn and soybeans to market. With corn competing heavily with a record soybean crop for available storage space, there may be at least temporary hardships on storage space and marketing facilities. In the South, soybean acreage has expanded rapidly in recent years and has outrun storage facilities.

Growers should avoid flooding the market, and make sure now they have a place to store their beans if the market dips below the support price at harvest time, Randolph urges. "Farmers can do something about this problem themselves by storing their beans, at least temporarily, to prevent low prices at harvest and provide orderly marketing during the year, he says."

She was born in Sikeston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Elkins, and moved to California in 1911.

Surviving is her husband, who is an uncle of Mrs. Garwood Sharp of Sikeston; and one daughter, Mrs. Don Higginbotham, Norwalk.

Services will be in Norwalk Monday.

Professors in religion departments should be professors, not counselors or ministers; their ties with the campus ministers should be no closer than those of professors of law with lawyers. (At this time, when departments of religion are relatively new, perhaps the separation should be even sharper.) An occasional talk to the new, perhaps the separation should be even sharper.) An occasional talk to the various campus religious groups, as to the fraternities of peace groups, may be in order. But good teaching is the primary task; like any other art, it is holy in itself.

On The Fence Row

By Tom Brown

BLOOMFIELD - Approximately 70 persons heard Edward Constien, extension agricultural engineer from the University of Missouri college of agriculture, discuss recommended soybean harvesting practices and saw the results of harvesting soybeans with combines in various stages of adjustment at the soybean harvesting meeting held on the George Hampton farm near Dexter.

Four different makes of combines were used to demonstrate proper harvesting practices. Harvesting losses calcualted from beans on the ground following the combines ranged from 13/4 bushels per acre following a properly-adjusted combine to six bushels per acre lost by one combine before it had been properly adjusted.

Constien stressed the importance of proper combine adjustment and operation. It was pointed out that results of research conducted in Iowa showed an average loss of 51/2 bushels of soybeans per acre in beans that produced 33 bushels per acre, a loss of approximarely $14 per acre at present bean prices.

As a first step, Constien stressed the importance of the proper repair and adjustment of the combine prior to harvest tiem. He recommended adjusting the combine according to the manufacturer's recommendations as found in the operator's manual. He also stressed the importance of the operator's becoming axquainted with adjustments that might need to be made in the field and how to make them quickly to save "dawn time" after harvest begins.

The engineer stated that cutter bar losses account for 80% of total soybean harvest losses. He recommended operating the combine with the cutter bar not over four inches above the ground where possible, and stated that every inch it is raised above the ground means the loss of another bushel of beans per acre.

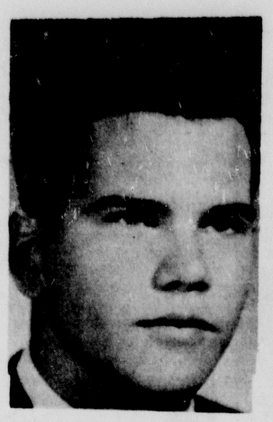

Constien also reminded farmers in attendance that running the combine reel too fast will cause shattering and losses of soybeans. He recommended running the reel so that the top speed is about the same as the combine ground speed. He suggested checking the number of soybeans left on the ground behind the combine and using this loss as a guide to combine adjustment. According to his figures, the loss of three to four beans per square foot means the loss of one bushel of beans per acre.

According to the engineer, werious bean losses also result from improper conclave - cylinder clearance and cylinder speed. Conclave - cylinder clearance should be set according to recommendations found in the operator's manual and is not normally changed as the moisture content of beans changes. Recommended cylinder speeds for the combine are also found in the operator's manual and should be changed as moisture content of the beans changes. Cylinder speeds should be increased for beans of high moisture content and decreased as beans dry out. The cylinder speed should be adjusted to thresh beans cleanly without cracking them.

Constien mentioned several common causes of soybean harvest losses and pointed out causes for each. Grain over the straw rack is caused by improper rack speed, cylinder breaking up too much material, or plugged rack openings. Grain over the sieve is caused by over-loading, improper engine speed, improper wind blast, improper sieve openings, or plugged sieve. Trash in the grain bin can be caused by over - threshing, over - loading, sieve open tood wide, or insufficient wind blast. Cracked beans are caused by the beans being too dry, insufficient conclave-cylinder clearance, excessive cylinder speed, or beans running over the screen into the return auger.

He stressed the importance of taking steps to prevent harvest losses in weedy fields of beans. According to him, one of the most important things that can be done is to "slow down". If the cylinder wraps from heavy weed growth or tough beans, reduce the forward speed of the combine, increase the cylinder speed, and increase beater speed.

Constien recommended beginning soybean harvest as soon as the moisture content of the beans is 13 to 14%, as 14% is the maximum moisture content of the imum moisture content for safe storage of beans. He also suggusted striving to complete harvest before the moisture content reaches 10%, as harvest losses increase rapidly after moisture content reaches this point.

Home Economist Wins U.S. Award for Baby Sitter Clinics

COLUMBIA--Miss Mary Emma Hulshof, Ste. Genevieve, extension home exonomist in Ste. Genevieve county, is one of eight persons in the nation named to receive the Florence Hall Award.

The award is presented annually through the National Association of Extension Home Economists during the organization's annual meeting.

The award, including a check for $200, will be presented to Miss Hulshof October 25 in Jackson, Miss.

Miss Florence Hall, a regional field agent with the federal extension service, established the award in 1952 to recognize outstanding activities or projects of home demonstration agents.

Miss Hulshof was recognized for her success in organizing and carrying out baby sitting clinics.

She gathered resources material, and secured the assistance of other persons to put together a meaningful program. Cooperating in the training were the county health nurse, a county child welfare aide, county sheriff, city police chief, and city fire chief.

The training program provided instruction resulting in proficient baby sitters, and also prepared girls for future employment in other occupations by helping them learn responsibility, to be on time, and to be adaptable to situations.

Her first clinic was held in 1963. Sixty girls were graduated from the initial class. Successvie clinics swelled the total to about 330 graduates.

Clinics patterned on Miss Hulshof's idea have been conducted in more than 20 Missouri counties. After a story about her clinics appeared in a publication for extension workers, requests for the teaching material she designed came from throughout the United States and Canada.

Her extension career began in September, 1961 with appointment as home agent in training in St. Francois county. She became Ste. Genevieve county extension home economist in January of 1962.

For 10 years following high school graduation she was employed at Farmers Bank, Portageville. She resigned to enter Southeast Missouri State College at Cape Girardeau where she earnes a Bachelor of Science degree in vocational home economice.

Miss Hulshof was reared on a New Madrid county farm. She has been active in 4-H club work as a member and as a leader. She, two sisters, and four brothers have all won trips to the National 4-H Club Congress. In 1951 she received the state 4-H Leadership award. She was a 4-H Club leader for 10 years. She is treasurer, Southeast Missouri Home Economics Association and a member of the Missouri Craftman's Council.

Wheat Can Be Seeded Now

CARUTHERSVILLE -- With the new Hessian Fly resistant varieties wheat may be seeded any time after mid-August if it is to be pastured. Early seeded wheat (before Oct. 1) stands a chance of growing too rank and getting freeze damage when it is not grazed.

The fall of 1936 and spring of 1937 gave a number of farmers with early seeded rank wheat cause for worry. In fact, some of these fields were damaged by spring freezes.

The normal time for seeding wheat using the Hessian Fly resistant varieties is around Oct. 1. Where non-fly resistant varieties are used Oct. 15 is the seeding date for Pemiscot and Dunklin counties.

Stepped-up Research Delta Center Program MFA GOAL

PORTAGEVILLE -- A request for new farm legislation and increased emphasis on administrative actions aimed at improving farm income along with a stepped-up program of research and education at the University of Missouri Delta Center were the chief ingredients of a report released on two Missouri Delta farm crop policy sessions conducted by Midcontinent Farmers Association.

Participating in the farm policy conferences held at Portageville were leading farmers and representatives of banks and state and federal farm agencies from Butler, Dunklin, Mississippi, New Madrid, Pemiscot, Scott, and Stoddard counties. Leading the various sessions were MFA officials, L. C. Carpenter of Columbia, and Hilton Bracey of Portageville, and University of Missouri Delta Center representatives, B. W. Harrison, Jim Roth, and E. B. Nace. Claude Bowles, State Director of the Missouri Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, and Richard Ritchie, program specialist, both of Columbia, provided statistical information and background material to guide the discussions.

The policy groups recommended a national food and fiber reserve as a means of improving farm prices and to shift some of the cost of maintaining such reserves from agriculture to the general public. Such reserves would have to be completely insulated from the market to prevent price-depressing influences and maintained within limiting guides that would permit release only under emergency conditions or when prices are well above parity levels, the report explained. Included in the recommendations for new legislation was a request for the inclusion of raw cotton and cotton goods in welfare programs along with food products, and legislative authority to enable farmers to enter into marketing agreements as a means of smoothing out widely fluctuating prices to both farmers and consumers. The report made clear that farmers are deeply concerned over current price levels for farm commodities and that action to bolster prices is overdue.

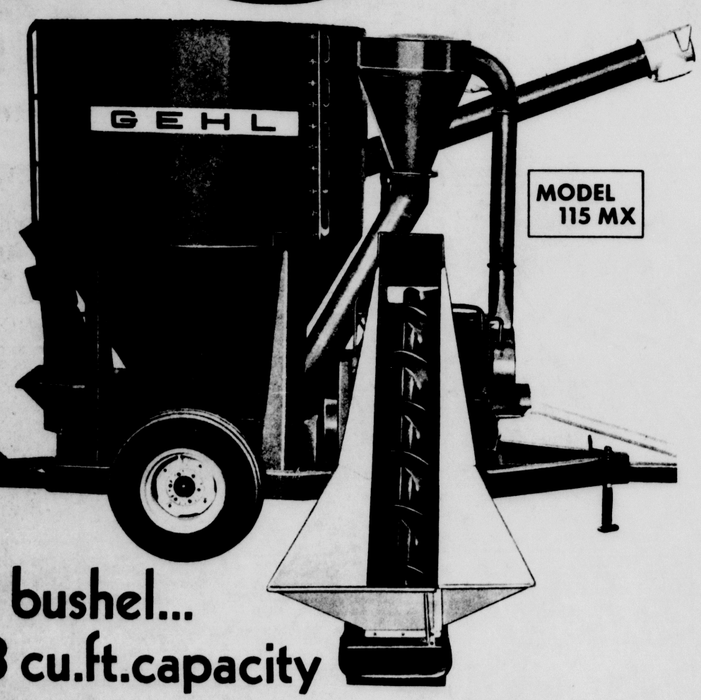

Possibilities considered for additional administrative actions to improve farm prices during the coming harvest centered around the need for increasing export outlets. The report called for increased exports through P. L. 480 and barter program available under existing legislative authority. It noted that exports of cotton, wheat and soybeans are lagging and urged that pricing arrangements be examined with the view of meeting the competition of foreign production of these commodities in an aggressive fashion. The report emphasized the need for keeping the carryover or supply of the various commodities within reasonable limits as a means of stimulating prices and avoiding unnecessary costs to the Government. Increases in support levels and diversion payments were advocated for corn and feed grains. It was noted that increases were necessary to improve farm income and hold production within desirable bounds.

It was recommended that a cotton acreage increase be made available in 1968 at a level which would not add to the carryover, but would be sufficient to provide protection against a shortage of better staple cottons. The report emphasized that the proposed cotton acreage increase should be made available in a way, or ways, that would improve cotton farm income and strengthen total farm income in cotton producing areas. It stressed that the need for improvement in cotton farm income on an immediate and continuing basis should govern any and all changes in the program.

Keeping soybeans free of controls was a highlight of the recommendations. It was noted that Russian sunflower production was becoming an increasing threat to exports of soybeans, and urged that government pricing programs be aimed at both foreign competition and toward increasing domestic uses for edible fats and oils. It was urged that more attention be given to possibilities for yield increases of soybeans. The report called for higher yielding varieties and improved weed control, and for fertility practices to be researched. Also, it was noted that soybean yields can be profitably increased over current levels merely by more widespread and intensive use of existing knowledge.

The Delta Center was asked to study and report on the influences of weather on cotton production in Southeast Missouri. Many questions were raised as to how much of a limiting factor is weather on cotton production in light of production during the past two years and over a period of years ranging from some seven years ago when cotton yields reached a plateau in the state. Other research requests were for more information on crop yields from closer rows, double cropping, irrigation, and soil fertility.

Eagleton Favors Bombing Halt

POPLAR BLUFF Mo. (AP)— Lt. Gov Thomas F. Eagleton said today a halt in the bombing of North Vietnam would open the door to peace talks.

He said cessation of the bombing would be "coldly realistic" and a "prelude to peace."

In a speech prepared for a ladies luncheon at a Truman Day rally Eagleton said world leaders have made it clear continuation of the bombing precludes a negotiated settlement.

"To an impressive and growing number of concerned minds," he said, "the strategy of the bombing constitues the most clear and present danger to the peace of the world today."

Two Stowaways Aboard on Queen Mary's Final Cruise

ABOARD THE QUEEN MARY (AP) — Two stowaways, a man and a woman, were discovered on the Queen Mary today as she steamed across the Atlantic toward England and retirement.

The woman, who identified herself as Angelina Romero, 25, of San Diego, Calif., presented herself to the purser at about midnight. By that time the ship was several hundred miles from New York and she could not be returned.

The other stowaway, an unidentified American man in his 20s or 30s, was found on deck this morning by a crewman who became suspicious. He was placed under lock and key by the master at arms.

Both Miss Romero and the man came aboard Friday during the gala sendoff for the Queen Mary, symbol of a bygone era of transatlantic splendor. Thousands of wellwishers mingled with the 2,500 passengers before the sailing.

The final voyage on her regular run to England was turned into a retirement party that will be long remembered.

"There won't ever be another ship like this one and there won't ever be another crossing like this one," said Bob Searles, a bar steward who had sailed on the Queen Mary's maiden voyage in 1936. "It's a once-in-a-lifetime thing. We're going to give her a real party."

The Queen Mary had been a festive ship for most of her 31 years and the mood was unchanged when she sailed from New York Friday on her 1,000th and last transatlantic crossing. Corks began popping hours before the Queen left her dock and champagne bottles soon littered companionways.

The tempo of the celebration quickened after the 81,000-ton ship left New York Harbor.

"We haven't planned anything special for this trip," a spokesman for the British Cunard Line said. "The passengers look great. We'll let them improvise. They'll give the old girl the kind of farewell she deserves." A symbol of a vanishing era, the Queen Mary carried more than two million persons in war and peace — more of them Americans than any other nationality. But she lost money — $2 million a year — after the transatlantic jet planes arrived.

Next month she will sail around Cape Horn to Long Beach, Calif., for use as a floating hotel and museum.

Viet Gunners Pounded Hard

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. B52 Stratofortresses and Marine artillery maintained a round-the-clock hammering of North Vietnamese positions along the demilitarized zone today in an unrelenting effort to silence Communist guns inflicting mounting casualties on American ground toops.

Two waves of B52s flew overhead as Leatherneck guns around the U.S. encampment at Con Thien thundered almost constantly.

One wave of the eight-engine planes dropped 150,000 pounds of bombs on suspected enemy artillery and antiaircraft positions and supply routes just over the line inside North Vietnam, 12 miles north of Con Thien. Another wave hit supply, storage and staging areas.

Enemy fire over the past 11 days has killed 41 Marines and wounded 541.

Gas War Erupts

The gas war, which reached a cease fire in August, broke out again Friday afternoon.

Most major brand dealers are now selling regular for 24.9 cents per gallon and premium for 28.9 cents per gallon.

The general pattern for independents is now 22.9 cents per gallon for regular and 25.9 cents per gallon for premium.

An independent dealer said the prices are likely to be even lower by Monday.

The price drop apparently resulted from the actions of one independent dealer, who is now described by other dealers as a maverick. He lowered his price Sept. 15, to about 24.9 for regular if the customer bought eight gallons.

Independents then lowered prices from the 26.9 regular and 29.9 for premium, to 24.9 for regular and 27.0 for premium early this week.

The prices had remained fairly stable since Aug. 5, when independents agreed on the price of 26.9 for regular and 29.9 for ethyl.

Majors, also remained at 28.9 for regular and 32.9 for higher test since Aug. 5.

The price war began in late June. Prior to that, major brand prices had been selling at 33.9 for regular and 37.9 for premium. Independents had been selling regular for 29.9 and premium for 33.9.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon says America's first antimissile system will cost about $1 million for each missile.

But officials decline to reveal how many missiles will be poised for launching at the 15 to 20 antimissile complexes in the United States.

The Pentagon said Friday a breakdown on the numbers and the sites of the installations will be released after construction begins. Initial contracts in the $5 billion program will be awarded in about five months.

Russia to Boost Aid to Hanoi

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union promised North Vietnam today weapons and other supplies in a 1968 aid program that was hinted to be larger than the current estimated billion-dollar-a-year program.

The weapons will include defensive arms, such as antiaircraft guns and missiles for use against U.S. planes, and small arms and artillery that could be used offensively in South Vietnam.

An official announcement of aid agreements signed here today lacked details on the volume of aid. The Soviet Union never has announced how much it is sending to Hanoi.

But the announcement spoke of support for North Vietnam "in conditions of growing U.S. aggression in Vietnam" and the Kremlin has promised in the past to match any increase of the American war effort with more aid.

Viet Army Declared Improved

SAIGON (AP) -- Gen. William U.S. troops in Vietnam, says the South Vietnamese army is "not fully effective, the way I want it to be, but they're better than they were a year ago."

Criticism of the South Vietnamese army has mounted in recent weeks in view of the deepening American commitment of troops.

Westmoreland gave his views in an exclusive interview with an Associated Press newsman who spent a day with him this week touring U. S. military installations.

Westmoreland said that among the major problems facing the South Vietnamese army are "corruption, their fear of night fighting and leadership weakness."

Heavy casualties suffered by its officer corps have contributed to the leadership weakness in the South Vietnamese army, he asserted.

South Vietnamese headquarters does not give out specific military battle casualties for each individual battle as the U. S. Command does for American casualties. Instead, the South Vietnamese headquarters characterizes them as light, moderate or heavy. When specific casualty numbers are obtainable from field reports or other sources they are generally carried by the press. Each week, South Vietnamese Headquarters issues a summary giving the total number of dead, wounded and missing for the preceding seven-day period. These weekly summaries are carried along with the American weekly total casualty figures.

"Leadership is a big problem," Westmoreland went ont.

Asked to what extent U. S. officers could be used to bridge this gap, Westmoreland replied: "As much as the traffic will bear. It will not bear more than it did a year ago."

It used to be, the general continued, that American officers working in leadership capacities with South Vietnamese units were resented by the government troops and officer corps.

"Now that I've got enough troops here to do the job, we're much closer with the ARVN (Army of the Republic of Vietnam) than ever before. They're gaining increasing self confidence.

Westmoreland said that while not all South Vietnamese units "have achieved success, my opinion of them is based on positive and negative impressions. And over-all, the outcome is positive."

Much recent criticism of South Vietnamese forces is "outdated," he added. "Perhaps a year ago it might have been true, but not so today."

During a briefing at Ham Tam, the remote capital of ruran Binh Tuy Province, the province chief reported to Westmoreland several incidents of South Vietnamese victories and initiatives taken recently throughout the province. Nodding his head, Westmoreland commented: "This would have been unheard of six months ago."

As to the progress of the conflict: "This is a complicated war. It's part of a complicated situation."

The thinking that is leading to increasing antiwar sentiment in the United States and other countries in "anachronistic," he said. "Because you can make a case for not getting involved here in 1954, the thinking follows that we should pull out now. But I cannot conceive in my wildest imagination of abandoning these people." The general attributed much antiwar thinking to "intellectuals." He complained that "most of their background is so one-sided."

The North Vietnamese are encouraged by lack of U. S. support from home, Westmoreland said.

Farmer Dies of Gun Blow on His Head

POPLAR BLUFF -- Raymond Connyers, 60, route one, Pollard Ark., died after being struck over the head with the butt of a shot gun after an argument at his farm home last night at 7 p.m. west of Fagus, 17 miles southeast of here near the Arkansas line.

Deputy Sheriffs Bob Arnold and Auston Urich and State Trooper Robert Trotter were called to the scene. Arnold said that five men were involved in the agrument he charged that some were intoxicated and gave conflecting stories.

Involved in the argument were Connyers and two sons, R. L. Connyers Jonesboro, Ark., and Louis Connyers, 31, of Michigan, and Ralph Reed and his son, Carl Reed. both of McDougal, Ark. and Jeff Parrish, also of McDougal.

The highway patrol charged that Reed and his son and Jeff Parrish, stopped at the Connyers home and threatened the two Connyers boys and they reported that the father attempted to stop a fight.

One of the Connyers sons claimed he saw his father struck over the head with the gun.

Reed and his son were apprehended near Corning, Ark. and lodged in the Clay county jail. Parrish is still at large.

The body of Connyers is at the Croy-Fitch Funeral Home.

Rusk Outlines Tighter Quarantine on Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP) -- Secretary of State Dean Rusk proposed today a four-point program for tightening the Western hemispheric quarantine of Communist Cuba, including an appeal to non-Communist countries to curb trade with Havana.

"The Organization of American States must maintain measures that isolate Cuba from the society of free men" until Premier Fidel Castro quits promoting "subversion and terrorism in the other countries of the hemisphere" and cuts his military ties with Moscow, Rusk said.

Rusk presented the U. S. proposals as the foreign ministers of the 21-nation OAS went into the second day of a three-day special conference on stemming the Castro threat.

Guerrilla-plagued Venezuela called the meeting, accusing Cuba of aggression for its exports of insurgency to other Latin American lands. Other hemisphere minsters have joined in denouncing the Red infiltrations.

It remained to be seen what specific steps the Latin American leaders could agree on beyond the containment programs already voted by the OAS in past years. None is advocating force against Cuba.

Rusk advocated "reasonable steps tailored to the dimensions of the immediate threat" which he said should be neither exaggerated nor ignored. He proposed:

-OAS "condemnation and denunciation" of the Castro regime's actions "as flagrant violations of international treaties, of the principles of international law and the standards of conduct among nations."

-Serving notice on the Soviets, who are giving Castron an estimated $1 million-a-day aid, that this will impair Moscow's efforts for increased relations elswhere in Latin America.

"If they are interested in our friendship, we may ask why they finance a government publicly committed to our destruction," Rusk said.

-Further individual and collective measures by OAS members for "viligence along our coasts and frontiers" to prevent incursions of men, munitions, money and propaganda from Cuba.

-"Seek greater cooperation from our free world friends in denying to Cuba resources which help it to carry on its subversive activities."

Cuba's trade with non-Communist nations slumped from $1.6 billion in 1958, the last year before Castro's takeover, to about $350 million annually the last two years. The OAS adopted a no-trade policy toward Cuba in 1964 and then asked friendly countries abroad to follow suit.

But some West European countries, particularly England, France and Spain, have continued to do business with Castro.

With U. S. backing, Venezuela wants a fresh appeal to Western countries to curb their trade with Havana, notice to Moscow against continuing its heavy aid to Castro and more cooperative police measures against Cuban landings of men, munitions, money and propaganda across Latin American frontiers.

Laborites Rally to Long

KANSAS CITY AP -- Missouri labor leaders rallied behind Sen. Edward V. Long, D-Mo., Friday and promised all-out support in his bid for re-election next year.

Plans for the campaign were made in a closed meeting, attended by Long.

"This was the most dramatic kind of demonstration of union labor support that Long enjoys," said Harold Gibbons of St. Louis, a leader in the Teamsters union.

Norman Lenamenn, business manager of Electrical Workers Local No. 1 in St. Louis, said Long had not asked for a labor endorsement.

Among lthe leaders present were John Lawler of the Steamfitters Union; James Davis, an official of the Missouri office of the AFL-CIO; Roy William of St. Lous, an associate of James Hoffa, Teamsters leader now in prison; and Karl Rogers of Teamsters Council 56 in Kansas City.

Long, whose financial affairs are being investigated by the Senate ethics committee, denied that there was any connection between fees he received from Hoffa's lawyer and the Teamsters.

The senator was asked what he thought of the endorsement by a group including Teamster Union officials in view of a magazine article about the payments from Hoffa's chief counsel.

Long said that since the magazine accusations were not true he was happy for the support of anyone.

Long said he would defeat Lt. Gov. Thomas Eagleton in the Democratic primary. Eagleton announced he would seek the nomination for Long's seat. The senator made no other comment.

Flood Empties Two Cities

RIO GRANDE CITY, Tex. (AP) — The Cameron County Sheriff's Department said today that all residents of Matamoros and Roynosa, Mexico, were being evacuated into the United States ahead of floods triggered by Hurricane Beulah.

The floods are expected on the Rio Grande, normally a turgid stream dividing Texas and Mexico but now more than a mile wide here.

Mamamoros is a city of 100,000 and Roynosa has 75,000 residents.

The greatest mass of floodwaters in more than three decades thundered down the Rio Grande, but cities on the U.S. side have considerable protection from levees.

The Nueces River, roughly paralleling the Rio Grande to the east and emptying into Corpus Christi Bay, is expected to reach the highest flood stage in history.

Matamoros is across from Brownsville at the mouth of the Rio Grande.

Roynosa is across from McAllen, about 50 miles upstream from Brownsville. It is an industrial center with a large oil refinery and rail yards. It is a popular entry into Mexico.

Torrential rains - up to a staggering 30 inches-also sent crests rolling down scores of other South Texas rivers and streams as Hurrican Beulah, the cause of it all, finally blew herself out against the mountains of northern Mexico.

Some one million persons remained isolated by high water in a 40,000 square-mile area in the wedge of South Texas. The death toll from the 14-day-old hurricane stood at 36-while damage estimates were put at $1 billion. Nine died in Texas.

A deputy sheriff at Rio Grande City said Saturday, "Is's going to go" when asked about the International Bridge there. He said the river's floodwaters covered about a fourth of the town shortly after midnight.

"It looks like the river's coming into the downtown area," he added.

Numerous streams in the disaster area continued to spill from their banks today and heavy rains persisted, although they were tapering off.

Beulah slammed into the Texas coast at Brownsville early Wednesday.

The Rio Grande was 20 feet above flood stage and a mile wide, here, 110 miles from the Gulf of Mexico.

W. E. Walker, principal engineer for the International Boundary and Water Commission, said Rio Grande floodwaters had eaten away the abutments of the bridge linking Rio Grande City and Camargo, Mexico.

"We expect it (the main part of the bridge) to go anytime." he said late Friday.

"This is the highest discharge since 1938," he said. "It's a very large flood; It's very serious."

South Texas was a world gone made with water. Attempts at cleaning up the soggy mess were started at the few points where waters receded.

A hand-lettered sign on the wall of the Raymondville hospital told this story:

"Our syringes and medicines are clean. Our smiles are real. Only our floor is wet and a few guys with guts are keeping us going."

A volunteer team of men and boys - some from the high school football team-kept floodwaters to a low level in the hospital with pumps, buckets and sandbags.

Chief Physician Dr. Charles Spence said the volunteers "pitched in and kept some women from having to have their babies out in that mud and filth." White-clad nurses were barefoot. Doctors wore high boots.

The latest death was that of Jean Blackwell of Kingsville, who apparently drowned when a pickup truck was swamped near Alice. Two other persons died early Friday when a car plunged into a flooded creek in San Antonio.

Virtually all roads south of San Antonio remained blocked today although a few became passable by heavy high-wheeled vehicles.

Thousands of refugees who fled inland to escape the winds and tides of Beulah found themselves faced with greater danger Thursday and Friday from the raging Floodwaters, from massive rains and from 95 tornadoes that spun off the monstrous storm. Many had to be re-evacuated.

Five Years Added to Hoffa's Term

CHICAGO (AP) — Teamsters' Union President James R. Hoffa's prison term has been lengthened from eight to 13 years.

Hoffa was sentenced for a second time Friday to a five-year prison term and a $10,000 fine on charges of taking part in a multimillion-dollar conspiracy to defraud a teamsters' pension fund.

Judge Richard B. Austin, in sentencing the Teamsters president Friday, declared that the five-year term will be consecutive to an eight-year sentence Hoffa is now serving for jury tampering in Chattanooga, Tenn. Hoffa is imprisoned in Lewisburg, Pa.

Hoffa was sentenced once before on the pension-fund charge, but the five-year-plus-$10,000 sentence was vacated by the Supreme Court. The high court ordered a hearing to determine whether admitted government wiretapping helped in obtaining the evidence that led to Hoffa's conviction in 1964 in Chicago.

Judge Austin conducted the hearing in U.S. District Court and ruled Aug. 22 that Hoffa did not merit a new trial. The same ruling applied to the five codefendants convicted with Hoffa.

The codefendants and their sentences:

Burris of New York City, 18 months and $5,000.

Abe Weinbaltt, 70, of Miami, one hour in custody and $5,000.

Zacharty Strate Jr., 47, of New Orleans, three years and $5,000.

Calvin Kovens, 44, Miami, three years and $5,000.

Benjamin Dranow, 60, formerly of Minnespolis, five years and $10,000. Dranow was serving a sentence on another charge when he was convicted in 1964.

Hearnes Accused of Not Practicing What He Preaches

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Although the governor preaches economy, Dorman L. Steelman says Gov. Warren E. Hearnes has become the biggest spender in the state's history.

Steelman, the Republican state chairman from Salem, made the accusation at a GOP rally Friday night. He said Hearnes should admit taxes will have to be raised no matter who is elected governor next year.

Steelman charged Hearnes has been politically motivated throughout his administration, getting a constitutional amendment adopted allowing him to run for a second term, gaining the support of the St. Louis Steamfitters' union, putting summer highway jobs under patronage control and holding $25 and $1,000 a plate testimonial dinners in his own behalf.

Critics Take Exception to President's Position That Fight Against Communism Worth Price in Vietnam

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Johnson's assertion that the fight to save South Vietnam from communism is worth the price despite "passionate voices" of protest is challenged by policy critics.

Johnson told the heads of about 300 fraternal organizations Friday that the big question is whether the war is worth the price. "I say it is," he declared.

"In every war we have fought there have been passionate voices crying that the engagement was unwise, that what we might accomplish was not worth the price we would have to pay," he said.

This was true, he said, when the Axis powers nibbled at Europe in the 1930s, when communism threatened Greece and Turkey in 1947, when the Reds blockaded Berlin in 1948, when South Korea was invaded in 1950 and in the Cuban missile crisis in 1962.

"These voices are heard now," he said," as Communist power threatens the life of South Vietnam."

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, one of the dissenters against whom Johnson's shafts appeared aimed, said he wishes the South Vietnames "shared the President's estimate of the importance of the war in their country."

"Then we wouldn't have to do the fighting for them, while they stay behind the lines and engage in pacification efforts agong their own people," Church said.

Sen. Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., a Foreign Relations Committee member who has called for more vigorous efforts to negotiate a peace, said in a separate interview Johnson failed to state the issue between him and his critics.

"We are in the war and the question is, what are the options open to us?" Case asked.

He said the President's remarks were not the answer to the question of what steps the United States can take to resolve the conflict.

A sharp Vietnam debate, with two Republicans criticizing the administration on the ground it has not brought about greater efforts by the South Vietnamese government in the war, developed in the Senate shortly after the President commented.

Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., said the United States should refuse to "send one more soldier or one more Marine to fight and to die in South Vietnam until that government begins to stand up to its responsibilities."

And Case renewed his stand that the administration should get the South Vietnamese government to make improvements to rally the all-out support of its army and its people.

Case again proposed telling the South Vietnamese government the United States will withdraw if South Vietnam does not demonstrate it can movilize for an effective war effort.

Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W.Va. acting Democratic leader at the time, said he was sure the President would press upon the South Vietnamese government that it had to meet its responsibilities.

Brooke, who recently reaffirmed with some reservations his support of Johnson's course, said: "If the President is correct when he says our reason for being there is to prevent the spread of communism by force and violence, this is certainly worth it. "It better be worth it with all the lives we've lost. It's hardly a time for second guessing as to whether it is worth it. This question now is a bit academic."

Johnson took direct issue with critics who have contended the Asian conflict is a civil war in which the United States has no vital interests.

The President said the price of "risking a third world war by our failure to stand in Vietnam now is a far heavier price to pay" than even the loss of American lives.

"Their sacrifice-I deeply believe-will make a greater war, and a far heavier price less likely in the years to come," he said.

Eagleton Favors Bombing Halt

POPLAR BLUFF Mo. (AP)— Lt. Gov Thomas F. Eagleton said today a halt in the bombing of North Vietnam would open the door to peace talks.

He said cessation of the bombing would be "coldly realistic" and a "prelude to peace."

In a speech prepared for a ladies luncheon at a Truman Day rally Eagleton said world leaders have made it clear continuation of the bombing precludes a negotiated settlement.

"To an impressive and growing number of concerned minds," he said, "the strategy of the bombing constitues the most clear and present danger to the peace of the world today."

Two Stowaways Aboard on Queen Mary's Final Cruise

ABOARD THE QUEEN MARY (AP) — Two stowaways, a man and a woman, were discovered on the Queen Mary today as she steamed across the Atlantic toward England and retirement.

The woman, who identified herself as Angelina Romero, 25, of San Diego, Calif., presented herself to the purser at about midnight. By that time the ship was several hundred miles from New York and she could not be returned.

The other stowaway, an unidentified American man in his 20s or 30s, was found on deck this morning by a crewman who became suspicious. He was placed under lock and key by the master at arms.

Both Miss Romero and the man came aboard Friday during the gala sendoff for the Queen Mary, symbol of a bygone era of transatlantic splendor. Thousands of wellwishers mingled with the 2,500 passengers before the sailing.

The final voyage on her regular run to England was turned into a retirement party that will be long remembered.

"There won't ever be another ship like this one and there won't ever be another crossing like this one," said Bob Searles, a bar steward who had sailed on the Queen Mary's maiden voyage in 1936. "It's a once-in-a-lifetime thing. We're going to give her a real party."

The Queen Mary had been a festive ship for most of her 31 years and the mood was unchanged when she sailed from New York Friday on her 1,000th and last transatlantic crossing. Corks began popping hours before the Queen left her dock and champagne bottles soon littered companionways.

"We haven't planned anything special for this trip," a spokesman for the British Cunard Line said. "The passengers look great. We'll let them improvise. They'll give the old girl the kind of farewell she deserves." A symbol of a vanishing era, the Queen Mary carried more than two million persons in war and peace — more of them Americans than any other nationality. But she lost money — $2 million a year — after the transatlantic jet planes arrived.

Next month she will sail around Cape Horn to Long Beach, Calif., for use as a floating hotel and museum.

Viet Gunners Pounded Hard

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. B52 Stratofortresses and Marine artillery maintained a round-the-clock hammering of North Vietnamese positions along the demilitarized zone today in an unrelenting effort to silence Communist guns inflicting mounting casualties on American ground toops.

Two waves of B52s flew overhead as Leatherneck guns around the U.S. encampment at Con Thien thundered almost constantly.

One wave of the eight-engine planes dropped 150,000 pounds of bombs on suspected enemy artillery and antiaircraft positions and supply routes just over the line inside North Vietnam, 12 miles north of Con Thien. Another wave hit supply, storage and staging areas.

Enemy fire over the past 11 days has killed 41 Marines and wounded 541.

Gas War Erupts

The gas war, which reached a cease fire in August, broke out again Friday afternoon.

Most major brand dealers are now selling regular for 24.9 cents per gallon and premium for 28.9 cents per gallon.

The general pattern for independents is now 22.9 cents per gallon for regular and 25.9 cents per gallon for premium.

An independent dealer said the prices are likely to be even lower by Monday.

The price drop apparently resulted from the actions of one independent dealer, who is now described by other dealers as a maverick. He lowered his price Sept. 15, to about 24.9 for regular if the customer bought eight gallons.

Independents then lowered prices from the 26.9 regular and 29.9 for premium, to 24.9 for regular and 27.0 for premium early this week.

The prices had remained fairly stable since Aug. 5, when independents agreed on the price of 26.9 for regular and 29.9 for ethyl.

Majors, also remained at 28.9 for regular and 32.9 for higher test since Aug. 5.

The price war began in late June. Prior to that, major brand prices had been selling at 33.9 for regular and 37.9 for premium. Independents had been selling regular for 29.9 and premium for 33.9.

ABM Price Tag Set

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon says America's first antimissile system will cost about $1 million for each missile.

But officials decline to reveal how many missiles will be poised for launching at the 15 to 20 antimissile complexes in the United States.

The Pentagon said Friday a breakdown on the numbers and the sites of the installations will be released after construction begins. Initial contracts in the $5 billion program will be awarded in about five months.

Russia to Boost Aid to Hanoi

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union promised North Vietnam today weapons and other supplies in a 1968 aid program that was hinted to be larger than the current estimated billion-dollar-a-year program.

The weapons will include defensive arms, such as antiaircraft guns and missiles for use against U.S. planes, and small arms and artillery that could be used offensively in South Vietnam.

An official announcement of aid agreements signed here today lacked details on the volume of aid. The Soviet Union never has announced how much it is sending to Hanoi.

But the announcement spoke of support for North Vietnam "in conditions of growing U.S. aggression in Vietnam" and the Kremlin has promised in the past to match any increase of the American war effort with more aid.

Viet Army Declared Improved

SAIGON (AP) -- Gen. William U.S. troops in Vietnam, says the South Vietnamese army is "not fully effective, the way I want it to be, but they're better than they were a year ago."

Criticism of the South Vietnamese army has mounted in recent weeks in view of the deepening American commitment of troops.

Westmoreland gave his views in an exclusive interview with an Associated Press newsman who spent a day with him this week touring U. S. military installations.

Westmoreland said that among the major problems facing the South Vietnamese army are "corruption, their fear of night fighting and leadership weakness."

Heavy casualties suffered by its officer corps have contributed to the leadership weakness in the South Vietnamese army, he asserted.

South Vietnamese headquarters does not give out specific military battle casualties for each individual battle as the U. S. Command does for American casualties. Instead, the South Vietnamese headquarters characterizes them as light, moderate or heavy. When specific casualty numbers are obtainable from field reports or other sources they are generally carried by the press. Each week, South Vietnamese Headquarters issues a summary giving the total number of dead, wounded and missing for the preceding seven-day period. These weekly summaries are carried along with the American weekly total casualty figures.

"Leadership is a big problem," Westmoreland went ont.

Asked to what extent U. S. officers could be used to bridge this gap, Westmoreland replied: "As much as the traffic will bear. It will not bear more than it did a year ago."

It used to be, the general continued, that American officers working in leadership capacities with South Vietnamese units were resented by the government troops and officer corps.

"Now that I've got enough troops here to do the job, we're much closer with the ARVN (Army of the Republic of Vietnam) than ever before. They're gaining increasing self confidence.

Westmoreland said that while not all South Vietnamese units "have achieved success, my opinion of them is based on positive and negative impressions. And over-all, the outcome is positive."

Much recent criticism of South Vietnamese forces is "outdated," he added. "Perhaps a year ago it might have been true, but not so today."

During a briefing at Ham Tam, the remote capital of ruran Binh Tuy Province, the province chief reported to Westmoreland several incidents of South Vietnamese victories and initiatives taken recently throughout the province. Nodding his head, Westmoreland commented: "This would have been unheard of six months ago."

As to the progress of the conflict: "This is a complicated war. It's part of a complicated situation."

The thinking that is leading to increasing antiwar sentiment in the United States and other countries in "anachronistic," he said. "Because you can make a case for not getting involved here in 1954, the thinking follows that we should pull out now. But I cannot conceive in my wildest imagination of abandoning these people." The general attributed much antiwar thinking to "intellectuals." He complained that "most of their background is so one-sided."

The North Vietnamese are encouraged by lack of U. S. support from home, Westmoreland said.

Farmer Dies of Gun Blow on His Head

POPLAR BLUFF -- Raymond Connyers, 60, route one, Pollard Ark., died after being struck over the head with the butt of a shot gun after an argument at his farm home last night at 7 p.m. west of Fagus, 17 miles southeast of here near the Arkansas line.

Deputy Sheriffs Bob Arnold and Auston Urich and State Trooper Robert Trotter were called to the scene. Arnold said that five men were involved in the agrument he charged that some were intoxicated and gave conflecting stories.

Involved in the argument were Connyers and two sons, R. L. Connyers Jonesboro, Ark., and Louis Connyers, 31, of Michigan, and Ralph Reed and his son, Carl Reed. both of McDougal, Ark. and Jeff Parrish, also of McDougal.

The highway patrol charged that Reed and his son and Jeff Parrish, stopped at the Connyers home and threatened the two Connyers boys and they reported that the father attempted to stop a fight.

One of the Connyers sons claimed he saw his father struck over the head with the gun.

Reed and his son were apprehended near Corning, Ark. and lodged in the Clay county jail. Parrish is still at large.

The body of Connyers is at the Croy-Fitch Funeral Home.

Rusk Outlines Tighter Quarantine on Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP) -- Secretary of State Dean Rusk proposed today a four-point program for tightening the Western hemispheric quarantine of Communist Cuba, including an appeal to non-Communist countries to curb trade with Havana.

"The Organization of American States must maintain measures that isolate Cuba from the society of free men" until Premier Fidel Castro quits promoting "subversion and terrorism in the other countries of the hemisphere" and cuts his military ties with Moscow, Rusk said.

Rusk presented the U. S. proposals as the foreign ministers of the 21-nation OAS went into the second day of a three-day special conference on stemming the Castro threat.

Guerrilla-plagued Venezuela called the meeting, accusing Cuba of aggression for its exports of insurgency to other Latin American lands. Other hemisphere minsters have joined in denouncing the Red infiltrations.

It remained to be seen what specific steps the Latin American leaders could agree on beyond the containment programs already voted by the OAS in past years. None is advocating force against Cuba.

Rusk advocated "reasonable steps tailored to the dimensions of the immediate threat" which he said should be neither exaggerated nor ignored. He proposed:

-OAS "condemnation and denunciation" of the Castro regime's actions "as flagrant violations of international treaties, of the principles of international law and the standards of conduct among nations."

-Serving notice on the Soviets, who are giving Castron an estimated $1 million-a-day aid, that this will impair Moscow's efforts for increased relations elswhere in Latin America.

"If they are interested in our friendship, we may ask why they finance a government publicly committed to our destruction," Rusk said.

-Further individual and collective measures by OAS members for "viligence along our coasts and frontiers" to prevent incursions of men, munitions, money and propaganda from Cuba.

-"Seek greater cooperation from our free world friends in denying to Cuba resources which help it to carry on its subversive activities."

Cuba's trade with non-Communist nations slumped from $1.6 billion in 1958, the last year before Castro's takeover, to about $350 million annually the last two years. The OAS adopted a no-trade policy toward Cuba in 1964 and then asked friendly countries abroad to follow suit.

But some West European countries, particularly England, France and Spain, have continued to do business with Castro.

With U. S. backing, Venezuela wants a fresh appeal to Western countries to curb their trade with Havana, notice to Moscow against continuing its heavy aid to Castro and more cooperative police measures against Cuban landings of men, munitions, money and propaganda across Latin American frontiers.

Laborites Rally to Long

KANSAS CITY AP -- Missouri labor leaders rallied behind Sen. Edward V. Long, D-Mo., Friday and promised all-out support in his bid for re-election next year.

Plans for the campaign were made in a closed meeting, attended by Long.

"This was the most dramatic kind of demonstration of union labor support that Long enjoys," said Harold Gibbons of St. Louis, a leader in the Teamsters union.

Norman Lenamenn, business manager of Electrical Workers Local No. 1 in St. Louis, said Long had not asked for a labor endorsement.

Among lthe leaders present were John Lawler of the Steamfitters Union; James Davis, an official of the Missouri office of the AFL-CIO; Roy William of St. Lous, an associate of James Hoffa, Teamsters leader now in prison; and Karl Rogers of Teamsters Council 56 in Kansas City.

Long, whose financial affairs are being investigated by the Senate ethics committee, denied that there was any connection between fees he received from Hoffa's lawyer and the Teamsters.

The senator was asked what he thought of the endorsement by a group including Teamster Union officials in view of a magazine article about the payments from Hoffa's chief counsel.

Long said that since the magazine accusations were not true he was happy for the support of anyone.

Long said he would defeat Lt. Gov. Thomas Eagleton in the Democratic primary. Eagleton announced he would seek the nomination for Long's seat. The senator made no other comment.

Hearnes Accused of Not Practicing What He Preaches

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Although the governor preaches economy, Dorman L. Steelman says Gov. Warren E. Hearnes has become the biggest spender in the state's history.

Steelman, the Republican state chairman from Salem, made the accusation at a GOP rally Friday night. He said Hearnes should admit taxes will have to be raised no matter who is elected governor next year.

Steelman charged Hearnes has been politically motivated throughout his administration, getting a constitutional amendment adopted allowing him to run for a second term, gaining the support of the St. Louis Steamfitters' union, putting summer highway jobs under patronage control and holding $25 and $1,000 a plate testimonial dinners in his own behalf.

Flood Empties Two Cities

RIO GRANDE CITY, Tex. (AP) — The Cameron County Sheriff's Department said today that all residents of Matamoros and Roynosa, Mexico, were being evacuated into the United States ahead of floods triggered by Hurricane Beulah.

The floods are expected on the Rio Grande, normally a turgid stream dividing Texas and Mexico but now more than a mile wide here.

Mamamoros is a city of 100,000 and Roynosa has 75,000 residents.

The greatest mass of floodwaters in more than three decades thundered down the Rio Grande, but cities on the U.S. side have considerable protection from levees.

The Nueces River, roughly paralleling the Rio Grande to the east and emptying into Corpus Christi Bay, is expected to reach the highest flood stage in history.

Matamoros is across from Brownsville at the mouth of the Rio Grande.

Roynosa is across from McAllen, about 50 miles upstream from Brownsville. It is an industrial center with a large oil refinery and rail yards. It is a popular entry into Mexico.

Torrential rains - up to a staggering 30 inches-also sent crests rolling down scores of other South Texas rivers and streams as Hurrican Beulah, the cause of it all, finally blew herself out against the mountains of northern Mexico.

Some one million persons remained isolated by high water in a 40,000 square-mile area in the wedge of South Texas. The death toll from the 14-day-old hurricane stood at 36-while damage estimates were put at $1 billion. Nine died in Texas.

A deputy sheriff at Rio Grande City said Saturday, "Is's going to go" when asked about the International Bridge there. He said the river's floodwaters covered about a fourth of the town shortly after midnight.

"It looks like the river's coming into the downtown area," he added.

Numerous streams in the disaster area continued to spill from their banks today and heavy rains persisted, although they were tapering off.

Beulah slammed into the Texas coast at Brownsville early Wednesday.

The Rio Grande was 20 feet above flood stage and a mile wide, here, 110 miles from the Gulf of Mexico.

W. E. Walker, principal engineer for the International Boundary and Water Commission, said Rio Grande floodwaters had eaten away the abutments of the bridge linking Rio Grande City and Camargo, Mexico.

"We expect it (the main part of the bridge) to go anytime." he said late Friday.

"This is the highest discharge since 1938," he said. "It's a very large flood; It's very serious."

South Texas was a world gone made with water. Attempts at cleaning up the soggy mess were started at the few points where waters receded.

A hand-lettered sign on the wall of the Raymondville hospital told this story:

"Our syringes and medicines are clean. Our smiles are real. Only our floor is wet and a few guys with guts are keeping us going."

A volunteer team of men and boys - some from the high school football team-kept floodwaters to a low level in the hospital with pumps, buckets and sandbags.

Chief Physician Dr. Charles Spence said the volunteers "pitched in and kept some women from having to have their babies out in that mud and filth." White-clad nurses were barefoot. Doctors wore high boots.

The latest death was that of Jean Blackwell of Kingsville, who apparently drowned when a pickup truck was swamped near Alice. Two other persons died early Friday when a car plunged into a flooded creek in San Antonio.

Virtually all roads south of San Antonio remained blocked today although a few became passable by heavy high-wheeled vehicles.

Thousands of refugees who fled inland to escape the winds and tides of Beulah found themselves faced with greater danger Thursday and Friday from the raging Floodwaters, from massive rains and from 95 tornadoes that spun off the monstrous storm. Many had to be re-evacuated.

Five Years Added to Hoffa's Term

CHICAGO (AP) — Teamsters' Union President James R. Hoffa's prison term has been lengthened from eight to 13 years.

Hoffa was sentenced for a second time Friday to a five-year prison term and a $10,000 fine on charges of taking part in a multimillion-dollar conspiracy to defraud a teamsters' pension fund.

Judge Richard B. Austin, in sentencing the Teamsters president Friday, declared that the five-year term will be consecutive to an eight-year sentence Hoffa is now serving for jury tampering in Chattanooga, Tenn. Hoffa is imprisoned in Lewisburg, Pa.

Hoffa was sentenced once before on the pension-fund charge, but the five-year-plus-$10,000 sentence was vacated by the Supreme Court. The high court ordered a hearing to determine whether admitted government wiretapping helped in obtaining the evidence that led to Hoffa's conviction in 1964 in Chicago.

Judge Austin conducted the hearing in U.S. District Court and ruled Aug. 22 that Hoffa did not merit a new trial. The same ruling applied to the five codefendants convicted with Hoffa.

The codefendants and their sentences:

Burris of New York City, 18 months and $5,000.

Abe Weinbaitt, 70, of Miami, one hour in custody and $5,000.

Zacharty Strate Jr., 47, of New Orleans, three years and $5,000.

Calvin Kovens, 44, Miami, three years and $5,000.

Benjamin Dranow, 60, formerly of Minnespolis, five years and $10,000. Dranow was serving a sentence on another charge when he was convicted in 1964.

Critics Take Exception to President's Position That Fight Against Communism Worth Price in Vietnam

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Johnson's assertion that the fight to save South Vietnam from communism is worth the price despite "passionate voices" of protest is challenged by policy critics.

Johnson told the heads of about 300 fraternal organizations Friday that the big question is whether the war is worth the price. "I say it is," he declared.

"In every war we have fought there have been passionate voices crying that the engagement was unwise, that what we might accomplish was not worth the price we would have to pay," he said.

This was true, he said, when the Axis powers nibbled at Europe in the 1930s, when communism threatened Greece and Turkey in 1947, when the Reds blockaded Berlin in 1948, when South Korea was invaded in 1950 and in the Cuban missile crisis in 1962.

"These voices are heard now," he said," as Communist power threatens the life of South Vietnam."

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, one of the dissenters against whom Johnson's shafts appeared aimed, said he wishes the South Vietnames "shared the President's estimate of the importance of the war in their country."

"Then we wouldn't have to do the fighting for them, while they stay behind the lines and engage in pacification efforts agong their own people," Church said.

Sen. Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., a Foreign Relations Committee member who has called for more vigorous efforts to negotiate a peace, said in a separate interview Johnson failed to state the issue between him and his critics.

"We are in the war and the question is, what are the options open to us?" Case asked.

He said the President's remarks were not the answer to the question of what steps the United States can take to resolve the conflict.

A sharp Vietnam debate, with two Republicans criticizing the administration on the ground it has not brought about greater efforts by the South Vietnamese government in the war, developed in the Senate shortly after the President commented.

Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., said the United States should refuse to "send one more soldier or one more Marine to fight and to die in South Vietnam until that government begins to stand up to its responsibilities."

And Case renewed his stand that the administration should get the South Vietnamese government to make improvements to rally the all-out support of its army and its people.

Case again proposed telling the South Vietnamese government the United States will withdraw if South Vietnam does not demonstrate it can movilize for an effective war effort.

Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W.Va. acting Democratic leader at the time, said he was sure the President would press upon the South Vietnamese government that it had to meet its responsibilities.

Brooke, who recently reaffirmed with some reservations his support of Johnson's course, said: "If the President is correct when he says our reason for being there is to prevent the spread of communism by force and violence, this is certainly worth it. "It better be worth it with all the lives we've lost. It's hardly a time for second guessing as to whether it is worth it. This question now is a bit academic."

Johnson took direct issue with critics who have contended the Asian conflict is a civil war in which the United States has no vital interests.

The President said the price of "risking a third world war by our failure to stand in Vietnam now is a far heavier price to pay" than even the loss of American lives.

"Their sacrifice-I deeply believe-will make a greater war, and a far heavier price less likely in the years to come," he said.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

This is National Constitution week. It is an excellent time to read this document.

Few look for it but it is easy to find for those who do.

The constitution is available in many dictionaries, almanacs and encyclopedias.

If more Americans read it they would be less willing to permit Washington bureaucrats to tamper with it.

A careful reading discloses just how far the country has strayed from the faith of our founding fathers.

Hand wringing about the past does no good but awareness can be a good safeguard for the future.

Framers of the constitution knew their business.

They understood the meaning of recorded history. Many had experienced tyranny.

Almost without exception governments that preceded this republic were authoritarian.

The patriots, who wrote the constitution, were determined that it wouldn't happen here.

Limitations were placed on the power of the federal government. A system of checks and balances among its three branches was instituted.

Areas were set aside upon which no branch of government could intrude.

Centralization of power in the federal government in this century has been accompanied by loose interpretation of the constitution, the socialization of society and the master planning by government to guide and rule the lives of citizens from womb to tomb. The careful planning to avoid authoritarian rule has been blunted in the rush to increase the role of government in every citizen's life.

Private enterprise and all those elements on which this nation rose to greatness have been hedged by law and the theory that the bureaucrats know best.

Courts have fallen into the habit of declaring constitutional anything which is politically expedient.

Politicians use the constitution as an alibi for not doing something rather than as the constructive vital and forward looking force for which it was designed.

The hour is late but the trend can be arrested if enough citizens become informed and interested.

The Constituion is still the nation's best road map for the future.

Something is terribly wrong in family affairs. The father, who knows men, and appreciates how little they can be trusted, is never consulted in regard to the young men who call on his daughters. The mother, who doesn't know any more about men that a good husband has taught her, is in control of such matters and usually gives her daughters all the rope they want. It is obvious that the fathers should assert themselves, but they have all tried and failed.

OUR EVERGREEN TRADITION

Somehow the second of the two documents which gave our nation its start has never commanded the reverence of the first, the Declaration of Independence. The Fourth of July is a national holiday, going back to that auspicious date in 1776 when old political bonds were broken. But Sept. 17, 1787 -- a date more than 11 years later -- culminated a revolution and set this nation on its course.

It was then that the Constitution of the United States was signed by 39 delegates of the Constitutional Convention in Philadelphia, later to be submitted for ratification to the legislatures of the first states.

Today, the 180th anniversary of that event, is modestly lighted by Congress and the President as Citizenship Day and the first day of Constitution Week. LYNDON JOHNSON has officially expressed the hope that appropriate ceremonies will give Americans "a better understanding of the Constitution and of the rights and responsibilities of United States citizenship."

It is regrettable that this wish could not be underlined or circled in a hearty hand and a bright color.

Rights are something we hear about frequently these days. But the subject under discussion, where the Constitution is concerned, is compound. Responsibility goes hand in hand with rights.

Materialism has designated Constitutional rights into demands for an equality of possession rather than an equality of opportunity. It negates the original American concept of justice, privilege and accomplishment, and imitates the socialistic concept of a homogenized and therefore bland and mediocre society. It ignores God, whose commandments speak to the individual and his love for a neighbor and his God.

The dream, which still glimmers through modern materialism, was beautifully expressed in 1869 by JAMES RUSSELL LOWELL: "To Americans America is something more than a promise and an expectation. It has a past and traditions of its own. A descent from men who sacrificed everything and came hither, not to better their fortunes, but to plant their idea in virgin soil, should be a good pedigree. There was never a colony save this that went forth, not to seek gold, but God."

Interpreters of the Constitution, sitting on the high benches of our courts, have sometimes turned on tradition and therefore have trampled on the dreams of those who planted this nation in new soil. But there is hope. We have seen the land covered with the bricks of gold and the mortar of man, and when the bricks crumble we have seen the grass grow again.

SOME GOLD COMES IN

It's news, good news, when the United States experiences an inflow of gold, and the news is especially cheering when the gold isn't destined to be buried out of sight in the caverns of Fort Knox.

This particular gold shipment will benefit the general public because the gold is in the form of art and artifcats from Colombia, representing a golden age of craftsmanship before the Spanish conquistadores set foot on the New World. Called the "Treasures of El Dorado," the collection consists of 208 rare objects, and it is said to be one of the largest accumulations of gold outside of Fort Knox. The treasures may be seen at the striking Colombian Center of the Republic of Colombia, 140 E. 57 St., New York City, until the end of January when they will be returned to the Banco de la Republica of Bogota, owner of the collection.

Those who stop in at the Colombian Center will find a variety of body and face ornaments, anthromorphic and zoomorphic figures, face masks and vessels, representing highly sophisticated craftsmanship. The objects are worked in thin gold sheet, thin gold wire, decorative gold thread filigree, and gold leaf. It is interesting to consider that similar art, brought to the courts of Europe in the 16th Century by early explorers, did much to arouse interest in the New World and open it to settlement.

Following the showing of the "Treasures of El Dorado," there will be a succession of other exhibits and entertainments at the Center. Visitors to the striking "show window" building, which is a study in bronze, will be entertained with concerts, recitals, films, lectures, folk-singing, folk-dancing, etc., and, as a neighborly gesture, coffee will be served to visitors -- made from superb Colombian beans, of course.

It seems to us that all this represents internationalism as it should be. Here is a nation that sends us many products that we want and need, not the least of which is a flood of fine, rich coffee. But there's more to the relationship than trade, as Colombia shares with us her great cultural riches.

When a factory proposes to leave a small town, there is consternation. Organizations are formed to encourage local industries and to bring in new industries.

But one never hears of any community holding a special meeting of its chamber of commerce in an effort to prevent a superior young man from leaving. Bright men and women move out quietly, unmourned and unrecognized.

They are drawn to the large centers, where opportunities are open for brains, initiative and originality.

The point I want to make is this: Suppose the chamber of commerce of some town really undertook the job of identifying and holding its brightest young men and women. Suppose it opened up jobs for them on completion of their high school and college courses, even though the doing of this caused some inconvenience and expense. Suppose the bankers of the town gave these young men the encouragement of a little extra backing. Might it not turn out in the course of twenty or thirty years that this town would show a remarkable growth?

NO "MELLOWING" IN EVIDENCE

Only those persons who have deceived themselves or have been deceived by others into believing that Soviet Russia was "mellowing" in its attitude toward the free world could have been surprised that nothing was accomplished during the much publicized conversations between President Johnson and Premier Kosygin. The subsequent turning over of the United Nations as a forum to Kosygin can only be regarded as disgraceful.

The communists are the same as ever. Their traditional goal is conquest of the entire world. They have not shifted their sights one iota. Kosygin sang the same old song about "American aggression" in his news conference at the UN shortly after the talks between him and President Johnson had been concluded. Russia's peace terms for the world still include surrender by the free nations.

Additional proof of that was hardly needed in view of the continued communist drive in Vietnam, the backing up of Fidel Castro by Russia, and the communist plans to bring guerrilla warfare to Latin American countries. All this is accompanied by an increasing boldness of the Communist Party, USA, encouraged by a decision of the Supreme Court that American communists do not have to register with the federal government.

Lenin long ago set the pattern of communist strategy when he advised party members: "Resort to all kinds of cunning, schemes and startagems, employ illegal nethods, evade and conceal the truth..." Communists have been following the counsel faithfully. Their aim is simply to liquidate freedom wherever it exists in the world and to impose their own slave ideology on once-free men. HLH

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

LABOR GOES TO LUNCH

In Unreported White House Gathering, LBJ Asserts He Can Beat Republicans Now or in 1968 Despite Polls

Washington, D. C.: -- Others may doubt. But not Lyndon Johnson. He believes he could defeat George Romney, or any other Republican, if the election were run today. But until 1968 he's not worrying about reelection-- and "maybe not even then."

With intense conviction he believes the U.S is winning militarily in Vietnam. Whimsically, he says that if the "peace" critics would just keep still for one month -- and thus convince Hanoi there is no massive rebellion against the Presidential policies -- the peace-now bloc would get exactly what it's seeking. Namely, negotiations.

All this and more, the President imparted, in simple passion, like a man torn asunder, during a remarkably intimate unreported White House Luncheon Friday, Sept. 15

It was held in the upstairs private family dining room, which seems natural since the men who gathered about him that day truly are his closest allies and friends -- the executive leaders of American labor.

Crowded around the four tables which filled the "small" room were the men on whom he will have to count for powerful support next year on the industrial as well as the political fronts. They were "family" all right. Mrs. Johnson, who drifted in from time to time, knew many of them by first name. At Table Three where sat President Johnson, George Meany, and AFL-CIO vice presidents Joe Bierne, Max Greenberg and Dave Sullivan, the talk was family talk. Some of the labor leaders pointed out they were well up on the president. Meany has 14 grandchildren; Joe Bierne has 13 and the president merely one but lots of hopes.

When the shrimp, wine and dessert were gone, the President said he was there to listen, not talk. There were no takers or talkers. Then the President opened up. He was misunderstood at home and abroad, averred he as he talked brother to brother -- even to such a recent opponent as the Machinists' Roy Siemiller, the daringly militant leader of the railroad and airline machinists who sat over at Hubert Humphrey's Table One. Friendly "enemies," other and said nothing about the rail strike emergency law which had divided the two of them.

At one point the President reached into his jacket pocket and pulled out clips of the popularity poll stories. They say I'm slipping, said he. So is George Romney. I could defeat him now.

It's good to have these polls, he added. They keep a man in this seat from getting to think he's perfect. They show what the people think. But no man should appease. He should lead. Each president who had a shooting war on his hands had the same problem. There was Woodrow Wilson, Franklin Roosevelt and Harry Truman. Dissent is fine, continued the President. But he knows what the Communist Chinese are telling Hanoi, he added. Peking is saying that the Americans are divided; that the people are opposed to the President and that if Ho Chi Minh will just hold out, the U. S. will yield and go away.

We are winning militarily. There is no feud between Defense Secretary McNamara and General Wheeler. They're still a good working team. It was "I who ordered the bombings of North Vietnamese harbors," said he. And not just recently, but long ago. And "I set the conditions." If the peace crowd would only go silent for a month, the war would be over, he asserted once more

Then he referred to the polls again. The say I'm slipping, he said. Okay. So is Romney. Look at the record, he advised. The government is spending more "dollars" on education than it was when he assumed the presidency -- which means when he took over from John Kennedy.

He's being blamed wrongly for the riots, he continued. But he's doing something about that. He's trying to get at crime in the streets and push through anti-gun legislation. But there's a "hardness developing" in Congress. It is now difficult to get little things through. Then he disgressed on Sen. Wayne Morse.

"You guys have Morse figured wrong," said the President. "He is the best fellow I have up there. He's helped on aid to education, civil rights. We don't agree on foreign policy. But I can't blame him for that. The guy is entitled to a night off."

As for Sen. Fulbright, every wartime president had his difficulties with the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

For almost two hours he poured his heart out to his friends. They left at four o'clock, with the feeling that the President firmly believed the administration was "way ahead" and the people were with him though again and again he had said he was being misunderstood abroad and at home.

They had come to talk about labor matters, Southern textile firms bucking the NLRB, taxes and urban crises.

But they had stayed to listen to the travail of a brother. He talked their language. They will talk his wherever they go.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

WASHINGTON -- Amazing evidence of Communist Cuban penetration into the heart of Latin America has just been captured from Cuban guerillas in Bolivia. This writer, as a result of his visit to Bolivia last spring, has obtained copies of fake passports of high Cuban leaders, pictures of Che Guevara, Castro's former War Minister, and the secret personal diary of Che Guevara written in the Bolivian Mountains.

This information comes to light just as the Pan-American Foreign Ministers are meeting in Washington to consider, among other things, what should be done about Castro's attempts to spread revolution in Latin America.

It also comes to light just as one of the most influential Pan-American statesmen, ex-President Galo Plaza of Ecuador, has been persuaded to become a candidate for Secretary-General of the Organization of American states, where he could play a powerful role in settling Pan American disputes and unifying the hemisphere.

The amazing documentation of Castro's attempts to penetrate part of the continent -- Bolivia -- came about through the capture of certain Cuban guerillas and the discovery of caves in which the guerrillas had hidden their papers.

When they went into battle they left their documents behind, fearing capture. But Bolivian authorities have now discovered two caves containing forged passports of Panama, Uruguay and Ecuador, together with snapshots which the guerrillas had taken of each other while going about their camp chores.

--FIGHTERS RELAX--

These photos show Che Guevara when he first arrived clean-shaven and slightly bald. Guevara has been missing for some years and is reported to have been on a mysterious revolutionary mission. The photos bear this out. Subsequent photos show him with a heavy beard. Most of the photos also show him smoking a pipe.

There are various photos of guerrillas chopping wood, cooking, reclining in hammocks.

Captured were two Uruguayan passports, no. 130748 and no. 130220, in the name of Adolfo Mena, the assumed name of Che Guevara. Guevara also was able to forge a special letter of introduction on the stationery of the Bolivian "National Office of Information of the President of the Republic."

This document, allegedly signed by the Director of Press and Information, stated:

"The Director of Press and Information of the President of the Republic present Adolfo Mena, special assistant of the Office of American states, who is effecting a study and acquiring information regarding the social and economic conditions among Bolivian peasants.

"The Director orders national authorities and requires all civilians and institutions to give all information to Adolfo Mena that he may wish to acquire and to facilitate his investigation.

"Signed in La Paz, November 3, 1866 by Lopez Munox, Director of Press and Information." Director Lopez Munoz had never seen or signed such a document, but the Castro network was so efficient that it was able to secure his stationery and forge his name.

Also captured was a Panamanian passport of the Cuban Minister of Sugar, Gustavo Ricardo Machin, who fought under the nickname of "Alejandro."

One Cuban guerrilla killed was Juan Acuna, a leading Castroite who fought under the nickname "Joaquin." His Panamanian passport no. 65736 was dated Dec. 1, 1965.

Among the informal snapshots taken by the guerrillas around their camp were one or two of Tanya, the Cuban girl killed in mountain skirmishes who had been broadcasting to Bolivian peasants as a Latin American "Tokyo Rose." The photographs show her to be about 30 years of age, with bobbed hair. Her broadcasts indicated that she had a cultivated Castilian accent.

Captured in Bolivia last week was another girl guerrillas nicknamed "Loyola."

All the guerrillas, of which it is estimated there are about 50 left, operate under nicknames, such as "China," "Benigno," "Marcos."

Marcos is the nickname of Roberto Bustos, an Argentinian newspaperman so far not captured. The other newspaperman fighting with the guerrillas, Jules Regis Debray, the French Marxist, has been captured, however, and is now held in a Bolivian prison.

Debray's book has been captured, significantly with notes on the margin by Che Guevara. The book is "Revolution in the Revolution," a manual on how to overthrow Latin American governments.

While fighting in the Bolivian Mountains, Che Guevara himself kept a diary, now captured. It has been carefully compared with his own handwriting, and there is no mistaking its authenticity. Snapshopts of Che Guevara have been blown up and compared with photographs taken during his earlier days with Castro in Havana. They show an identical facial details.

So far the Cuban guerrillas have been almost totally unsuccessful in their attempt to win support from Bolivian peasants, most of them Indians. Only two Bolivians are known to have gone over to the guerrillas, Coco Peredo and another whose nickname is "Inti." Intelligence information picked up from captured Cubans indicates that the two Bolivians have been used chiefly to carry supplies, not as fighters.

Also captured was a small flag with Fidel Castro's picture at the top and the Cuban and Bolivian flags linked together. The flag bears the motto "Country Or Death."

TIME was when, as far as the American stage and screen were concerned, there were no Negroes who were not comics or boobs.

It is true that in minstrel show days some of the blackfaced end men exhibited homespun sagacity in their broad and bucolic jokes, but it was sagacity of a low order.

In the Keystone Kop era the Negro was the man who rolled his eyes wildly and dived out the window after he mistook the character who had fallen in the mortar tub for a ghost.

D. W. Griffith's "Birth of a Nation" was heavily larded with Griffith's Confederate prejudices, and irresponsible Negroes were put down only by the timely arrival of the heroic Ku Klux Klan.

Altogether, it was a sad period, and the cause of justice in drama had heavy going in the face of smug white supremacy.

BUT things have changed recently. They have changed radically.

Today on television and in the movies there appear to be no Negroes who (1) do not talk like Harvard professors or (2) are not obvious victims of white - imposed deprivations. In the rare instances where they are depicted as transgressing laws they do so only in agony. The war movie is now common where the Negro GI decides that in spite of what his white buddies have done to him he will save them all, anyway.

From the unbelievably stupid Negro we have proceeded to the unbelievably admirable Negro. This question now should be asked: will the perpetuation of unbelievable images aid, in the long run, real interracial understanding?

THERE is also a question whether some injustice is not now being visited upon white citizens. Last year I wandered into a criminal court of Los Angeles County. Of 31 men being arraigned 21 were Negroes and five were Latin Americans. This was not far off the average. Last year Negroes committed 6.3% of Los Angeles felonies.

Yet on the Jack Webb Dragnett program, presumably written around the Los Angeles Police Department, when has there been a Negro criminal? All the killing, raping and rascality is laid to discernible native - born whites.

IT may be argued that in an overwhelmingly white country a white villain is not looked on as a white man, but merely as a villain. Whereas, if a Negro showed up as a villain the majority of viewers would subconsciously tell themselves "Negro - plus-villain."

This is a pretty good argument. But Negro organizations are not content to let white men serve as symbols of all men in honest or heroic roles. They demand the placement of specific Negro heroes.

And what should happen to drama concerning a city like Washington, D. C., where whites are now in the minority? Should the Negro then become the generic symbol for "man" and take over all the villainous chores?

SAMMY DAVIS JR. has said there will never be true equality until there is a Negro heavy.

The Beverly Hills - Hollywood branch of the NAACP last month had an award banquet for those studios which had cast Negroes as heroic or executive types. But there was no move to take over a share of the villainy.

Any effort to cure old prejudices by inventing a new form of folklore may defeat itself. Unbelievability creates rage and frustration among the suspicious and excitable and gives rise to the feeling that a form of brainwashing is being tried.

It is a question how long Hollywood and television can portray the average Southern sheriff as a flabby, perspiring mass of hateful prejudices while they can find nothing in life resembling Stokely Carmichael or H. Rap Brown. It is going to be hard to blame Alabamians for all future Detroits and Newarks. The credibility gap can widen to the point where the bridge to racial understanding will fall into it.

Maybe we'd better desegregate the villain business.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

This is National Constitution week. It is an excellent time to read this document.

Few look for it but it is easy to find for those who do.

The constitution is available in many dictionaries, almanacs and encyclopedias.

If more Americans read it they would be less willing to permit Washington bureaucrats to tamper with it.

A careful reading discloses just how far the country has strayed from the faith of our founding fathers.

Hand wringing about the past does no good but awareness can be a good safeguard for the future.

Framers of the constitution knew their business.

They understood the meaning of recorded history. Many had experienced tyranny.

Almost without exception governments that preceded this republic were authoritarian.

The patriots, who wrote the constitution, were determined that it wouldn't happen here.

Limitations were placed on the power of the federal government. A system of checks and balances among its three branches was instituted.

Areas were set aside upon which no branch of government could intrude.

Centralization of power in the federal government in this century has been accompanied by loose interpretation of the constitution, the socialization of society and the master planning by government to guide and rule the lives of citizens from womb to tomb. The careful planning to avoid authoritarian rule has been blunted in the rush to increase the role of government in every citizen's life.

Private enterprise and all those elements on which this nation rose to greatness have been hedged by law and the theory that the bureaucrats know best.

Courts have fallen into the habit of declaring constitutional anything which is politically expedient.

Politicians use the constitution as an alibi for not doing something rather than as the constructive vital and forward looking force for which it was designed.

The hour is late but the trend can be arrested if enough citizens become informed and interested.

The Constituion is still the nation's best road map for the future.

OUR EVERGREEN TRADITION

Somehow the second of the two documents which gave our nation its start has never commanded the reverence of the first, the Declaration of Independence. The Fourth of July is a national holiday, going back to that auspicious date in 1776 when old political bonds were broken. But Sept. 17, 1787 -- a date more than 11 years later -- culminated a revolution and set this nation on its course.

It was then that the Constitution of the United States was signed by 39 delegates of the Constitutional Convention in Philadelphia, later to be submitted for ratification to the legislatures of the first states.

Today, the 180th anniversary of that event, is modestly lighted by Congress and the President as Citizenship Day and the first day of Constitution Week. LYNDON JOHNSON has officially expressed the hope that appropriate ceremonies will give Americans "a better understanding of the Constitution and of the rights and responsibilities of United States citizenship."

It is regrettable that this wish could not be underlined or circled in a hearty hand and a bright color.

Rights are something we hear about frequently these days. But the subject under discussion, where the Constitution is concerned, is compound. Responsibility goes hand in hand with rights.

Materialism has designated Constitutional rights into demands for an equality of possession rather than an equality of opportunity. It negates the original American concept of justice, privilege and accomplishment, and imitates the socialistic concept of a homogenized and therefore bland and mediocre society. It ignores God, whose commandments speak to the individual and his love for a neighbor and his God.

The dream, which still glimmers through modern materialism, was beautifully expressed in 1869 by JAMES RUSSELL LOWELL: "To Americans America is something more than a promise and an expectation. It has a past and traditions of its own. A descent from men who sacrificed everything and came hither, not to better their fortunes, but to plant their idea in virgin soil, should be a good pedigree. There was never a colony save this that went forth, not to seek gold, but God."

Interpreters of the Constitution, sitting on the high benches of our courts, have sometimes turned on tradition and therefore have trampled on the dreams of those who planted this nation in new soil. But there is hope. We have seen the land covered with the bricks of gold and the mortar of man, and when the bricks crumble we have seen the grass grow again.

SOME GOLD COMES IN

It's news, good news, when the United States experiences an inflow of gold, and the news is especially cheering when the gold isn't destined to be buried out of sight in the caverns of Fort Knox.

This particular gold shipment will benefit the general public because the gold is in the form of art and artifcats from Colombia, representing a golden age of craftsmanship before the Spanish conquistadores set foot on the New World. Called the "Treasures of El Dorado," the collection consists of 208 rare objects, and it is said to be one of the largest accumulations of gold outside of Fort Knox. The treasures may be seen at the striking Colombian Center of the Republic of Colombia, 140 E. 57 St., New York City, until the end of January when they will be returned to the Banco de la Republica of Bogota, owner of the collection.

Those who stop in at the Colombian Center will find a variety of body and face ornaments, anthromorphic and zoomorphic figures, face masks and vessels, representing highly sophisticated craftsmanship. The objects are worked in thin gold sheet, thin gold wire, decorative gold thread filigree, and gold leaf. It is interesting to consider that similar art, brought to the courts of Europe in the 16th Century by early explorers, did much to arouse interest in the New World and open it to settlement.

Following the showing of the "Treasures of El Dorado," there will be a succession of other exhibits and entertainments at the Center. Visitors to the striking "show window" building, which is a study in bronze, will be entertained with concerts, recitals, films, lectures, folk-singing, folk-dancing, etc., and, as a neighborly gesture, coffee will be served to visitors -- made from superb Colombian beans, of course.

It seems to us that all this represents internationalism as it should be. Here is a nation that sends us many products that we want and need, not the least of which is a flood of fine, rich coffee. But there's more to the relationship than trade, as Colombia shares with us her great cultural riches.

When a factory proposes to leave a small town, there is consternation. Organizations are formed to encourage local industries and to bring in new industries.

But one never hears of any community holding a special meeting of its chamber of commerce in an effort to prevent a superior young man from leaving. Bright men and women move out quietly, unmourned and unrecognized.

They are drawn to the large centers, where opportunities are open for brains, initiative and originality.

The point I want to make is this: Suppose the chamber of commerce of some town really undertook the job of identifying and holding its brightest young men and women. Suppose it opened up jobs for them on completion of their high school and college courses, even though the doing of this caused some inconvenience and expense. Suppose the bankers of the town gave these young men the encouragement of a little extra backing. Might it not turn out in the course of twenty or thirty years that this town would show a remarkable growth?

NO "MELLOWING" IN EVIDENCE

Only those persons who have deceived themselves or have been deceived by others into believing that Soviet Russia was "mellowing" in its attitude toward the free world could have been surprised that nothing was accomplished during the much publicized conversations between President Johnson and Premier Kosygin. The subsequent turning over of the United Nations as a forum to Kosygin can only be regarded as disgraceful.

The communists are the same as ever. Their traditional goal is conquest of the entire world. They have not shifted their sights one iota. Kosygin sang the same old song about "American aggression" in his news conference at the UN shortly after the talks between him and President Johnson had been concluded. Russia's peace terms for the world still include surrender by the free nations.

Additional proof of that was hardly needed in view of the continued communist drive in Vietnam, the backing up of Fidel Castro by Russia, and the communist plans to bring guerrilla warfare to Latin American countries. All this is accompanied by an increasing boldness of the Communist Party, USA, encouraged by a decision of the Supreme Court that American communists do not have to register with the federal government.

Lenin long ago set the pattern of communist strategy when he advised party members: "Resort to all kinds of cunning, schemes and startagems, employ illegal methods, evade and conceal the truth..." Communists have been following the counsel faithfully. Their aim is simply to liquidate freedom wherever it exists in the world and to impose their own slave ideology on once-free men. HLH

by Jenkin Lloyd Jones

TIME was when, as far as the American stage and screen were concerned, there were no Negroes who were not comics or boobs.

It is true that in minstrel show days some of the blackfaced end men exhibited homespun sagacity in their broad and bucolic jokes, but it was sagacity of a low order.

In the Keystone Kop era the Negro was the man who rolled his eyes wildly and dived out the window after he mistook the character who had fallen in the mortar tub for a ghost.

D. W. Griffith's "Birth of a Nation" was heavily larded with Griffith's Confederate prejudices, and irresponsible Negroes were put down only by the timely arrival of the heroic Ku Klux Klan.

Altogether, it was a sad period, and the cause of justice in drama had heavy going in the face of smug white supremacy.

BUT things have changed recently. They have changed radically.

Today on television and in the movies there appear to be no Negroes who (1) do not talk like Harvard professors or (2) are not obvious victims of white - imposed deprivations. In the rare instances where they are depicted as transgressing laws they do so only in agony. The war movie is now common where the Negro GI decides that in spite of what his white buddies have done to him he will save them all, anyway.

From the unbelievably stupid Negro we have proceeded to the unbelievably admirable Negro. This question now should be asked: will the perpetuation of unbelievable images aid, in the long run, real interracial understanding?

THERE is also a question whether some injustice is not now being visited upon white citizens. Last year I wandered into a criminal court of Los Angeles County. Of 31 men being arraigned 21 were Negroes and five were Latin Americans. This was not far off the average. Last year Negroes committed 6.3% of Los Angeles felonies.

Yet on the Jack Webb Dragnett program, presumably written around the Los Angeles Police Department, when has there been a Negro criminal? All the killing, raping and rascality is laid to discernible native - born whites.

IT may be argued that in an overwhelmingly white country a white villain is not looked on as a white man, but merely as a villain. Whereas, if a Negro showed up as a villain the majority of viewers would subconsciously tell themselves "Negro - plus-villain."

This is a pretty good argument. But Negro organizations are not content to let white men serve as symbols of all men in honest or heroic roles. They demand the placement of specific Negro heroes.

And what should happen to drama concerning a city like Washington, D. C., where whites are now in the minority? Should the Negro then become the generic symbol for "man" and take over all the villanious chores?

SAMMY DAVIS JR. has said there will never be true equality until there is a Negro heavy.

The Beverly Hills - Hollywood branch of the NAACP last month had an award banquet for those studios which had cast Negroes as heroic or executive types. But there was no move to take over a share of the villainy.

Any effort to cure old prejudices by inventing a new form of folklore may defeat itself. Unbelievability creates rage and frustration among the suspicious and excitable and gives rise to the feeling that a form of brainwashing is being tried.

It is a question how long Hollywood and television can portray the average Southern sheriff as a flabby, perspiring mass of hateful prejudices while they can find nothing in life resembling Stokely Carmichael or H. Rap Brown. It is going to be hard to blame Alabamians for all future Detroits and Newarks. The credibility gap can widen to the point where the bridge to racial understanding will fall into it.

Maybe we'd better desegregate the villain business.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

LABOR GOES TO LUNCH

In Unreported White House Gathering, LBJ Asserts He Can Beat Republicans Now or in 1968 Despite Polls

Washington, D. C.: -- Others may doubt. But not Lyndon Johnson. He believes he could defeat George Romney, or any other Republican, if the election were run today. But until 1968 he's not worrying about reelection--and "maybe not even then."

With intense conviction he believes the U.S is winning militarily in Vietnam. Whimsically, he says that if the "peace" critics would just keep still for one month -- and thus convince Hanoi there is no massive rebellion against the Presidential policies -- the peace-now bloc would get exactly what it's seeking. Namely, negotiations.

All this and more, the President imparted, in simple passion, like a man torn asunder, during a remarkably intimate unreported White House Luncheon Friday, Sept. 15

It was held in the upstairs private family dining room, which seems natural since the man who gathered about him that day truly are his closest allies and friends -- the executive leaders of American labor.

Crowded around the four tables which filled the "small" room were the men on whom he will have to count for powerful support next year on the industrial as well as the political fronts. They were "family" all right. Mrs. Johnson, who drifted in from time to time, knew many of them by first name. At Table Three where sat President Johnson, George Meany, and AFL-CIO vice presidents Joe Bierne, Max Greenberg and Dave Sullivan, the talk was family talk. Some of the labor leaders pointed out they were well up on the president. Meany has 14 grandchildren; Joe Bierne has 13 and the president merely one but lots of hopes.

When the shrimp, wine and dessert were gone, the President said he was there to listen, not talk. There were no takers or talkers. Then the President opened up. He was misunderstood at home and abroad, averred he as he talked brother to brother -- even to such a recent opponent as the Machinists' Roy Siemiller, the daringly militant leader of the railroad and airline machinists who sat over at Hubert Humphrey's Table One. Friendly "enemies," other and said nothing about the rail strike emergency law which had divided the two of them.

At one point the President reached into his jacket pocket and pulled out clips of the popularity poll stories. They say I'm slipping, said he. So is George Romney. I could defeat him now, he added. They keep a man in this seat from getting to think he's perfect. They show what the people think. But no man should appease. He should lead. Each president who had a shooting war on his hands had the same problem. There was Woodrow Wilson, Franklin Roosevelt and Harry Truman. Dissent is fine, continued the President. But he knows what the Communist Chinese are telling Hanoi, he added. Peking is saying that the Americans are divided; that the people are opposed to the President and that if Ho Chi Minh will just hold out, the U. S. will yield and go away.

We are winning militarily. There is no feud between Defense Secretary McNamara and General Wheeler. They're still a good working team. It was "I who ordered the bombings of North Vietnamese harbors," said he. And not just recently, but long ago. And "I set the conditions." If the peace crowd would only go silent for a month, the war would be over, he asserted once more

Then he referred to the polls again. The say I'm slipping, he said. Okay. So is Romney. Look at the record, he advised. The government is spending more "dollars" on education than it was when he assumed the presidency -- which means when he took over from John Kennedy.

He's being blamed wrongly for the riots, he continued. But he's doing something about that. He's trying to get at crime in the streets and push through anti-gun legislation. But there's a "hardness developing" in Congress. It is now difficult to get little things through. Then he disgressed on Sen. Wayne Morse.

"You guys have Morse figured wrong," said the President. "He is the best fellow I have up there. He's helped on aid to education, civil rights. We don't agree on foreign policy. But I can't blame him for that. The guy is entitled to a night off."

As for Sen. Fulbright, every wartime president had his difficulties with the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

For almost two hours he poured his heart out to his friends. They left at four o'clock, with the feeling that the President firmly believed the administration was "way ahead" and the people were with him though again and again he had said he was being misunderstood abroad and at home.

They had come to talk about labor matters, Southern textile firms bucking the NLRB, taxes and urban crises.

But they had stayed to listen to the travail of a brother. He talked their language. They will talk his wherever they go.

The altar was decorated with palms and floral arrangements of white chrysanthemums and gladioli.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of gardenia white Chantilly lace. It was designed with a fitted bodice, a portrait neckline, and long tapered sleeves. The sheath skirt was re-embroidered with seed pearls, and had a softly flowing train. The bouffant veil of imported silk illusion was attached to a cluster of lace petals, trimmed with pearls and crystals. She carried a cascading bouquet of white cocktail orchids, stephanotis, and variegated ivy.

Miss Catherine Hildebrandt of Florissant was maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Mrs. Laura Searcy of Florissant, and Miss Cheryl Vaucher of Ferguson. They were attired in pale yellow, princess styled, floor-length gowns, and carried large cascading bouquets of white daisy pompons with yellow centers. Their headdresses were yellow bows attached to short veils.

The groom chose as his best man, his brother, Thomas Gwaltney, Jr. of Ypsilanti, Mich. Groomsmen were the bride's brother, J. D. Heimann of Florissant and Thomas Haire of Sikeston. The men wore tuxedos with white carnation boutonnieres.

Presiding at the guest book was Mrs. Thomas Gwaltney, Jr. She wore a blue and white dress with matching accessories and a white carnation corsage.

The bride's mother wore a sheath dress of olive green lace with matching accessories. Mrs. Gwaltney chose a two piece dress of beige lace with matching accessories. Both mothers wore corsages of white orchids.

A reception was held following the wedding at the Airport Hall where refreshments were catered, and a band furnished music. A three tiered wedding cake carried out the bride's color scheme.

After a short honeymoon, the couple is living at Belton, near Richards-Gebaur air force base where Gwaltney is serving in the air force.

Among out of town guests at the wedding were Mrs. Jean Hogan and son, Kevin of Cape Girardeau, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Barrow of Peoria, Ill.; and Misses Anne and Karen Gwaltney, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gwaltney, Jr. of Ypsilanti, Mich.

BULLDOGS ENJOY BLUEJAY MEAT

By Ron Jaynes

CHARLESTON -- It was a sad night in the old town last night as the arch football rival, the Sikeston Bulldogs, scurried away with a devastating 27-0 northern conference footbal victory before a capacity crowd and kept it's undefeated record intact.

Signs were carried around the field before the game and at half to encourage Bluejay victory but Sikeston's Bulldogs were determined to add another triumph to their long list over the Jays last night and seem well on their way to another 17-year reign.

Charleston surprised the Bulldogs the last time a Bill Sapp crew visited the Jays home nest, 6-0, and ended a 17-year winning reign.

The victory was sparked by Fullback Eddie Felker's two touchdown runs and the punting of Mike Garner, who kept the Jays deep in their own territory with a 46-yard average per punt.

Sikeston's defense shut down the aerial circus of Charleston's Charlie Babb and the team moved into a lead after both teams displayed stingy defense in the first quarter.

Charleston's first period threat, if there was one, was checked by 40 yards in penalties.

Coach Herbert Marshall's flock was undefeated and unscored before going into last night's battle and was the surprise to many are gridiron enthusiasts before crumbling at the hands of Sikeston.

The Jays held Sikeston in its first real threat on their five-yard line for three plays and then nailed Bulldog signal caller Bruce Farris for an 18-yard loss on the fourth down.

Sikeston's next attempt didn't fail as the Dogs drove 36 yards after a short Charleston punt in nine plays, highlighted by a 14-yard pass play from Farris to Garner. Felker plunged over left tackle from one yard out for a touchdown and Webb Edwards converted for a 7-0 lead.

Charleston's only threat came in the closing seconds of the first half. The Jays Mark Carlisle intercepted a Farris pass and returned it to the five-yard line, where the clock ended the action.

The first half was dominated by both squads' defense, 60 yards in penalties on Charleston and 40 on Sikeston.

After an intermission huddle with Mentor Bill Sapp, Sikeston struck with two third period touchdowns and tightened its defensive hold for a 21-0 lead going into the final stanza.

Sikeston's Turner Marshall, who turned in an oustanding job on defense, picked up a fumble on the 41-yard line after the opening kickoff, enabling the Dogs to drive in for a touchdown in nine plays as Farris connected on a 20-yard pass play to Bob McCord. Edwards converted for a 14-0 lead.

Another Charleston fumble, three plays later, after the kickoff was picked up by Mike Thrower. It enabled the Dogs to surge in on four plays on Felker's second TD of the game, this time from seven yards out. Edwards converted to end the third period scoring.

Riley Gross turned in an outstanding performance on defense for the Dogs and checked possible Charleston TD stroll late in the third period.

Art Jackson scored the final TD of the game midway in the fourth period as the Dogs drove 28 yards on six plays with Jackson going in from 10 yards out. Edwards' extra point attempt was wide.

The Bulldogs speedster, left halfback Dennis Snelling had two TDs called back on penalties.

Farris connected with the speedster on a 26-yard TD play and a 15 yarder.

Coach Sapp was pleased with the performance and commented "It was a better overall team effort than in our two previous outings."

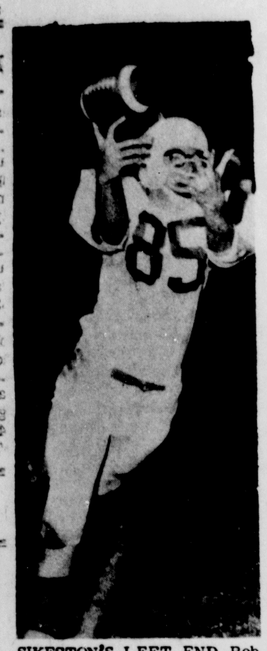

Sikeston posted a 28-0 conference victory over the Jays at public school stadium last year.

Charleston was held to 135 yards on passing and 84 rushing while the Dogs rushed for 232 and passed for 107.

The statistics:

Central's Tigers Strike Seventh Ranked Mayfield

SIKESTON'S LEFT END Bob McCord lunges for a sideline pass thrown by Quarterback Bruce Farris in Friday night's football game. Sikeston defeated Charlestn, 27-0.

MAYFIELD, Ky. -- Cape Girardeau Central high school Tigers of Missouri used points after touchdown to check Kentucky's seventh ranked football team last night, 14-12.

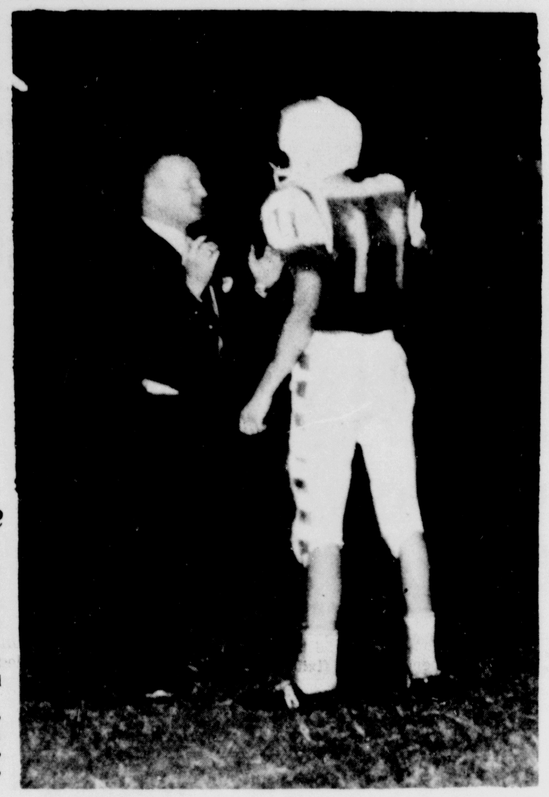

Cape surged ahead after both teams fought through a scoreless first period. Jim Powell plunged in from the three for Mayfield as Mark Stuart hauled in a two-yard Pat Godwin pass in the closing seconds of the first half.

Cape moved 66 yards in 41 seconds for the paydirt. Stuart also converted the extra point to give the Missourians a 7-6 first half lead.

Cape's Kim Godwin ran in from the 10-yard line in the third and Stuart converted the extra point for a 14-6 lead.

Mayfield moved across in the fourth on Powell's six yard run. A Cape misplay set up the score as a bad snap from center on a punt attempt forced the punter to run. He was nailed at the 10.

Cape held Mayfield on the five-yard line after the Kentuckians used an onside kick to get control of the ball. Cape's defense eld and the offense took control of the ball with 21 seconds remaining.

QUARTERBACK CHARLIE BABB of the Charleston Bluejays talks things over with coach Herb Marshall during a time out in the football game last night. Sikeston won 27-0.

Portageville Buffs Chaffee

CHAFFEE -- The Portageville Bulldogs put themselves back on the winning football road last night after losing to Dexter the week before.

The Bulldogs took a resounding triumph from the Chaffee Red Devils, 27-7.

Pat Scherer opened the scoring for the Dogs on a four-yard run. Dennis Fisher missed connections on the extra point attempt.

Both squads tallied in the second period. Kirk Stuart completed the first-half scoring for the Bulldogs on a nine-yard run. The point after touchdown was good by Fisher.

Chaffee's touchdown came in the second quarter. Tom Little plunged one-yard for the touchdown. Tom Steimle kicked the extra point leaving the margin of six points at the half.

Two touchdowns were chalked up for Portageville in the third period. David Studia hauled in an 18-yard pass from Kirk Stuart for six more points. Mike Musick raced 42 yards and was brought down on the one-yard line. He tallied on the next play climaxing the Bulldog scoring. Fisher booted the final point of the game.

Portageville dominated the statistics. The Dogs completed five of 11 passes for 77 yards while Chaffee managed only one completion out of 10 tries, good for nine yards.

Rushing yardage amounted to 219 for the Bulldogs while the Red Devils drove for only 103 yards.

Mules Still Kicking

PERRYVILLE -- Poplar Bluff maintained its lead in footabll points scored in the northern division last night, beating the Pirates of Perryville, 27-7. The Mules racked up points in every quarter.

Quarter back Ben Wyatt threw a 42-yard touchdown pass to John Piper to initate the Mules' scoring. Wyatt kicked the extra point.

In the second period Leroy Moss scampered 48 yards for a touchdown. Quarterback Wyatt connected again on the point after touchdown.

Fullback John Brown scored in the third and fourth quarters on 10 and one-yard drives. Brown tallied his last touchdown from one-yard out after carrying the ball for 15 yards and being stopped on the one.

Jim Taylor led Perryville's scoring with a six-yard plunge. Mike Gotto split the uprights for the extra point.

Statisticswise, Perryville looked better. The Pirates had 23 first downs to 20 for the Mules. The Mules punted only once as the Pirates had to boot the ball three times.

The Mules capitalized on the ground as their rushers gained 284 yards. The Pirates only managed half as much. Perryville lost one fumble but Bluff had 190 yards in penalties called against them.

RIGHT END MIKE GARNER is met by Charleston Safety Charlie Babb after gaining yardage. Sikeston football won the contest, 27-0.

Dexter Takes Sole Possession In South

DEXTER -- In an exciting football game that could have gone either way, the Dexter Bearcats came up on the winning end as they defeated Caruthersville, 20-16.

Both teams had numerous chances to score but failed to find paydirt when the opportunity presented itself in the final quarter. The Bearcats remained undefeated and moved into sole possession of the southern conference lead.

Dexter took an early first quarter lead as Jeff Cox connected on a 22-yard pass play to Jerry Darby. Ron Atherton kicked the extra point.

In the second period Cox threw to Gale Miller covering three yards. The point after touchdown attempt failed.

Caruthersville broke into the scoring column in the second quarter. Second string Fullback Steve McKaskle ran for 20 yards and six points. Mike Fisher booted the extra point.

The Bearcats ended their scoring in the final period when Gail Miller took an intercepted pass for 23 yards and the touchdown. Atherton made good the PAT.

The Tigers claimed seven of their nine points in the fourth quarter on a 17-yard run by Don Smith. Extra point was made by Mike Fisher.

The Bearcat team used a bit of cleverness in giving two points to the Tigers. In the closing minutes of the game Caruthersville punted the ball dead on the Bearcat three-yard line. Dexter decided to take a safety rather than risk a fumble or intercepted pass. This maneuvering enabled the cats to put Caruthersville back in their own territory with the kick forced upon them by the safety.

White Sparks Indian Victory At East Prairie

EAST PRAIRIE -- The Hayti North Indians swept past the East Prairie Eagles last night, 12-2. Hayti tallied all of its scores in the second period while the Eagles managed their only points in the fourth quarter.

Both of rhe Indian touchdowns were made within three minutes of the half. Jerry White scored both times, on 10 and six - yard plunges.

With nine minutes to go in the game Jerry Barker blocked a Hayti punt in the end zone for two points.

HILLSBORO, Ill. AP -- A 16-year-old Nashville, Ill., football player died in a Hillsboro hospital Friday night after he was benched with a head injury in a high school football game at Nokomis, Ill.

Dead was Tom Luczaj, a junior fullback for Nashville which beat Nokomis 18-6.

PERTH, Australia (AP) – A broad American accent floated over the tourist coach loudspeaker in North-West Australia.

"Don't forget to holler if you want to take any pictures. You probably won't see scenery like this again," said coach driver Bob Ranney.

Ranney left Pheonix, Arizona with his blonde wife Candy in 1966, and arrived in Western Australia last April.

They have teamed up as coachdriver and hostess to show Australian tourists 1,000 miles of rugged North-West.

His wife, who travels through the red landscapes dotted with male colonies – but with very few women – is referred to by tourists as the "Princess of the North."

"It's just marvellous. I love every minute on tour," she told a reporter.

"We saw a newspaper advertisement a man and wife wanted."

The Ranneys did one trial run as passengers, and then the tough seven-day safari was all theirs.

Overnight they stop at sheep and cattle stations. Ranney is first out of the bus, helps his passengers unload bedding, and starts the shearing shed kitchen fire.

NIXES WITCHES' BRITCHES

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (AP) – A New Zealand women's hockey team selector has declared war on mini-skirts and witches' britches on the playing fields.

She says girls NOT having proper length uniforms – no more than six inches from the ground when kneeling, – will be sent to the sideline.

Witches' britches, (usually in gay colors, are made of stretch material, with legs which come part way down the thighs) she says, makes a girl self-conscious at a time when she should be concentrating on her play.

"A girl racing after the ball," she says, "should NOT have to steady down while she hitches up her britches."

Jackson Claims Battle of Indians

KENNETT -- Because two tribes of Indians met on the Kennett football field last night was no indication that both celebrated a pow - wow.

The Jackson squad edged the Kennett tribe, 25 - 20, in a tough northern conference battle.

Kennett accumulated points in the first and last quarters while Jackson scored in every period but the third.

Tom Reed cashed in a 36 - yard pass for six points from Ed McKinney. The extra - point attempt failed. Steve Walsh scored in the first period on a 39 - yard dash. Greg Buys connected on the point after touchdown.

Late in the first period Billie Lewis ran for one - yard and six points.

In the second quarter Bill Lewis hauled in a Ron Ashman pass for a touchdown. Ashman also scored on a 73 - yard run. Don Sanders ran for the extra point, leaving the score at the half 19-13.

Both teams held each other in the third quarter. No one hit pay dirt.

Early in the final period Greg Buys plunged from the one-yard line for a TD. He booted the kick. This tally gave the Kennett squad a slim one - point lead in the final quarter.

Jackson didn't score again until Ashman dived for a one-yard touchdown with less than two minutes remaining.

Waves Wash Bulldogs

MALDEN -- The Green Waves ran away with a 45-6 football victory over Gideon.

They maintained a 33 - point advantage at the half.

The Gideon team was unable to hit pay dirt until the final quarter, when Ron Lowery passed to Eddie Smart for a touchdown.

In the scoring column for the Green Waves were Carl Barker, three touchdowns, Jim Hoehn with two TDs and Clarence Walker and Randy Pace with six. Mark Norrid kicked three extra points.

ST. LOUIA AP -- Arthur Godfrey, a man more noted for his radio and television style than for his ice skating, will headlin the St. Louis hockey Blues' opening night pre-game show.

The first half was dominated by both squads' defense, 60 yards in penalties on Charleston and 40 on Sikeston.

After an intermission huddle with Mentor Bill Sapp, Sikeston struck with two third period touchdowns and tightened its defensive hold for a 21-0 lead going into the final stanza.

Sikeston's Turner Marshall, who turned in an oustanding job on defense, picked up a fumble on the 41-yard line after the opening kickoff, enabling the Dogs to drive in for a touchdown in nine plays as Farris connected on a 20-yard pass play to Bob McCord. Edwards converted for a 14-0 lead.

Another Charleston fumble, three plays later, after the kickoff was picked up by Mike Thrower. It enabled the Dogs to surge in on four plays on Felker's second TD of the game, this time from seven yards out. Edwards converted to end the third period scoring.

Riley Gross turned in an outstanding performance on defense for the Dogs and checked possible Charleston TD stroll late in the third period.

Art Jackson scored the final TD of the game midway in the fourth period as the Dogs drove 28 yards on six plays with Jackson going in from 10 yards out. Edwards' extra point attempt was wide.

The Bulldogs speedster, left halfback Dennis Snelling had two TDs called back on penalties.

Farris connected with the speedster on a 26-yard TD play and a 15 yarder.

Coach Sapp was pleased with the performance and commented "It was a better overall team effort than in our two previous outings."

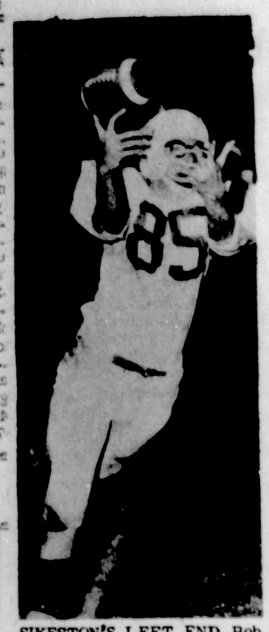

Sikeston posted a 28-0 conference victory over the Jays at public school stadium last year.

Charleston was held to 135 yards on passing and 84 rushing while the Dogs rushed for 232 and passed for 107.

Central's Tigers Strike Seventh Ranked Mayfield

SIKESTON'S LEFT END Bob McCord lunges for a sideline pass thrown by Quarterback Bruce Farris in Friday night's football game. Sikeston defeated Charlestn, 27-0.

MAYFIELD, Ky. -- Cape Girardeau Central high school Tigers of Missouri used points after touchdown to check Kentucky's seventh ranked football team last night, 14-12.

Cape surged ahead after both teams fought through a scoreless first period. Jim Powell plunged in from the three for Mayfield as Mark Stuart hauled in a two-yard Pat Godwin pass in the closing seconds of the first half.

Cape moved 66 yards in 41 seconds for the paydirt. Stuart also converted the extra point to give the Missourians a 7-6 first half lead.

Cape's Kim Godwin ran in from the 10-yard line in the third and Stuart converted the extra point for a 14-6 lead.

Mayfield moved across in the fourth on Powell's six yard run. A Cape misplay set up the score as a bad snap from center on a punt attempt forced the punter to run. He was nailed at the 10.

Cape held Mayfield on the five-yard line after the Kentuckians used an onside kick to get control of the ball. Cape's defense eld and the offense took control of the ball with 21 seconds remaining.

Portageville Buffs Chaffee

-- CHAFFEE -- The Portageville Bulldogs put themselves back on the winning football road last night after losing to Dexter the week before.

The Bulldogs took a resounding triumph from the Chaffee Red Devils, 27-7.

Pat Scherer opened the scoring for the Dogs on a four-yard run. Dennis Fisher missed connections on the extra point attempt.

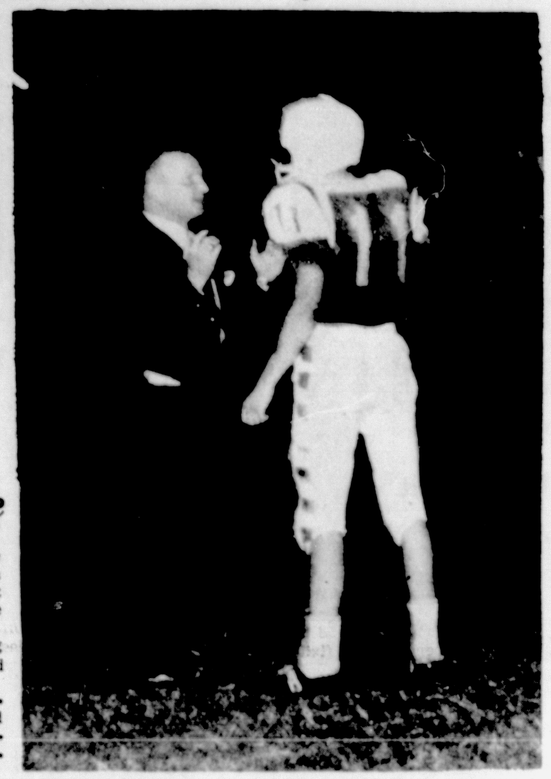

Both squads tallied in the second period. Kirk Stuart completed the first-half scoring for the Bulldogs on a nine-yard run. The point after touchdown was good by Fisher.

Chaffee's touchdown came in the second quarter. Tom Little plunged one-yard for the touchdown. Tom Steimle kicked the extra point leaving the margin of six points at the half.

Two touchdowns were chalked up for Portageville in the third period. David Studia hauled in an 18-yard pass from Kirk Stuart for six more points. Mike Musick raced 42 yards and was brought down on the one-yard line. He tallied on the next play climaxing the Bulldog scoring. Fisher booted the final point of the game.

Portageville dominated the statistics. The Dogs completed five of 11 passes for 77 yards while Chaffee managed only one completion out of 10 tries, good for nine yards.

Rushing yardage amounted to 219 for the Bulldogs while the Red Devils drove for only 103 yards.

QUARTERBACK CHARLIE BABB of the Charleston Bluejays talks things over with coach Herb Marshall during a time out in the football game last night. Sikeston won 27-0.

Mules Still Kicking

PERRYVILLE -- Poplar Bluff maintained its lead in footabll points scored in the northern division last night, beating the Pirates of Perryville, 27-7. The Mules racked up points in every quarter.

Quarter back Ben Wyatt threw a 42-yard touchdown pass to John Piper to initate the Mules' scoring. Wyatt kicked the extra point.

In the second period Leroy Moss scampered 48 yards for a touchdown. Quarterback Wyatt connected again on the point after touchdown.

Fullback John Brown scored in the third and fourth quarters on 10 and one-yard drives. Brown tallied his last touchdown from one-yard out after carrying the ball for 15 yards and being stopped on the one.

Jim Taylor led Perryville's scoring with a six-yard plunge. Mike Gotto split the uprights for the extra point.

Statisticswise, Perryville looked better. The Pirates had 23 first downs to 20 for the Mules. The Mules punted only once as the Pirates had to boot the ball three times.

The Mules capitalized on the ground as their rushers gained 284 yards. The Pirates only managed half as much. Perryville lost one fumble but Bluff had 190 yards in penalties called against them.

RIGHT END MIKE GARNER is met by Charleston Safety Charlie Babb after gaining yardage. Sikeston football won the contest, 27-0.

Dexter Takes Sole Possession In South

DEXTER -- In an exciting football game that could have gone either way, the Dexter Bearcats came up on the winning end as they defeated Caruthersville, 20-16.

Both teams had numerous chances to score but failed to find paydirt when the opportunity presented itself in the final quarter. The Bearcats remained undefeated and moved into sole possession of the southern conference lead.

Dexter took an early first quarter lead as Jeff Cox connected on a 22-yard pass play to Jerry Darby. Ron Atherton kicked the extra point.

In the second period Cox threw to Gale Miller covering three yards. The point after touchdown attempt failed.

Caruthersville broke into the scoring column in the second quarter. Second string Fullback Steve McKaskle ran for 20 yards and six points. Mike Fisher booted the extra point.

The Bearcats ended their scoring in the final period when Gail Miller took an intercepted pass for 23 yards and the touchdown. Atherton made good the PAT.

The Tigers claimed seven of their nine points in the fourth quarter on a 17-yard run by Don Smith. Extra point was made by Mike Fisher.

The Bearcat team used a bit of cleverness in giving two points to the Tigers. In the closing minutes of the game Caruthersville punted the ball dead on the Bearcat three-yard line. Dexter decided to take a safety rather than risk a fumble or intercepted pass. This maneuvering enabled the cats to put Caruthersville back in their own territory with the kick forced upon them by the safety.

PERTH, Australia (AP) – A broad American accent floated over the tourist coach loudspeaker in North-West Australia.

"Don't forget to holler if you want to take any pictures. You probably won't see scenery like this again," said coach driver Bob Ranney.

Ranney left Pheonix, Arizona with his blonde wife Candy in 1966, and arrived in Western Australia last April.

They have teamed up as coachdriver and hostess to show Australian tourists 1,000 miles of rugged North-West.

His wife, who travels through the red landscapes dotted with male colonies – but with very few women – is referred to by tourists as the "Princess of the North."

"It's just marvellous. I love every minute on tour," she told a reporter.

"We saw a newspaper advertisement a man and wife wanted."

The Ranneys did one trial run as passengers, and then the tough seven-day safari was all theirs.

Overnight they stop at sheep and cattle stations. Ranney is first out of the bus, helps his passengers unload bedding, and starts the shearing shed kitchen fire.

White Sparks Indian Victory At East Prairie

EAST PRAIRIE -- The Hayti North Indians swept past the East Prairie Eagles last night, 12-2. Hayti tallied all of its scores in the second period while the Eagles managed their only points in the fourth quarter.

Both of rhe Indian touchdowns were made within three minutes of the half. Jerry White scored both times, on 10 and six - yard plunges.

With nine minutes to go in the game Jerry Barker blocked a Hayti punt in the end zone for two points.

HILLSBORO, Ill. AP -- A 16-year-old Nashville, Ill., football player died in a Hillsboro hospital Friday night after he was benched with a head injury in a high school football game at Nokomis, Ill.

Dead was Tom Luczaj, a junior fullback for Nashville which beat Nokomis 18-6.

NIXES WITCHES' BRITCHES

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (AP) – A New Zealand women's hockey team selector has declared war on mini-skirts and witches' britches on the playing fields.

She says girls NOT having proper length uniforms – no more than six inches from the ground when kneeling, – will be sent to the sideline.

Witches' britches, (usually in gay colors, are made of stretch material, with legs which come part way down the thighs) she says, makes a girl self-conscious at a time when she should be concentrating on her play.

"A girl racing after the ball," she says, "should NOT have to steady down while she hitches up her britches."

BABY TALK

LEBANON, Ky. (AP) – One of George Trotter's friends telephoned the hospital and announced "I'm bringing my wife in. She's going to have a baby."

"Is this her first baby?" asked the nurse.

"Of course not," the distraught father shouted. "This is her husband."

Jackson Claims Battle of Indians

KENNETT -- Because two tribes of Indians met on the Kennett football field last night was no indication that both celebrated a pow - wow.

The Jackson squad edged the Kennett tribe, 25 - 20, in a tough northern conference battle.

Kennett accumulated points in the first and last quarters while Jackson scored in every period but the third.

Tom Reed cashed in a 36 - yard pass for six points from Ed McKinney. The extra - point attempt failed. Steve Walsh scored in the first period on a 39 - yard dash. Greg Buys connected on the point after touchdown.

Late in the first period Billie Lewis ran for one - yard and six points.

In the second quarter Bill Lewis hauled in a Ron Ashman pass for a touchdown. Ashman also scored on a 73 - yard run. Don Sanders ran for the extra point, leaving the score at the half 19-13.

Both teams held each other in the third quarter. No one hit pay dirt.

Early in the final period Greg Buys plunged from the one-yard line for a TD. He booted the kick. This tally gave the Kennett squad a slim one - point lead in the final quarter.

Jackson didn't score again until Ashman dived for a one-yard touchdown with less than two minutes remaining.

Waves Wash Bulldogs

MALDEN -- The Green Waves ran away with a 45-6 football victory over Gideon.

They maintained a 33 - point advantage at the half.

The Gideon team was unable to hit pay dirt until the final quarter, when Ron Lowery passed to Eddie Smart for a touchdown.

In the scoring column for the Green Waves were Carl Barker, three touchdowns, Jim Hoehn with two TDs and Clarence Walker and Randy Pace with six. Mark Norrid kicked three extra points.

ST. LOUIA AP -- Arthur Godfrey, a man more noted for his radio and television style than for his ice skating, will headlin the St. Louis hockey Blues' opening night pre-game show.

Sidney Salomon Jr., president of the Blues announced Friday that Godfrey, Guy Lombardo and his Royal Canadians, and singer Anna Maria Alberghetti will headline the show. The Blues open their season Oct. 11 in St. Louis against the Minnesota North Stars.

Here's How

Try Trellis Theme for Bedroom Decor

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Want a romantic look in your bedroom all the year? One that conjurs up thoughts of gardens, summer houses and the like? Adopt a trellis theme with potted plants or trees, flowered carpet and even a garden bench.

If you've always wanted a four poster, consider turning your old bed into one with a trellis canopy. A foot-high frame supported by tall poles (circular) at four corners of the bed, and presto, you'll be dreaming in a summer house this winter. The poles can be hidden by draperies at the corners.

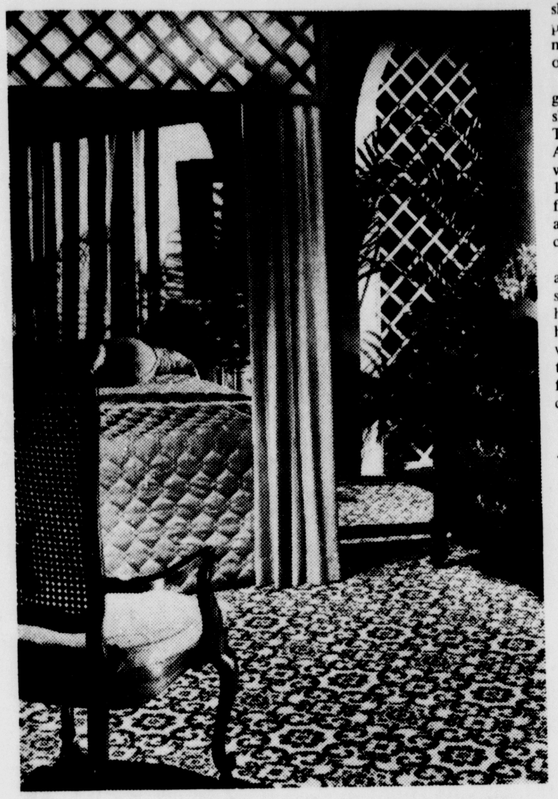

A do-it-yourselfer may rebel at the trellis idea as being too involved. But if he's willing to make a frame of plywood, you're in. Just cover it with trellis paper, and the effect will be just as much fun. The trellis theme, real or paper, can be continued on a wall panel or wall in the room, and it'll be perfect background for your favorite climbing plant. (If there is a man in the house, play it in easy stages.)

Many people frown on carpet in the living area, but in the bedroom it can be lush, besides providing floor warmth on cold winter nights.

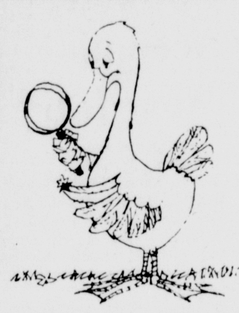

It's an ideal time to buy bedroom carpet – the American Carpet Institute is launching a "carpet your bedroom month" because research has shown that so few people (about 38 per cent) have carpet or rug in the master bedroom. So there's every sort of pattern and color to entice you.

In an old house, carpet offers a great answer to the question, "What shall we do about these old floors?" There are old floors and old floors. And all old floors aren't the kind you want to preserve and keep waxed for 150-year-old throw rugs. Unattractive floors with large cracks harbor dust and dirt, which rises constantly to coat moldings, walls and corners.

People talk of taking up old floors and renewing them, but a cheaper and simpler solution is laying carpet. A heavy pad can be put over floors that have been made as level as possible where they sag before putting down the carpet. Besides hiding an ugly floor, carpet will make the room cleaner.

IT'S SPRING AND SUMMER all year in this cheerful bedroom with trellis canopy, gold floral rug by Mohawk and leaf green, yellow and rust accents against white walls.

The smallest known flowering plant is the duckweed, which is about 1/50th of an inch long and 1/63rd of an inch wide.

HUEYCOBRA: Destination Vietnam

FORT RUCKER, Ala. (ANF)—A sleek and speedy new helicopter called the AH-1G HUEYCOBRA is now taking its final examinations at the U.S. Army Aviation Test Board, Fort Rucker, Ala.

The HUEYCOBRA has greater range, speed, and firepower than previous Army helicopters. Since it has been developed from other models of the HUEY series, incorporating the same transmission, engine and rotor system as the UH-1B, no special training will be necessary for pilots when the HUEYCOBRA is deployed.

Following "graduation" the HUEYCOBRA will be deployed to Vietnam. This should be by the latter part of this year or in early 1968.

In the meantime, it is the job of the test pilots and engineers at the Test Board to evaluate all systems of the new helicopter under all possible conditions.

The object of the testing program is to submit the new AH-1G to even more rigorous schedules than other helicopters are now flying in Vietnam. For example, at Yuma, Ariz., where the Test Board will soon examine the HUEYCOBRA's weapons systems, the HUEYCOBRA is scheduled to fire 2 million rounds of 7.62 mm ammunition and 15,000 2.75 mm rockets.

When the time comes for the HUEYCOBRA to go into combat the Test Board wants to be sure the helicopter is absolutely ready.

The HUEYCOBRA is built by the Bell Helicopter Company of Fort Worth, Texas.

Town Refurbished, but ...

TOURIST SEASON SLOW IN FLORENCE

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

FLORENCE (AP)—When American interior designers arrived here on the third lap of their recent cultural tour, they were surprised to find this town had been dried out, polished and back to normal after November's disastrous floods.

Artisans, hoping to recoup losses suffered in November's flood were stocked with leather, fabrics and other handicrafts for which they are noted. High-water marks along buildings were about the only indication of floods, but the tourist season was getting a late start.

Some Florentine residents speculated that too much publicity had been given to a few anti-American demonstrations but as Consul General Joseph Wheeler pointed out in an interview, "There have been a few, but the same type of Viet Nam demonstration has occurred in other areas of the world."

There was certainly no trace of the feeling that prompted the tossing of an egg at Vice President Hubert Humphrey and splattered Wheeler's suit, "and was unfortunately overpublicized," Wheeler said.

"It was thrown by someone from another town. The Vice President had a wonderful time here and had nice receptions by many people."

Wheeler was hopeful that Florence would enjoy a good tourist season as "they have done a magnificent job of restoring the city, museums, shops and priceless works of art with American and international help. What Florence needs now is business," he said, pointing out that they have accepted loans and replaced inventories in anticipation of it.

Mayor Pietro Bargellini, 69, well-known art historian and author, said in an interview that Florence was suffering a slight recession, due to the Middle East situation in his opinion, but it will come back slowly.

"There is a tremendous tourist industry here. It is our main industry and without it Florence wouldn't exist.

"Americans have done much for us in the way of charity; but, we need them to come and buy goods. All our hotels are operating and we have two new ones."

In 1966, there were 271,944 guests from the United States visiting Florence, one-third of all foreign visitors.

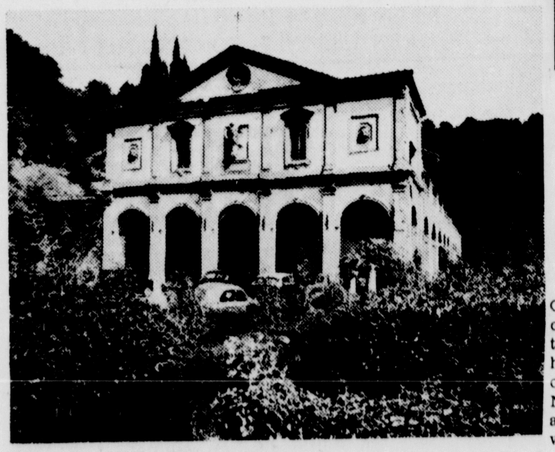

"From a tourist standpoint everything is back to normal, except the unattractive Santa Croce area where I live myself; but it is not a tourist attraction anyway," said the mayor.

There have been too many rumors about after-flood conditions in the opinion of Baron Max De Reutern, half-brother of Prince Serge Obolensky of New York. He helps operate the famed Villa San Michele, designed by Michelangelo, 600 feet high in the hills of Florence. The former monastery was taken by Napoleon in 1820 and is classed among Italian National trust monuments. It is furnished in 15th and 16th century Tuscan furniture and was converted for tourists by the owners, French banker Lucien Tessiers and his wife, Maura Boylan of Dublin.

Many hotels have had cancellations of reservations that had been made since the flood, indicating, as one hotel source pointed out, that "something besides flood, weather and war is responsible."

A NIGHT IN FLORENCE ... Fashion creators Emilio Pucci, Battista Giorgini and Franco Scalamandre of silk fame join Mrs. Frederick Reinhardt, wife of the U.S. Ambassador to Italy, at a dinner given for the National Society of Interior Designers.

VILLA SAN MICHELE designed by Michelangelo in the hills of Florence waits for tourists.

Olive Oil, Leather Prices Up

FLORENCE, Italy (AP) — Olive oil is going up in price because Italians are abandoning their little farm houses in the hills of Tuscany, Umbria and other areas, says architect Niccolo Rucellai of Florence, and "no machine has been invented that can pick olives."

Leather handbags are high in price because calves are on a special diet to make them grow faster, says Paul Gucci, who manufactures some of the world's finest leather shoes and handbags.

It seems that growing fast makes their veins bigger, and when the leather is used in a fine article, much of it must be discarded.

Here's How

Try Trellis Theme for Bedroom Decor

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Want a romantic look in your bedroom all the year? One that conjurs up thoughts of gardens, summer houses and the like? Adopt a trellis theme with potted plants or trees, flowered carpet and even a garden bench.

If you've always wanted a four poster, consider turning your old bed into one with a trellis canopy. A foot-high frame supported by tall poles (circular) at four corners of the bed, and presto, you'll be dreaming in a summer house this winter. The poles can be hidden by draperies at the corners.

A do-it-yourselfer may rebel at the trellis idea as being too involved. But if he's willing to make a frame of plywood, you're in. Just cover it with trellis paper, and the effect will be just as much fun. The trellis theme, real or paper, can be continued on a wall panel or wall in the room, and it'll be perfect background for your favorite climbing plant. (If there is a man in the house, play it in easy stages.)

Many people frown on carpet in the living area, but in the bedroom it can be lush, besides providing floor warmth on cold winter nights.

It's an ideal time to buy bedroom carpet – the American Carpet Institute is launching a "carpet your bedroom month" because research has shown that so few people (about 38 per cent) have carpet or rug in the master bedroom. So there's every sort of pattern and color to entice you.

In an old house, carpet offers a great answer to the question, "What shall we do about these old floors?" There are old floors and old floors. And all old floors aren't the kind you want to preserve and keep waxed for 150-year-old throw rugs. Unattractive floors with large cracks harbor dust and dirt, which rises constantly to coat moldings, walls and corners.

People talk of taking up old floors and renewing them, but a cheaper and simpler solution is laying carpet. A heavy pad can be put over floors that have been made as level as possible where they sag before putting down the carpet. Besides hiding an ugly floor, carpet will make the room cleaner.

IT'S SPRING AND SUMMER all year in this cheerful bedroom with trellis canopy, gold floral rug by Mohawk and leaf green, yellow and rust accents against white walls.

The smallest known flowering plant is the duckweed, which is about 1/50th of an inch long and 1/63rd of an inch wide.

Q—What is the female of the peacock called?
A—The peahen.

HUEYCOBRA: Destination Vietnam

FORT RUCKER, Ala. (ANF)—A sleek and speedy new helicopter called the AH-1G HUEYCOBRA is now taking its final examinations at the U.S. Army Aviation Test Board, Fort Rucker, Ala.

The HUEYCOBRA has greater range, speed, and firepower than previous Army helicopters. Since it has been developed from other models of the HUEY series, incorporating the same transmission, engine and rotor system as the UH-1B, no special training will be necessary for pilots when the HUEYCOBRA is deployed.

Following "graduation" the HUEYCOBRA will be deployed to Vietnam. This should be by the latter part of this year or in early 1968.

In the meantime, it is the job of the test pilots and engineers at the Test Board to evaluate all systems of the new helicopter under all possible conditions.

The object of the testing program is to submit the new AH-1G to even more rigorous schedules than other helicopters are now flying in Vietnam. For example, at Yuma, Ariz., where the Test Board will soon examine the HUEYCOBRA's weapons systems, the HUEYCOBRA is scheduled to fire 2 million rounds of 7.62 mm ammunition and 15,000 2.75 mm rockets.

When the time comes for the HUEYCOBRA to go into combat the Test Board wants to be sure the helicopter is absolutely ready.

The HUEYCOBRA is built by the Bell Helicopter Company of Fort Worth, Texas.

Town Refurbished, but ...

TOURIST SEASON SLOW IN FLORENCE

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

FLORENCE (AP)—When American interior designers arrived here on the third lap of their recent cultural tour, they were surprised to find this town had been dried out, polished and back to normal after November's disastrous floods.

Artisans, hoping to recoup losses suffered in November's flood were stocked with leather, fabrics and other handicrafts for which they are noted. High-water marks along buildings were about the only indication of floods, but the tourist season was getting a late start.

Some Florentine residents speculated that too much publicity had been given to a few anti-American demonstrations but as Consul General Joseph Wheeler pointed out in an interview, "There have been a few, but the same type of Viet Nam demonstration has occurred in other areas of the world."

There was certainly no trace of the feeling that prompted the tossing of an egg at Vice President Hubert Humphrey and splattered Wheeler's suit, "and was unfortunately overpublicized," Wheeler said.

"It was thrown by someone from another town. The Vice President had a wonderful time here and had nice receptions by many people."

Wheeler was hopeful that Florence would enjoy a good tourist season as "they have done a magnificent job of restoring the city, museums, shops and priceless works of art with American and international help. What Florence needs now is business," he said, pointing out that they have accepted loans and replaced inventories in anticipation of it.

Mayor Pietro Bargellini, 69, well-known art historian and author, said in an interview that Florence was suffering a slight recession, due to the Middle East situation in his opinion, but it will come back slowly.

"There is a tremendous tourist industry here. It is our main industry and without it Florence wouldn't exist.

"Americans have done much for us in the way of charity; but, we need them to come and buy goods. All our hotels are operating and we have two new ones."

In 1966, there were 271,944 guests from the United States visiting Florence, one-third of all foreign visitors.

"From a tourist standpoint everything is back to normal, except the unattractive Santa Croce area where I live myself; but it is not a tourist attraction anyway," said the mayor.

There have been too many rumors about after-flood conditions in the opinion of Baron Max De Reutern, half-brother of Prince Serge Obolensky of New York. He helps operate the famed Villa San Michele, designed by Michelangelo, 600 feet high in the hills of Florence. The former monastery was taken by Napoleon in 1820 and is classed among Italian National trust monuments. It is furnished in 15th and 16th century Tuscan furniture and was converted for tourists by the owners, French banker Lucien Tessiers and his wife, Maura Boylan of Dublin.

Many hotels have had cancellations of reservations that had been made since the flood, indicating, as one hotel source pointed out, that "something besides flood, weather and war is responsible."

A NIGHT IN FLORENCE ... Fashion creators Emilio Pucci, Battista Giorgini and Franco Scalamandre of silk fame join Mrs. Frederick Reinhardt, wife of the U.S. Ambassador to Italy, at a dinner given for the National Society of Interior Designers.

Olive Oil, Leather Prices Up

FLORENCE, Italy (AP) — Olive oil is going up in price because Italians are abandoning their little farm houses in the hills of Tuscany, Umbria and other areas, says architect Niccolo Rucellai of Florence, and "no machine has been invented that can pick olives."

Leather handbags are high in price because calves are on a special diet to make them grow faster, says Paul Gucci, who manufactures some of the world's finest leather shoes and handbags.

It seems that growing fast makes their veins bigger, and when the leather is used in a fine article, much of it must be discarded.

Ann Landers

Adults Can't Be Tied to Parents

Dear Ann Landers: My husband has been offered an excellent promotion but it means we must leave this city where we both have family. Both sets of grandparents adore our children. When my parents heard of the promotion they were happy for him and offered their congratulations.

My husband's parents, however, have been trying desperately to get him to pass up the opportunity because "money isn't everything." They have pointed out that they will not live forever (an astute observation), and that we would be unspeakably selfish to move from this city and deprive them of the joy of seeing their grandchildren grow up.

I am certain others must have written to you about this problem. What did you tell them? -- BEWILDERED

Dear B.: I told them money isn't everything. There are other things that should be considered -- independence, personal integrity, making sacrifices (such as leaving one's parents) in order to advance professionally or in business.

Children owe their parents respect, consideration and kindness. But they do not owe them their physical presence after they have reached adulthood. Call the van, and good luck to you.

Dear Ann Landers: Last Fall we sent our pretty 18-year-old daughter off to college. We are not well - fixed financially and it was a sacrifice to send her with the proper wardrobe.

By December we learned that she was doing everything besides studying, and I do mean everything. When she came home for Christmas vacation she told me she thought she was pregnant. Fortunately, she was not, but it was a horrible two weeks for both of us.

Because she did not flunk out she felt she should be allowed to return to college. So, after much haranguing, her father and I agreed. How can I be sure she has learned her lesson and will conduct herself in a respectable manner? I am awake nights worrying. -- MOTHER

Dear Mother: You might as well get some sleep, because staying up nights will not help you OR her. By the time a girl goes of the college her pattern of behavior is set. You can do nothing now except hope to heaven the scare taught her something.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 19-year-old guy with an unusual problem. Two years ago I started to grow to love a wonderful girl. We are hoping, God willing, to be married in two or three years. The problem is that she is always sending me small gifts.

I am putting myself through college and I can't afford to buy her anything. It makes me feel like less of a man to be on the receiving end most of the time.

When, out of need, I buy myself a new shirt I feel guilty. I think perhaps I should have spent the money on her. I have tried to explain, but she says she gets pleasure out of buying me things and I should not deprive her of it.

How can I get her to see that all I need is her love? -- THE RECEIVER

Dear Receiver: The girl is obviously a generous sort, and since her gifts are gifts of love and not designed to obligate you, accept them graciously. In return, write her a poem or a warm letter of thanks. Or send her a trinket which costs a dime but has special significance. An imaginative gift can be far more impressive than an expensive one.

Give in or lose him . . . when a guy gives you this line, look out! For tips on how to handle the super sex salesman, check Ann Landers. Read her booklet, "Necking And Petting -- What Are The Limits?" Send your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper, enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

35 Per Cent Corn Borer Loss Forecast

COLUMBIA -- A potential corn loss of from 35 to 40 per cent from the southwestern corn borer was forecast today for some Missouri areas by University of Missouri extension entomologists.

Another insect pest to check for is the European corn borer, although it is believed it will not cause excessive field losses.

Also, according to entomologists, the probability of field infestations of the Angoumois grain moth is high. This insect damages stored grain.

The southwestern corn borer has developed into a major problem in those southeastern counties south of Cape Girardeau and to a lesser extent through the southern two tiers of counties, entomologists reported.

A survey of 18 fields in New Madrid County showed 17 were infested with southwestern corn borers. The percentage of stalks infested ranged from about 10 to 71 and averaged about 36 percent. This data should apply to other southeastern counties, entomologists said.

The southwestern corn borer girdles the stalk from inside. Stalks break off near the ground level when they become dry. Wind increases breakage.

Ten to 12 per cent of this stalk breakage has already occurred. On the average, this leaves some 20 to 30 per cent of infested stalks to break off.

Corn on fallen stalks is lost unless used by livestock or hand picked.

Entomologists suggest a course of action to hold down losses in infested areas.

Check for percentage of stalks which are girdled and not yet broken off. Do this by examining a total of 100 plants in three to four locations over the field.

Walk into the field 20 to 25 steps and check either 25 or 33 consecutive plants for girdling. Push on the stalk in the vicinity of the ear zone. If the plant has been girdled it will usually break off.

The number of plants which break represents the percentage of stalk loss yet to come.

If this percentage is 10 or above, it should be profitable to harvest the crop and take the moisture discount rather than waiting for moisture levels to drop.

European corn borers feed and tunnel in stalks and ear shanks. As stalks dry, the weakened ear shanks break and ears fall to the ground. Winds will increase the loss.

Entomologists said that if it is known that European corn borers are heavy in fields, farmers should check 50 to 100 ear shanks for evidence of infestation. If 10 per cent or more of the shanks are infested, then early harvesting is advised.

Field infestation of the Angoumois grain moth may occur across the state, according to entomologists.

Field infestations are more likely to occur on varieties whose ear tips are exposed beyond the shucks. Ear tip damage by birds and other insects also provides easy access for infestation by the moth.

Field infestations of Angoumois usually increase as the moisture percentage decreases.

Entomologists stated that with these points in mind, it is urged that new crop corn be treated with a protectant or inspected monthly and fumigated at the first sign of infestation in storage.

First Bale of Cotton Ginned

HAYTI -- The first bale of 1967 crop cotton in Missouri was ginned Sept. 13 at the Smith Gin in Steele.

The grower picked the 484 pound bale on five and one-half acres of Rex variety planted on April 15.

Cotton continued to mature at a slower than normal rate because of cool temperatures. Bollworms caused damage in some locations.

Some farmers are making plans to defoliate their cotton to prevent bollrot and hasten maturity.

Cool Weather to Persist in Bootheel

By Leonard F. Hand
Meteorologist, Delta Center

PORTAGEVILLE -- Temperatures will continue to average below normal through the middle of October. Rain is expected to total near the seasonal normal and will run above normal in some sections.

Mayor high pressure systems affecting Bootheel weather will move inland from the Pacific ocean and advance across the northern states. Canadian air will not often be a strong influence. During periods of sunny weather, temperatures are likely to be mild rather than chilly.

Low pressure disturbances are expected to develop in the central plains and follow a path across Missouri to the Great Lakes region. Moisture from the Gulf of Mexico will be available to provide rain more regularly than during the first half of September. Rains may not be heavy individually, but will occur in sufficient numbers to add up to near normal or high totals. Cloudy, rainy conditions will contribute to lower temperatures averages.

One factor of unknown dimensions that will weigh heavily upon rainfall accumulations during this period is Hurricane Beulah. Even though hurricanes weaken after moving inland their path and remaining strength draw moisture over the lower Mississippi Valley. Beulah developments will determine the effects on Bootheel weather. The 30-day outlook cannot take into account the effects of other tropical disturbances which might form and eventually move into the picture.

Normal rainfall for the period from mid - September through mid - October over the Bootheel as a whole is 3.27 inches. Normals for individual cities are:

Cape Girardeau 3.40 inches, Caruthersville 3.08 inches, Dexter 3.50 inches, Doniphan 3.51 inches, Sikeston 3.40 inches, Morehouse 3.29 inches, New Madrid 3.25 inches, Parma 3.07 inches and Poplar Bluff 3.36 inches.

Short term averages for other cities are Advance 2.82 inches, Bernie 2.65 inches, Bloomfield 2.91 inches, Charleston 2.69 inches, Clearwater Dam 2.72 inches, Deering 2.20 inches, Kennett 2.75 inches, Malden 2.55 inches, Portageville 2.68 inches, Puxico 2.83 inches, Qulin 2.61 inches and Wappapello Dam 2.53 inches.

Most rain during the first half of September was accumulated during the two-day period of rain on Sept. 7 and 8. Precipitation totals for Bootheel cities through Sept. 15 were: Kennett 0.93 inches, Poplar Bluff 1.44 inches, Charleston 1.43 inches, Portageville 1.44 inches, Malden 1.47 inches, Sikeston 0.62 inches, Caruthersville 0.47 inches and University of Missouri Experimental field 0.49 inches.

Neither the temperature nor rain pattern indicated through mid-October is the most beneficial for the cotton crop. Delayed maturity increases possible yield loss to frost. Climatological records show a 50-50 chance for light freeze by Oct. 15 across the northern Bootheel counties and Nov. 20 in the south. Circulation patterns projected through the middle of October indicate little prospect for frost that early.

Cooler than normal temperatures, combined with an outlook for at least normal rainfall, will delay harvesting and provide conditions favorable for bollrot. Much of the late cotton won't be ready for picking until late October. After the first week in October, probabilities of temperatures below 60 degrees rise steadily from 75 per cent to more than 90 per cent by the middle of the month. Timing of defoliant application should be fitted to coincide with warmer periods indicated by the five-day weather outlook. Most efficient leaf drop can be expected when chemicals are applied when nighttime temperatures remain above 60 degrees. Avoid cool, cloudy weather.

Some fields are still heavily populated with insects. If controls are contemplated, farmers should give themselves several hours before rains and watch the wind forecast to avoid drift.

Rains are likely to complicate harvest of remaining corn. Land preparation and planting of wheat and barley can be fitted in between rain periods on many farms. Rainfall still usually exceeds evaporation by about an inch during this period. Many fields can take in that amount into soil storage without causing long delays. There are wet spots, however, which will need maximum advantage from any dry periods.

With cotton harvest expected so late in the season most farmers will have little time to consider the quality advantage of delaying picking until lint moisture is at optimum levels. This is particularly true is periodic rains threaten to interrupt harvest. For that reason, the cotton harvest bulletin issued by the weather bureau agricultural service office in Portageville in most seasons will not be prepared on a daily basis this year. Reference will be made in special releases over the ESSA Weather Wire to Bootheel radio stations, but that will be for informational purposes only.

Girl Struck by Car in Dexter

CHARLESTON -- Debbie Graham, 8, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. "Toots" Graham, was struck by a car and slightly injured Tuesday at 8:25 a.m. while crossing Marshall Street on her way to school.

The child was rushed to St. Mary's Hospital in Cairo in McMikle Ambulance, where she was treated for cuts and bruises on the face and released later in the day. She also suffered loosened teeth and a possible broken nose.

The driver of the vehicle was Elvin Ray Mansfield, 19, an employe of the Leible Service Station on Marshall Street. The car was owned by Jack Carson.

Mansfield told police he was driving 25 miles per hour when "This kid just rang out in front of me and I put on my brakes."

No charges were filed against the driver.

Cafe Owner Not Liable For Parking Lot Crash

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Barney parked his car in a lot behind a diner operated by Ptomaine Pete and pocketed the keys. While he was wary for the safety of his stomach in such a greasy spoon establishment, his real concern should have been for the safety of his car. For after devouring one of Pete's charcoal burned steaks, Barney returned to his car and found it in first crash condition. From its battered appearance, it looked like it had been rammed by a tank.

Weeping over his once - proud car, Barney sued Pete for the sudden demise of his automobile.

"Since I parked it in his lot," Barney told the judge, "it was Pete's duty to take care of it."

"No, it wasn't," answered Pete. "I'm in the restaurant and not the car parking business. I had nothing to do with the lot. It was there merely for the convenience of any customers who wanted to use it."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you let Pete off the griddle?

This is how the judge ruled; Barney didn't recover. The judge held that when a car is parked in a lot provided by a restaurant and the owner retains control of his vehicle, the restaurant proprietor has no duty to protect it. He has merely given his customer a license to park there.

Sticky Problem Delays New I-55 Bridge Opening

ST. LOUIS (AP)— The stuff is sticky, but not that sticky, highway officials explained Thursday as they announced a new Interstate 55 bridge at St. Louis will not be opened Oct. 4.

Officials explained that an epoxy material which is designed to coat the steel deck of the four-lane bridge is not sticking properly. Robert Kronst, East St. Louis district engineer for the Illinois division of highways, declined to estimate when the problem might be licked.

About 180 invitations to ribbon cutting ceremonies at the bridge were mailed Wednesday. A similar number of cancellations will be mailed today.

When the bridge opens it will be the only free bridge across the Mississippi River at St. Louis. The Oct. 4 opening date was scheduled to ease traffic problems in downtown St. Louis during the World Series which is scheduled for Oct. 7, 8 and 9.

Eagleton Enters Race Officially

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Lt. Gov. Thomas F. Eagleton today formally entered the Democratic primary for U. S. senator, against Missouri's junior senator Edward V. Long of Bowling Green.

Eagleton said he would conduct an active and vigorous campaign but would confine it to the problems of Missouri and the nation— not to the troubles besetting Long.

Long has been under fire for having accepted what he called referral fees from Morris Shenker of St. Louis, attorney for convicted Teamster Union boss James R. Hoffa.

Long filed earlier for renomination. Eagleton announced some time ago but delayed his actual filing until today, his mother's birthday.

Also in the race is Dorsey Bass, a Columbia businessman.

Ann Landers

Adults Can't Be Tied to Parents

Dear Ann Landers: My husband has been offered an excellent promotion but it means we must leave this city where we both have family. Both sets of grandparents adore our children. When my parents heard of the promotion they were happy for him and offered their congratulations.

My husband's parents, however, have been trying desperately to get him to pass up the opportunity because "money isn't everything." They have pointed out that they will not live forever (an astute observation), and that we would be unspeakably selfish to move from this city and deprive them of the joy of seeing their grandchildren grow up.

I am certain others must have written to you about this problem. What did you tell them? -- BEWILDERED

Dear B.: I told them money isn't everything. There are other things that should be considered -- independence, personal integrity, making sacrifices (such as leaving one's parents) in order to advance professionally or in business.

Children owe their parents respect, consideration and kindness. But they do not owe them their physical presence after they have reached adulthood. Call the van, and good luck to you.

Dear Ann Landers: Last Fall we sent our pretty 18-year-old daughter off to college. We are not well-fixed financially and it was a sacrifice to send her with the proper wardrobe.

By December we learned that she was doing everything besides studying, and I do mean everything. When she came home for Christmas vacation she told me she thought she was pregnant. Fortunately, she was not, but it was a horrible two weeks for both of us.

Because she did not flunk out she felt she should be allowed to return to college. So, after much haranguing, her father and I agreed. How can I be sure she has learned her lesson and will conduct herself in a respectable manner? I am awake nights worrying. -- MOTHER

Dear Mother: You might as well get some sleep, because staying up nights will not help you OR her. By the time a girl goes of the college her pattern of behavior is set. You can do nothing now except hope to heaven the scare taught her something.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 19-year-old guy with an unusual problem. Two years ago I started to grow to love a wonderful girl. We are hoping, God willing, to be married in two or three years. The problem is that she is always sending me small gifts.

I am putting myself through college and I can't afford to buy her anything. It makes me feel like less of a man to be on the receiving end most of the time.

When, out of need, I buy myself a new shirt I feel guilty. I think perhaps I should have spent the money on her. I have tried to explain, but she says she gets pleasure out of buying me things and I should not deprive her of it.

How can I get her to see that all I need is her love? -- THE RECEIVER

Dear Receiver: The girl is obviously a generous sort, and since her gifts are gifts of love and not designed to obligate you, accept them graciously. In return, write her a poem or a warm letter of thanks. Or send her a trinket which costs a dime but has special significance. An imaginative gift can be far more impressive than an expensive one.

Give in or lose him . . . when a guy gives you this line, look out! For tips on how to handle the super sex salesman, check Ann Landers. Read her booklet, "Necking And Petting -- What Are The Limits?" Send your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper, enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

35 Per Cent Corn Borer Loss Forecast

COLUMBIA -- A potential corn loss of from 35 to 40 per cent from the southwestern corn borer was forecast today for some Missouri areas by University of Missouri extension entomologists.

Another insect pest to check for is the European corn borer, although it is believed it will not cause excessive field losses.

Also, according to entomologists, the probability of field infestations of the Angoumois grain moth is high. This insect damages stored grain.

The southwestern corn borer has developed into a major problem in those southeastern counties south of Cape Girardeau and to a lesser extent through the southern two tiers of counties, entomologists reported.

A survey of 18 fields in New Madrid County showed 17 were infested with southwestern corn borers. The percentage of stalks infested ranged from about 10 to 71 and averaged about 36 percent. This data should apply to other southeastern counties, entomologists said.

The southwestern corn borer girdles the stalk from inside. Stalks break off near the ground level when they become dry. Wind increases breakage.

Ten to 12 per cent of this stalk breakage has already occurred. On the average, this leaves some 20 to 30 per cent of infested stalks to break off.

Corn on fallen stalks is lost unless used by livestock or hand picked.

Entomologists suggest a course of action to hold down losses in infested areas.

Check for percentage of stalks which are girdled and not yet broken off. Do this by examining a total of 100 plants in three to four locations over the field.

Walk into the field 20 to 25 steps and check either 25 or 33 consecutive plants for girdling. Push on the stalk in the vicinity of the ear zone. If the plant has been girdled it will usually break off.

The number of plants which break represents the percentage of stalk loss yet to come.

If this percentage is 10 or above, it should be profitable to harvest the crop and take the moisture discount rather than waiting for moisture levels to drop.

European corn borers feed and tunnel in stalks and ear shanks. As stalks dry, the weakened ear shanks break and ears fall to the ground. Winds will increase the loss.

Entomologists said that if it is known that European corn borers are heavy in fields, farmers should check 50 to 100 ear shanks for evidence of infestation. If 10 per cent or more of the shanks are infested, then early harvesting is advised.

Field infestation of the Angoumois grain moth may occur across the state, according to entomologists.

Field infestations are more likely to occur on varieties whose ear tips are exposed beyond the shucks. Ear tip damage by birds and other insects also provides easy access for infestation by the moth.

Field infestations of Angoumois usually increase as the moisture percentage decreases.

Entomologists stated that with these points in mind, it is urged that new crop corn be treated with a protectant or inspected monthly and fumigated at the first sign of infestation in storage.

First Bale of Cotton Ginned

HAYTI -- The first bale of 1967 crop cotton in Missouri was ginned Sept. 13 at the Smith Gin in Steele.

The grower picked the 484 pound bale on five and one-half acres of Rex variety planted on April 15.

Cotton continued to mature at a slower than normal rate because of cool temperatures. Bollworms caused damage in some locations.

Some farmers are making plans to defoliate their cotton to prevent bollrot and hasten maturity.

Cool Weather to Persist in Bootheel

By Leonard F. Hand
Meteorologist, Delta Center

PORTAGEVILLE -- Temperatures will continue to average below normal through the middle of October. Rain is expected to total near the seasonal normal and will run above normal in some sections.

Mayor high pressure systems affecting Bootheel weather will move inland from the Pacific ocean and advance across the northern states. Canadian air will not often be a strong influence. During periods of sunny weather, temperatures are likely to be mild rather than chilly.

Low pressure disturbances are expected to develop in the central plains and follow a path across Missouri to the Great Lakes region. Moisture from the Gulf of Mexico will be available to provide rain more regularly than during the first half of September. Rains may not be heavy individually, but will occur in sufficient numbers to add up to near normal or high totals. Cloudy, rainy conditions will contribute to lower temperatures averages.

One factor of unknown dimensions that will weigh heavily upon rainfall accumulations during this period is Hurricane Beulah. Even though hurricanes weaken after moving inland their path and remaining strength draw moisture over the lower Mississippi Valley. Beulah developments will determine the effects on Bootheel weather. The 30-day outlook cannot take into account the effects of other tropical disturbances which might form and eventually move into the picture.

Normal rainfall for the period from mid-September through mid-October over the Bootheel as a whole is 3.27 inches. Normals for individual cities are:

Cape Girardeau 3.40 inches, Caruthersville 3.08 inches, Dexter 3.50 inches, Doniphan 3.51 inches, Sikeston 3.40 inches, Morehouse 3.29 inches, New Madrid 3.25 inches, Parma 3.07 inches and Poplar Bluff 3.36 inches.

Short term averages for other cities are Advance 2.82 inches, Bernie 2.65 inches, Bloomfield 2.91 inches, Charleston 2.69 inches, Clearwater Dam 2.72 inches, Deering 2.20 inches, Kennett 2.75 inches, Malden 2.55 inches, Portageville 2.68 inches, Puxico 2.83 inches, Qulin 2.61 inches and Wappapello Dam 2.53 inches.

Most rain during the first half of September was accumulated during the two-day period of rain on Sept. 7 and 8. Precipitation totals for Bootheel cities through Sept. 15 were: Kennett 0.93 inches, Poplar Bluff 1.44 inches, Charleston 1.43 inches, Portageville 1.44 inches, Malden 1.47 inches, Sikeston 0.62 inches, Caruthersville 0.47 inches and University of Missouri Experimental field 0.49 inches.

Neither the temperature nor rain pattern indicated through mid-October is the most beneficial for the cotton crop. Delayed maturity increases possible yield loss to frost. Climatological records show a 50-50 chance for light freeze by Oct. 15 across the northern Bootheel counties and Nov. 20 in the south. Circulation patterns projected through the middle of October indicate little prospect for frost that early.

Cooler than normal temperatures, combined with an outlook for at least normal rainfall, will delay harvesting and provide conditions favorable for bollrot. Much of the late cotton won't be ready for picking until late October. After the first week in October, probabilities of temperatures below 60 degrees rise steadily from 75 per cent to more than 90 per cent by the middle of the month. Timing of defoliant application should be fitted to coincide with warmer periods indicated by the five-day weather outlook. Most efficient leaf drop can be expected when chemicals are applied when nighttime temperatures remain above 60 degrees. Avoid cool, cloudy weather.

Some fields are still heavily populated with insects. If controls are contemplated, farmers should give themselves several hours before rains and watch the wind forecast to avoid drift.

Rains are likely to complicate harvest of remaining corn. Land preparation and planting of wheat and barley can be fitted in between rain periods on many farms. Rainfall still usually exceeds evaporation by about an inch during this period. Many fields can take in that amount into soil storage without causing long delays. There are wet spots, however, which will need maximum advantage from any dry periods.

With cotton harvest expected so late in the season most farmers will have little time to consider the quality advantage of delaying picking until lint moisture is at optimum levels. This is particularly true is periodic rains threaten to interrupt harvest. For that reason, the cotton harvest bulletin issued by the weather bureau agricultural service office in Portageville in most seasons will not be prepared on a daily basis this year. Reference will be made in special releases over the ESSA Weather Wire to Bootheel radio stations, but that will be for informational purposes only.

Girl Struck by Car in Dexter

CHARLESTON -- Debbie Graham, 8, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. "Toots" Graham, was struck by a car and slightly injured Tuesday at 8:25 a.m. while crossing Marshall Street on her way to school.

The child was rushed to St. Mary's Hospital in Cairo in McMikle Ambulance, where she was treated for cuts and bruises on the face and released later in the day. She also suffered loosened teeth and a possible broken nose.

The driver of the vehicle was Elvin Ray Mansfield, 19, an employe of the Leible Service Station on Marshall Street. The car was owned by Jack Carson.

Mansfield told police he was driving 25 miles per hour when "This kid just rang out in front of me and I put on my brakes."

No charges were filed against the driver.

Cafe Owner Not Liable For Parking Lot Crash

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Barney parked his car in a lot behind a diner operated by Ptomaine Pete and pocketed the keys. While he was wary for the safety of his stomach in such a greasy spoon establishment, his real concern should have been for the safety of his car. For after devouring one of Pete's charcoal burned steaks, Barney returned to his car and found it in first crash condition. From its battered appearance, it looked like it had been rammed by a tank.

Weeping over his once - proud car, Barney sued Pete for the sudden demise of his automobile.

"Since I parked it in his lot," Barney told the judge, "it was Pete's duty to take care of it."

"No, it wasn't," answered Pete. "I'm in the restaurant and not the car parking business. I had nothing to do with the lot. It was there merely for the convenience of any customers who wanted to use it."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you let Pete off the griddle?

This is how the judge ruled: Barney didn't recover. The judge held that when a car is parked in a lot provided by a restaurant and the owner retains control of his vehicle, the restaurant proprietor has no duty to protect it. He has merely given his customer a license to park there.

Soybean Growers Urged To Line Up Storage

HUDSON, Iowa -- The American Soybean Association urges soybean growers to line up storage space for their crop in advance of combining this year to avoid a market glut and depressed prices during harvest.

Chef Randolph, ASA executive vice president, says in the Midwest with more early hybrids and corn there will be a heavy simultaneous movement of corn and soybeans to market. With corn competing heavily with a record soybean crop for available storage space, there may be at least temporary hardships on storage space and marketing facilities. In the South, soybean acreage has expanded rapidly in recent years and has outrun storage facilities.

Growers should avoid flooding the market, and make sure now they have a place to store their beans if the market dips below the support price at harvest time, Randolph urges. "Farmers can do something about this problem themselves by storing their beans, at least temporarily, to prevent low prices at harvest and provide orderly marketing during the year, he says."

Professors in religion departments should be professors, not counselors or ministers; their ties with the campus ministers should be no closer than those of professors of law with lawyers. (At this time, when departments of religion are relatively new, perhaps the separation should be even sharper.) An occasional talk to the new, perhaps the separation should be even sharper.) An occasional talk to the various campus religious groups, as to the fraternities of peace groups, may be in order. But good teaching is the primary task; like any other art, it is holy in itself.

On The Fence Row

By Tom Brown

BLOOMFIELD - Approximately 70 persons heard Edward Constien, extension agricultural engineer from the University of Missouri college of agriculture, discuss recommended soybean harvesting practices and saw the results of harvesting soybeans with combines in various stages of adjustment at the soybean harvesting meeting held on the George Hampton farm near Dexter.

Four different makes of combines were used to demonstrate proper harvesting practices. Harvesting losses calcualted from beans on the ground following the combines ranged from 13/4 bushels per acre following a properly-adjusted combine to six bushels per acre lost by one combine before it had been properly adjusted.

Constien stressed the importance of proper combine adjustment and operation. It was pointed out that results of research conducted in Iowa showed an average loss of 51/2 bushels of soybeans per acre in beans that produced 33 bushels per acre, a loss of approximarely $14 per acre at present bean prices.

As a first step, Constien stressed the importance of the proper repair and adjustment of the combine prior to harvest tiem. He recommended adjusting the combine according to the manufacturer's recommendations as found in the operator's manual. He also stressed the importance of the operator's becoming axquainted with adjustments that might need to be made in the field and how to make them quickly to save "dawn time" after harvest begins.

The engineer stated that cutter bar losses account for 80% of total soybean harvest losses. He recommended operating the combine with the cutter bar not over four inches above the ground where possible, and stated that every inch it is raised above the ground means the loss of another bushel of beans per acre.

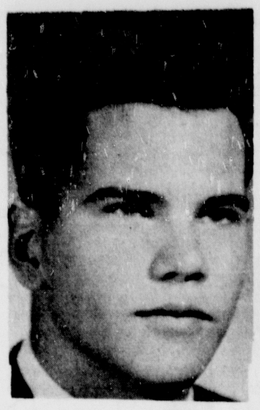

Constien also reminded farmers in attendance that running the combine reel too fast will cause shattering and losses of soybeans. He recommended running the reel so that the top speed is about the same as the combine ground speed. He suggested checking the number of soybeans left on the ground behind the combine and using this loss as a guide to combine adjustment. According to his figures, the loss of three to four beans per square foot means the loss of one bushel of beans per acre.

According to the engineer, werious bean losses also result from improper conclave - cylinder clearance and cylinder speed. Conclave - cylinder clearance should be set according to recommendations found in the operator's manual and is not normally changed as the moisture content of beans changes. Recommended cylinder speeds for the combine are also found in the operator's manual and should be changed as moisture content of the beans changes. Cylinder speeds should be increased for beans of high moisture content and decreased as beans dry out. The cylinder speed should be adjusted to thresh beans cleanly without cracking them.

Constien mentioned several common causes of soybean harvest losses and pointed out causes for each. Grain over the straw rack is caused by improper rack speed, cylinder breaking up too much material, or plugged rack openings. Grain over the sieve is caused by over-loading, improper engine speed, improper wind blast, improper sieve openings, or plugged sieve. Trash in the grain bin can be caused by over - threshing, over - loading, sieve open tood wide, or insufficient wind blast. Cracked beans are caused by the beans being too dry, insufficient conclave-cylinder clearance, excessive cylinder speed, or beans running over the screen into the return auger.

He stressed the importance of taking steps to prevent harvest losses in weedy fields of beans. According to him, one of the most important things that can be done is to "slow down". If the cylinder wraps from heavy weed growth or tough beans, reduce the forward speed of the combine, increase the cylinder speed, and increase beater speed.

Constien recommended beginning soybean harvest as soon as the moisture content of the beans is 13 to 14%, as 14% is the maximum moisture content of the imum moisture content for safe storage of beans. He also suggusted striving to complete harvest before the moisture content reaches 10%, as harvest losses increase rapidly after moisture content reaches this point.

Home Economist Wins U.S. Award for Baby Sitter Clinics

COLUMBIA--Miss Mary Emma Hulshof, Ste. Genevieve, extension home exonomist in Ste. Genevieve county, is one of eight persons in the nation named to receive the Florence Hall Award.

The award is presented annually through the National Association of Extension Home Economists during the organization's annual meeting.

The award, including a check for $200, will be presented to Miss Hulshof October 25 in Jackson, Miss.

Miss Florence Hall, a regional field agent with the federal extension service, established the award in 1952 to recognize outstanding activities or projects of home demonstration agents.

Miss Hulshof was recognized for her success in organizing and carrying out baby sitting clinics.

She gathered resources material, and secured the assistance of other persons to put together a meaningful program. Cooperating in the training were the county health nurse, a county child welfare aide, county sheriff, city police chief, and city fire chief.

The training program provided instruction resulting in proficient baby sitters, and also prepared girls for future employment in other occupations by helping them learn responsibility, to be on time, and to be adaptable to situations.

Her first clinic was held in 1963. Sixty girls were graduated from the initial class. Successvie clinics swelled the total to about 330 graduates.

Clinics patterned on Miss Hulshof's idea have been conducted in more than 20 Missouri counties. After a story about her clinics appeared in a publication for extension workers, requests for the teaching material she designed came from throughout the United States and Canada.

Her extension career began in September, 1961 with appointment as home agent in training in St. Francois county. She became Ste. Genevieve county extension home economist in January of 1962.

For 10 years following high school graduation she was employed at Farmers Bank, Portageville. She resigned to enter Southeast Missouri State College at Cape Girardeau where she earnes a Bachelor of Science degree in vocational home economice.

Miss Hulshof was reared on a New Madrid county farm. She has been active in 4-H club work as a member and as a leader. She, two sisters, and four brothers have all won trips to the National 4-H Club Congress. In 1951 she received the state 4-H Leadership award. She was a 4-H Club leader for 10 years. She is treasurer, Southeast Missouri Home Economics Association and a member of the Missouri Craftman's Council.

Wheat Can Be Seeded Now

CARUTHERSVILLE -- With the new Hessian Fly resistant varieties wheat may be seeded any time after mid-August if it is to be pastured. Early seeded wheat (before Oct. 1) stands a chance of growing too rank and getting freeze damage when it is not grazed.

The fall of 1966 and spring of 1967 gave a number of farmers with early seeded rank wheat cause for worry. In fact, some of these fields were damaged by spring freezes.

The normal time for seeding wheat using the Hessian Fly resistant varieties is around Oct. 1. Where non-fly resistant varieties are used Oct. 15 is the seeding date for Pemiscot and Dunklin counties.

Stepped-up Research Delta Center Program MFA GOAL

PORTAGEVILLE -- A request for new farm legislation and increased emphasis on administrative actions aimed at improving farm income along with a stepped-up program of research and education at the University of Missouri Delta Center were the chief ingredients of a report released on two Missouri Delta farm crop policy sessions conducted by Midcontinent Farmers Association.

Participating in the farm policy conferences held at Portageville were leading farmers and representatives of banks and state and federal farm agencies from Butler, Dunklin, Mississippi, New Madrid, Pemiscot, Scott, and Stoddard counties. Leading the various sessions were MFA officials, L. C. Carpenter of Columbia, and Hilton Bracey of Portageville, and University of Missouri Delta Center representatives, B. W. Harrison, Jim Roth, and E. B. Nace. Claude Bowles, State Director of the Missouri Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, and Richard Ritchie, program specialist, both of Columbia, provided statistical information and background material to guide the discussions.

The policy groups recommended a national food and fiber reserve as a means of improving farm prices and to shift some of the cost of maintaining such reserves from agriculture to the general public. Such reserves would have to be completely insulated from the market to prevent price-depressing influences and maintained within limiting guides that would permit release only under emergency conditions or when prices are well above parity levels, the report explained. Included in the recommendations for new legislation was a request for the inclusion of raw cotton and cotton goods in welfare programs along with food products, and legislative authority to enable farmers to enter into marketing agreements as a means of smoothing out widely fluctuating prices to both farmers and consumers. The report made clear that farmers are deeply concerned over current price levels for farm commodities and that action to bolster prices is overdue.

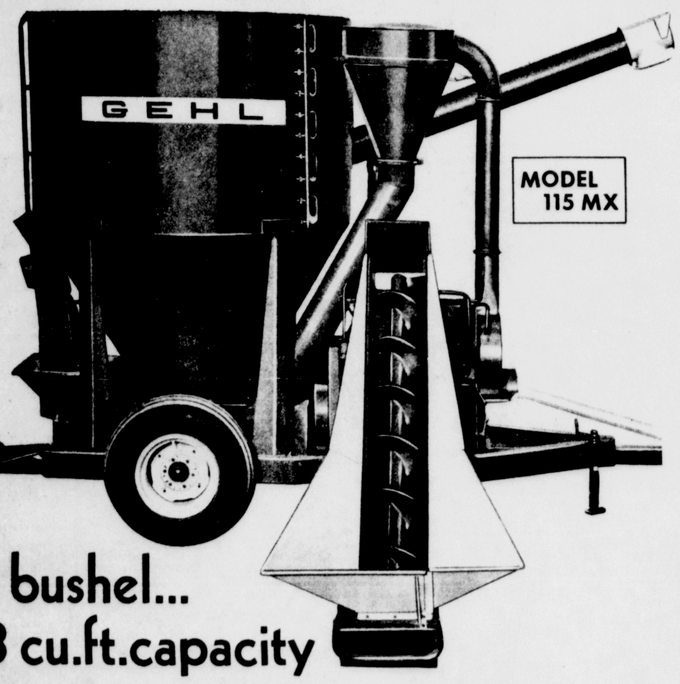

Possibilities considered for additional administrative actions to improve farm prices during the coming harvest centered around the need for increasing export outlets. The report called for increased exports through P. L. 480 and barter program available under existing legislative authority. It noted that exports of cotton, wheat and soybeans are lagging and urged that pricing arrangements be examined with the view of meeting the competition of foreign production of these commodities in an aggressive fashion. The report emphasized the need for keeping the carryover or supply of the various commodities within reasonable limits as a means of stimulating prices and avoiding unnecessary costs to the Government. Increases in support levels and diversion payments were advocated for corn and feed grains. It was noted that increases were necessary to improve farm income and hold production within desirable bounds.

It was recommended that a cotton acreage increase be made available in 1968 at a level which would not add to the carryover. but would be sufficient to provide protection against a shortage of better staple cottons. The report emphasized that the proposed cotton acreage increase should be made available in a way, or ways, that would improve cotton farm income and strengthen total farm income in cotton producing areas. It stressed that the need for improvement in cotton farm income on an immediate and continuing basis should govern any and all changes in the program.

Keeping soybeans free of controls was a highlight of the recommendations. It was noted that Russian sunflower production was becoming an increasing threat to exports of soybeans, and urged that government pricing programs be aimed at both foreign competition and toward increasing domestic uses for edible fats and oils. It was urged that more attention be given to possibilities for yield increases of soybeans. The report called for higher yielding varieties and improved weed control, and for fertility practices to be researched. Also, it was noted that soybean yields can be profitably increased over current levels merely by more widespread and intensive use of existing knowledge.

The Delta Center was asked to study and report on the influences of weather on cotton production in Southeast Missouri. Many questions were raised as to how much of a limiting factor is weather on cotton production in light of production during the past two years and over a period of years ranging from some seven years ago when cotton yields reached a plateau in the state. Other research requests were for more information on crop yields from closer rows, double cropping, irrigation, and soil fertility.

Soybean Growers Urged To Line Up Storage

HUDSON, Iowa -- The American Soybean Association urges soybean growers to line up storage space for their crop in advance of combining this year to avoid a market glut and depressed prices during harvest.

Chef Randolph, ASA executive vice president, says in the Mid-west with more early hybrids and corn there will be a heavy simultaneous movement of corn and soybeans to market. With corn competing heavily with a record soybean crop for available storage space, there may be at least temporary hardships on storage space and marketing facilities. In the South, soybean acreage has expanded rapidly in recent years and has outrun storage facilities.

Growers should avoid flooding the market, and make sure now they have a place to store their beans if the market dips below the support price at harvest time, Randolph urges. "Farmers can do something about this problem themselves by storing their beans, at least temporarily, to prevent low prices at harvest and provide orderly marketing during the year, he says."

Professors in religion departments should be professors, not counselors or ministers; their ties with the campus ministers should be no closer than those of professors of law with lawyers. (At this time, when departments of religion are relatively new, perhaps the separation should be even sharper.) An occasional talk to the new, perhaps the separation should be even sharper.) An occasional talk to the various campus religious groups, as to the fraternities of peace groups, may be in order. But good teaching is the primary task; like any other art, it is holy in itself.

On The Fence Row

By Tom Brown

BLOOMFIELD - Approximately 70 persons heard Edward Constien, extension agricultural engineer from the University of Missouri college of agriculture, discuss recommended soybean harvesting practices and saw the results of harvesting soybeans with combines in various stages of adjustment at the soybean harvesting meeting held on the George Hampton farm near Dexter.

Four different makes of combines were used to demonstrate proper harvesting practices. Harvesting losses calcualted from beans on the ground following the combines ranged from 13/4 bushels per acre following a properly-adjusted combine to six bushels per acre lost by one combine before it had been properly adjusted.

Constien stressed the importance of proper combine adjustment and operation. It was pointed out that results of research conducted in Iowa showed an average loss of 51/2 bushels of soybeans per acre in beans that produced 33 bushels per acre, a loss of approximarely $14 per acre at present bean prices.

As a first step, Constien stressed the importance of the proper repair and adjustment of the combine prior to harvest tiem. He recommended adjusting the combine according to the manufacturer's recommendations as found in the operator's manual. He also stressed the importance of the operator's becoming axquainted with adjustments that might need to be made in the field and how to make them quickly to save "dawn time" after harvest begins.

The engineer stated that cutter bar losses account for 80% of total soybean harvest losses. He recommended operating the combine with the cutter bar not over four inches above the ground where possible, and stated that every inch it is raised above the ground means the loss of another bushel of beans per acre.

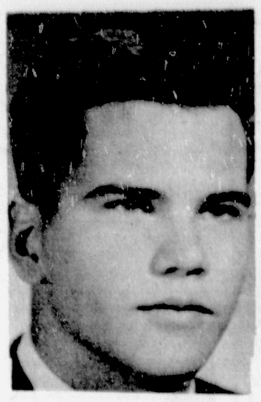

Constien also reminded farmers in attendance that running the combine reel too fast will cause shattering and losses of soybeans. He recommended running the reel so that the top speed is about the same as the combine ground speed. He suggested checking the number of soybeans left on the ground behind the combine and using this loss as a guide to combine adjustment. According to his figures, the loss of three to four beans per square foot means the loss of one bushel of beans per acre.

According to the engineer, werious bean losses also result from improper conclave - cylinder clearance and cylinder speed. Conclave - cylinder clearance should be set according to recommendations found in the operator's manual and is not normally changed as the moisture content of beans changes. Recommended cylinder speeds for the combine are also found in the operator's manual and should be changed as moisture content of the beans changes. Cylinder speeds should be increased for beans of high moisture content and decreased as beans dry out. The cylinder speed should be adjusted to thresh beans cleanly without cracking them.

Constien mentioned several common causes of soybean harvest losses and pointed out causes for each. Grain over the straw rack is caused by improper rack speed, cylinder breaking up too much material, or plugged rack openings. Grain over the sieve is caused by over-loading, improper engine speed, improper wind blast, improper sieve openings, or plugged sieve. Trash in the grain bin can be caused by over - threshing, over - loading, sieve open tood wide, or insufficient wind blast. Cracked beans are caused by the beans being too dry, insufficient conclave-cylinder clearance, excessive cylinder speed, or beans running over the screen into the return auger.

He stressed the importance of taking steps to prevent harvest losses in weedy fields of beans. According to him, one of the most important things that can be done is to "slow down". If the cylinder wraps from heavy weed growth or tough beans, reduce the forward speed of the combine, increase the cylinder speed, and increase beater speed.

Constien recommended beginning soybean harvest as soon as the moisture content of the beans is 13 to 14%, as 14% is the maximum moisture content of the imum moisture content for safe storage of beans. He also suggested striving to complete harvest before the moisture content reaches 10%, as harvest losses increase rapidly after moisture content reaches this point.

Home Economist Wins U.S. Award for Baby Sitter Clinics

COLUMBIA--Miss Mary Emma Hulshof, Ste. Genevieve, extension home exonomist in Ste. Genevieve county, is one of eight persons in the nation named to receive the Florence Hall Award.

The award is presented annually through the National Association of Extension Home Economists during the organization's annual meeting.

The award, including a check for $200, will be presented to Miss Hulshof October 25 in Jackson, Miss.

Miss Florence Hall, a regional field agent with the federal extension service, established the award in 1952 to recognize outstanding activities or projects of home demonstration agents.

Miss Hulshof was recognized for her success in organizing and carrying out baby sitting clinics.

She gathered resources material, and secured the assistance of other persons to put together a meaningful program. Cooperating in the training were the county health nurse, a county child welfare aide, county sheriff, city police chief, and city fire chief.

The training program provided instruction resulting in proficient baby sitters, and also prepared girls for future employment in other occupations by helping them learn responsibility, to be on time, and to be adaptable to situations.

Her first clinic was held in 1963. Sixty girls were graduated from the initial class. Successvie clinics swelled the total to about 330 graduates.

Clinics patterned on Miss Hulshof's idea have been conducted in more than 20 Missouri counties. After a story about her clinics appeared in a publication for extension workers, requests for the teaching material she designed came from throughout the United States and Canada.

Her extension career began in September, 1961 with appointment as home agent in training in St. Francois county. She became Ste. Genevieve county extension home economist in January of 1962.

For 10 years following high school graduation she was employed at Farmers Bank, Portageville. She resigned to enter Southeast Missouri State College at Cape Girardeau where she earnes a Bachelor of Science degree in vocational home economice.

Miss Hulshof was reared on a New Madrid county farm. She has been active in 4-H club work as a member and as a leader. She, two sisters, and four brothers have all won trips to the National 4-H Club Congress. In 1951 she received the state 4-H Leadership award. She was a 4-H Club leader for 10 years. She is treasurer, Southeast Missouri Home Economics Association and a member of the Missouri Craftman's Council.

Wheat Can Be Seeded Now

CARUTHERSVILLE -- With the new Hessian Fly resistant varieties wheat may be seeded any time after mid-August if it is to be pastured. Early seeded wheat (before Oct. 1) stands a chance of growing too rank and getting freeze damage when it is not grazed.

The fall of 1936 and spring of 1937 gave a number of farmers with early seeded rank wheat cause for worry. In fact, some of these fields were damaged by spring freezes.

The normal time for seeding wheat using the Hessian Fly resistant varieties is around Oct. 1. Where non-fly resistant varieties are used Oct. 15 is the seeding date for Pemiscot and Dunklin counties.

Stepped-up Research Delta Center Program MFA GOAL

PORTAGEVILLE -- A request for new farm legislation and increased emphasis on administrative actions aimed at improving farm income along with a stepped-up program of research and education at the University of Missouri Delta Center were the chief ingredients of a report released on two Missouri Delta farm crop policy sessions conducted by Midcontinent Farmers Association.

Participating in the farm policy conferences held at Portageville were leading farmers and representatives of banks and state and federal farm agencies from Butler, Dunklin, Mississippi, New Madrid, Pemiscot, Scott, and Stoddard counties. Leading the various sessions were MFA officials, L. C. Carpenter of Columbia, and Hilton Bracey of Portageville, and University of Missouri Delta Center representatives, B. W.
